HOPE HAMPTON TRIUMPHS AGAIN IN PHOTOPLAY

"The Light in the Dark." Hope Hampton's First National starring vehicle, which begins a two days' engagement at the Arcade theatre, today, not only marks a new epoch in the technical history of motion picture photography, but as a production of great dramatic power and absorbing interest it is without a peer among anything of the kind thus far given the screen.

"The Light in the Dark" is an adaptation of William Dudley Pelley's novel of the same name. The plot revolves around the extraordinary influence that seems to come from a cup of queer design, found in an ancient English forest and brought to America. It is this influence that brings out the better side of an underworld character. It is the same influence that brings happiness into the drab existence of a girl, bravely struggling alone in New York. It is the instrument that clears up misunderstandings and effects the reconciliation of two lovers. And in a crushing climax the mystery of the cup goes to the bottom of the river with the thief who steals it.

A splendid cast helps Hope Hampton make "The Light in the Dark," a production of extraordinary merit. It included Dr. E. L. Chaney, Theresa Maxwell Conover, Dorothy Walters, Charles Mussett, Edgar Norton and Dore Davidson.

SHERRY'S—LAST DAY
ROBERT W. CHAMBERS' ROMANTIC NOVEL OF HISTORY
America's first big historical motion picture, the Great American picture, "Cardigan," based on the well known novel by Robert Chambers, America's foremost author.

"Cardigan" is one of the biggest historical pictures ever produced. It is 100 per cent American in theme—authorship—producer—direction—players and distribution. It is said to be the biggest, finest, most spectacular historical romance and drama ever screened on the soil of our own country. It was produced by Messmore Kendall, supervised personally by the author and directed by John W. Noble. Everybody in town will go to see it, like to talk about it and praise it. It has tremendous power as an educational film, but also has the necessary element to make it a wonderful romantic drama.

It tells a romantic love story between an Irish youth and a ward of an English governor who in 1774 organizes the subjects in America, and threads its way through the outbreak of the American Revolution. It is of such impelling power that it rouses an audience to the highest pitch of excitement and when it was shown for the first time at the Capitol theatre in New York, where it ran for two weeks, the audience cheered for ten minutes.

It has been pronounced the most authentic picture dealing with American history and has received the endorsement of the National Committee of Better Films, many prominent educators, ministers, public officials, spirited citizens and thousands of others.

Comedy showing, Larry Semon in "No Wedding Bells."

A banker is a man who goes to the office and works to get his mind off his golf score.

None of these endurance tests makes great impression on an experienced taxpayer.

THE HOME GARDEN

Green string beans cooked with pot roast are a favorite accompaniment of that dish. Another method which makes a savory dish is to cook the half-grown beans in veal stock. Use enough stock to cover the beans, add a branch of parsley finely-chopped and a half a bean of garlic. Season with salt and pepper; cook slowly in a lightly-covered dish for three-quarters of an hour. Serve with butter.

String beans, naturally divided into the two classes, green podded and wax podded, each have their devotees, although it must be said that of late the green podded sorts seem to have grown in popular favor, more because the wax podded sorts are so plain on the wax podded sorts and often they present an unappetizing appearance when spotted with the rust which the green podded sorts rust quite as readily.

There is also much difference of opinion as to the relative flavor of the wax and the green podded sorts. The difference, at any rate, is not very pronounced but there is a difference in quality of the straws of beans grown.

There are two types of pod, the flat podded and the round podded. It is maintained by some gardeners that the most brittle, stringless and productive type is the round podded. The stringless green podded bean is a good example of the round podded sort and its high quality is known especially in the improved strains.

The seed always should be procured from a seedsmen of known reliability and reputation as it is an easy matter to pick up cheap, inferior seeds and find a fine crop of stringy beans, although the seed packet was labeled "stringless."

Boundless is an excellent example of the flat podded bush type. It is of superb quality and goes a long way to dispute any claims of superiority for the round podded sorts.

Wax beans furnish the earliest of all the round podded sorts. Give the beans the warmest, driest part of your garden in soil that has been well fertilized. Plant the seed an inch deep and thin them to stand from six to eight inches apart in rows 30 inches apart. If the soil is rich they can even be planted as close as four inches apart but the greater distance is better. A row 15 feet long planted every week up to the last of July or first of August will keep an average family in beans for the greater part of the summer.

Never walk through a bean patch while the dew is on it or when it has rained. It will follow your trail. The beans should not be cultivated except when the vines are thoroughly dry.

Lumbago This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J. Dann, Brockport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house, and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and ache."—Adv.

THE DIFFERENCE IN A PINT OF MILK AND A PINT OF CREAM

It's true they both look alike in the bottle from the outside. They both weigh alike—and are both pints. BUT—There's a difference in the milk and cream. AND—There's a difference in the price. So it is with SUPERFINE Bread. Most bread looks alike in the wrapper. Most bread weighs about the same. Yet SUPERFINE Bread is like the cream—it costs more but it's worth more. Milk won't satisfy you when you want cream. Ordinary bread won't satisfy you—you want Macpherson's SUPERFINE BREAD. Always Clean Always Pure At Your Grocer's Ask the Folks Who Eat It
