SHERRY'S RUPERT HUGHES' "GIMME"

Another one of Goldwyn's Rupert Hughes pictures, a smiling comedy-drama of everyday American life, with a tear lurking in it, is coming to the Sherry theatre for two days. It is called "Gimme" and the scenario was written by Mr. Hughes and his wife, Adelaide Hughes. It is said to be a picture which will appeal to every woman because it deals with that subject of perennial interest to womankind, a wife's financial dependence upon her husband-even for pocket money. All husbands and prospective husbands should see it to get a line on how to arrange domestic financial matters to keep their wives contented and happy.

Fanny Daniels marries Clinton Ferris, son of the wealthy Mrs. Roland Ferris, who objects to his throwing himself away on a mere designer in an interior decorating shop and promptly throws him upon his own financial resources. These prove not to be very great and Fanny finds herself wearing shabby clothes. She has no money and is ashamed to ask Clinton for it. Necessity finally drives her to ask and he gives her permission to draw out $200 from the $500 which they have in the bank. Fanny, however, is forced to draw out the entire amount to pay back a loan from the proprietor of the interior decorating shop to escape his unwelcome attentions. And when Clinton's check for $300 is returned marked no good, there is an explosion which results in Fanny's leaving Clinton and going back to her old job. A reconciliation later takes place and Fanny is no longer forced to utter the hated "gimme".

Goldwyn gave Mr. Hughes an exceptionally competent cast embracing Helena Chadwick, who gives one of her finest performances as Fanny; Gaston Glass, H. B. Walthall, Kate Lester, Eleanor Boardman, May Wallace, Georgia Woodthorpe and Jean Hope. Cedric Gibbons, Goldwyn's art director, has designed some extremely beautiful sets for the picture, and the photography, by John Maxwell, is fascinating. "Gimme" is a comedy which will satisfy all admirers of Rupert Hughes' photoplays.

Also showing "A Woman's Vengeance," a two reel Western.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS SCORES ANOTHER SUCCESS

Richard Barthelmess, star of "Tollable David," proclaimed one of the three best pictures of the present season, will be the feature at the Arcade theatre today, Friday and Saturday in his latest First National attraction, "Sonny." This is the adaptation of the stage play by George Hobbart which ran so successfully on Broadway last fall and which was declared one of the most human stories ever dramatized.

Faustina Garson, who created the leading feminine role in the stage play, retains her part in the screen production by virtue of her excellent acting. Patterson Dial, who had an important part in Barthelmess' "The Seventh Day," has the role of a Red Cross worker, while the remainder of the cast includes Margaret Seddon, Lucy Fox, Herbert Grimwood, Fred Nichols, James Terrell, Margaret Elizabeth Faulconer and Virginia Magee.

Henry King, who directed the two previous independent Dick Barthelmess pictures, visited the megaphone for "Sonny" and the complete liaison between star and director promises in this instance as in the two previous releases, a perfect picture.

The story centers about the complications ensuing when Joe Peters, Holbrook's postroom proprietor, returns from the war to find himself taken for Sonny Crosby, who was killed in France. Sonny happened to be the last word in money and blue blood. Joe wouldn't have taken the job for anything, but there was Sonny's kind mother looking for the return of her boy.

Simple characterization and intensely human appeal are the outstanding features of a story of unusual interest.

Another aid to longevity is to be some hopeful young man's rich uncle. The only pal mthat thrives as well in cold countries is the one that riches.

"BROKEN CHAINS" TO BE SHOWN AT STAR FRIDAY

Can a born coward change his nature and become a hero, if not unafraid, at least unflinching?

Wintred Kimball believes he can. She embodied her belief in the form of a motion picture scenario and entered it in the Chicago Daily News $25,000 scenario contest. She told her story so well that the famous judges gave her entry the first prize of $10,000, picking it out of the 32,000 manuscripts submitted. The prize carried with it a production on an elaborate scale by Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, with a star cast.

Goldwyn has now made the picture, under the direction and personal supervision of Allen Holubar, and "Broken Chains" is coming to the Star Friday for three days. Everyone will want to see why this scenario captured the $10,000 prize. It is a great emotional photoplay with
