BANKS SUED IN ACTION

(By Associated Press.)

BUTTE, Mont., May 16.—Two banks of Butte have been named as co-defendants in a divorce action.

Mrs. Florence M. Martin recently sued for separation from her husband and named the two financial institutions because, she alleges, her husband deposited with them money belonging to her, and she wants the separation decree to provide a judicial mandate that they pay her the money.

The Life Blood of Commerce

IS the credit that is pumped through the arteries of American business by our commercial banks. Banks don't make credit, they make it work. They vitalize commerce. This institution is proud to be a part of this great constructive force. We are eager to direct credit into those channels that will make it most beneficial to La Grande. You are cordially invited to discuss what this means to you.

Hammer

Pistons Down—This Non-Detonating
Gasoline

There are two ways in which gasolines explode. One explodes instantaneously—detonates. It hammers the piston down by a single, crashing blow. It has a tendency to explode prematurely, thus reducing compression in your cylinders and delivering less power. Detonation frequently causes "knocking," which you notice particularly on hills. The smashing blows increase vibration—which means more wear and tear.

The Sustained Thrust

Union Non-Detonating Gasoline explodes in a different way. The explosion is progressive and prolonged. It thrusts pistons down, delivering power throughout the entire stroke. It permits increased compression because compression is limited by the tendency of a gasoline to detonate. All authorities know that. And increased compression means increased power and efficiency.

Hill-Climbing "Gas"

With Union Non-Detonating Gasoline you'll note a new "lift" on hills and no "knocking" due to gasoline. There's new speed on the level and a swifter rush in the pickup. Sustained impulse reduces vibration—saves wear and tear. There's higher efficiency and more mileage, therefore, in a gasoline like this.

Union Non-Detonating Gasoline is the product of progressive refining methods. Its quality is governed by exhaustive tests. The research of able chemists, equipped with the finest facilities for studying refining methods, is constantly devoted to its improvement.
