We used to think "dying a thousand deaths" was a stretching of poetic license, but that was before Lenin appeared on the scene.

A principle keeps the pacifist from fighting, but the militarist is quoted only by the interest.

WAS PUBLIC SCHOOL NOT COLLEGE

To the Editor:—An editorial in your paper of April 28th in regard to the "confession" of a Umatilla county youth that he burned Columbia College, an Advent institution, might confuse some of your readers who are at all acquainted with this part of the state. Columbia Junior College is unharmed and has the largest enrollment known in its history. It is an institution established and supported by the Methodist churches. The school which the boy burned was the Adventists' Public School of Milton-Freewater, a much smaller institution. This little correction will not, of course, tend to lessen the crime in any way, nor destroy the splendid moral of your article.

Sincerely yours,
E. E. ARANT,
Freewater, Ore.

Club leaders and others in charge of county delegations will act as supervisors for all those attending the school.

WOMEN SPEEDERS GET BY

RENO, Nev., May 1.—Chief of Police John M. Kirkley says the ladies are vanishing his officers and holds the fact that fewer women than men are taken into custody here.

"It is true," he declared in a recent interview, "that more men than women were arrested last year for careless automobile driving, but it hadn't ought to be that way. It is all because the police don't know how to handle the ladies.

"If a man gets stubborn we can handle him but if a lady refuses to be arrested, what are we going to do?"

Chief Kirkley asserts that Reno women don't make as good automobile drivers as men. "They're careless and irresponsible and they never know the traffic rules," he said.
