LECTURER TO COME HERE

Jack West, Representative of the Pacific Division of the Red Cross, to Visit Here May 23 and 24.

Jack West, Special Life Saving Representative for the Pacific Division of the American Red Cross, will be in La Grande May 23 to 24. Arrangements have been made by La Grande Chapter for West to give demonstrations and lectures on Life Saving while in the city.

An expert life-saver he is a specialist on resuscitation, being an exponent of the Schafer prone pressure method, which is taught by all Red Cross Life Saving instructors. Having his association on 25 years of international experience in saving lives, West proclaims the Schafer method to be the quickest and most efficient way of restoring life to a person apparently drowned.

His association with the American Red Cross covers a period of two years, during which time he worked with the San Francisco Chapter as a volunteer, giving instruction and organizing and training Life Saving Corps.

West will visit the Red Cross chapters throughout Washington and Oregon, stimulating interest in the Life Saving Corps.

He will be at Central School at 9 A. M. Wednesday; Riveria at 1 P. M. Wednesday; Greenwood, 9 A. M. Thursday. He will also appear before the High School and the Boy Scouts.

FOUR L FIELD MAN IS HERE ON TOUR

H. E. Venosa, Four L field officer, of Portland, Oregon, is in La Grande at present on one of his periodical trips among the mills and camps of this vicinity. While here he called attention to an article in the 4t News letter relative to conditions in Eastern Oregon and Southern Idaho. The article reads:

Logging—In Eastern Oregon logging has been seriously interrupted by continued strikes, with some mills down on docters running at reduced capacity for lack of logs. There are no big reserve stocks of logs. Logs decked in the woods are coming out slowly.

Manufacturing—Demand for lumber is reported good and mills are shipping steadily. In some cases stocks of dry lumber are nearly gone. The Bowman-Hicks mill and the Baker White Pine mill are running two eight-hour shifts. The day crew of the Baker White Pine Co. celebrated May day by producing a record cut—150,000 feet in eight hours, and the night shift practically equaled the performance. The Boise-Payette Lumber Co. plants are in full operation, with its mills on two nine-hour shifts. Employment—There is plenty of work for those who wish to work. Mills are well supplied with help. Camps are running short-handed, with a probable shortage of wood workers during the summer.
