OFFICE CAT

BY JUNIUS

Junius' idea of a "dumb-bell" is the fat who thinks himself is a part of a pig.

Said Romeo like I did,
"What do you suppose
Becomes of the wind
When it no longer blows?"

When it was announced by fashion experts that the short skirts must go, Amos Tash says there was a period of anxiety, until it was found in which direction they were going.

Have You a Little Roommate in Your Home?

The roommate who borrows your time and then goes out and orders unexpected.

Booze and bing seem to go together and are regular companions, it seems.

Our Daily Truth

Before a man marries he calls her "his adored one."
Later he wakes up to the fact that it costs an awful lot to keep her adored.

Laffin' Gas

The latest story that has reached the ears of Junius came from Pen-

leton. It appears that a cat reporter on one of the daily Round-Up city papers came in with an item and read it out dusty: "Mrs. Klue blank is confined to her home with an attack of amnesia."
A woman who has reached sixteen and never been kissed is going to reach sixty in the same state.
Darkness
The shades of night were falling fast.
When for a like he awoke there; She, fast have prospered "Yes," he exclaims.
The shades came down still faster.
And then along comes the gink who insists that "things aren't done like they used to was—the world's going to the dogs!" Gr-r-r! Blank-ety-blank, asterisk bushwah!

Harding's Speech

In his address to newspapermen President Harding gives as the keynote of his speech, "Keep Pledges." That is fine as far as it goes, but the chief executive fails to give a recipe for making men elected to office follow his mandate.

That he is thoroughly sincere in his stand on all important questions the nation is willing to admit, that he believes a world court is now essential in international affairs is evident from the very serious manner in which he treats the subject. But, admission that it is a step toward the Wilson goal must be made. If the League of Nations was all wrong, as we who supported Mr. Harding pledged the people, then is a world court right? If Senator Harding was right in his stand against all forms of foreign entanglement as advocated in the League of Nations, then is President Harding right in his world court? Is it a rose by another name?

It may be easy for the large minds of the nation to right about face on big issues, but it is quite difficult for those of us who play the harmony instruments in the band to follow them. There was a time when a Republican president could say a thing was so and the party shouted "so be it," but, like other days, those days have gone.

This international question is a very deep one. If the world court of Mr. Harding's is the correct plan, then the League of Nations was in a measure right, to say the least.

This is a period when minds are pondering and weighing matters. Most people are not willing to tie themselves to Europe with her wars and troubles. It was with this understanding that Mr. Harding was elected to the presidency. But, we find him undergoing a great change.

He may be right, but it is well enough to wait a little while before Republicans hasten to right-about-face on this big subject.

Only a few days more for the I. W. W. to make preparations for the big sensational strike in Oregon. Could it be possible that some good practical joker started the report of a strike just to cause business to lose a few sleepless nights? Surely, any strike pulled by the I. W. W. in Oregon will be so small that it will not be noticed by anyone save a few foremen and superintendents.

Robert La Follette, who represents Wisconsin in the senate, has announced that he will make a tour of the west about the time the president does. No doubt Mr. Harding believes there is always something to take the joy out of life. The trail of the La Follette comet will do a lot of sputtering and finally sputter out, for La Follette's plan of tearing down and failing to reconstruct is too well known over the country now to be taken very seriously.

The low price of cattle will not prevent the fine exhibit of live stock at the annual Union Stock Show in June. Breeders of Eastern Oregon are holding on, hoping that conditions will change and in the meantime they are producing some of the best live stock in the entire west.

"It's going to look Wonderful, I know!"

IS THE FLOOR SCRATCHED, are the stair-treads worn? Have small careless feet scuffed the baseboard? Take a little time and freshen it all up new! You'll enjoy its improved appearance, ever so much! And isn't there a fascination in wielding a paint brush!

For kitchen, bathroom and closet floors, use Fuller's Rubber Cement Floor Paint. It comes in 14 shades and covers solidly in one coat. Fuller Floor Wax lends a high polish to hardwood floors. Natural wood floors are protected by a coating—clear, transparent and durable—of "15 for Floors" Varnish.

Whatever your painting need, W. P. Fuller & Co. makes a paint for the purpose. An agent or dealer near you has Fuller Products. See him today. Write, too, for our "Home Service" booklet. Our Service Department will gladly give you advice.
