Why Not A Museum In La Grande?

No one dreamed that so many interesting curios of olden times would be exhibited in business houses of La Grande; no one thought there were so many in the entire Eastern Oregon country.

Where did they come from? From the homes of all. Everyone has joined most admirably in bringing forth heirlooms that are priceless to be viewed by those who are interested, and it has been a most wonderful display of hundreds of kinds of articles.

The thought has been suggested that a La Grande museum be established where everyone who owns an old heirloom should deposit the same with ownership tag and history of the article.

The city library would be an excellent place for such a museum. There every article would be safe and properly cared for, yet would be in a public place where those interested could view and study the exhibits.

Loyal To Chautauqua

La Grande and Union county demonstrated this week that loyalty to Chautauqua remains fervent and true.

This is positively refreshing in view of the many demands made upon people for financial support of public undertakings. But the support is given this worthy institution because it is worthy. La Grande is a Chautauqua town. Most of the children here have been raised on Chautauqua as the annual outing, and it has had a telling effect—an effect that insures permanency.

President Murphy of the association last evening announced a very attractive plan of attempting to unite different cities of the northwest and use northwest talent for the future. A splendid ideal. Talent such as we heard last evening—and it was La Grande talent—was so far superior to most of the circuit talent that comparison would be a crime.

However the plan works out is up to those in charge, but the big thing which the general public wants to know and rejoices in knowing is that Chautauqua is weathering the storm of readjustment and will continue to be the annual spring event for everyone.

CHAUTAUQUA CLOSURES WITH FINE PROGRAM

Dr. Murphy Speaks.

During the intermission Dr. Ray Murphy, head of the chautauqua board, spoke to the audience telling them of the success of the chautauqua this year, especially from the financial end, as it was not only possible to pay every bill this year but also to cut a debt of $1400 in half. Dr. Murphy also suggested that next year it might be possible to procure a chautauqua with Eastern Oregon artists and speakers as the star attractions. "Some of the best talent in the west is found right here in Eastern Oregon and the program delivered tonight is ample proof of the splendid ability of La Grande artists," he stated, "and La Grande is not alone in having talent of this class. For Baker, Pendleton and other Eastern Oregon cities have their performers and speakers that are rated just as highly."

He also stated that the price of season tickets at the 1924 chautauqua would be $10 instead of $12 as charged this year.

Would Seize Greek Ships.
LONDON, June 30. (AP)—Turkish authorities have notified the Allies that all Greek vessels coming to Constantinople will be seized, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Constantinople.

"Mere Bag of Gold"

LABORER AND EMPLOYER IS SPEECH TOPIC

chosen our land as a haven in which to assimilate the very institutions which shelter him."

A large part of Mr. Harding's address was devoted to a discussion of the change in the relation of woman to the social and political organization. The president said he was one of the "old-fashioned" people who would be glad if the way could be found to maintain the traditional relations of father, mother, children and home, but that very plainly these relations are in process of a "great modification."

"The most we can do, to the utmost possible extent," he said, "is to adapt our conditions of industry and of living so as to enable the mothers to make the utmost of their lessened opportunity for shaping the lives and minds of their children. We must hope, and we must make it possible, that mothers will not assume, when their babies of yesterday become the schoolboys and schoolgirls of today, that the responsibility of the mother is ended, and that the teacher, the school authorities, the college, the state, will henceforth assume it. "The mothers must be placed in such position that despite their obligations outside the home they shall not have to surrender their domestic responsibility toward the children of the land."

"The mother who tirelessly seeks rightly to train her own children, to instill into them that indefinable essence which we know as good breeding, will be performing this service not alone for her own children, but in only less measure for the children who come from homes less blessed with the finer things of life. Herein is the supreme advantage of the public school system. I have never been able to find much satisfaction in the good fortune of families who, when they are able to do it, prefer to take their children out of the public schools and give them the doubtful advantage of more exclusive educational methods. I think we should cling to the democracy of the public schools.

"In the home must still be performed the duty of instilling into the child those fundamental concepts of religion and of faith which are essential to rightly shaping the character of citizens, and therefore of the nation. Mankind never has stood more in need than it does now of the consolations and reassurances which derive from a firm religious faith. We are living in a time of many uncertainties, of weakened faith in the efficiency of institutions, of industrial systems, of economic hypotheses, of dictum and dogma in whatever sphere. Yet we all know that there are certain fundamental truths of life and duty and destiny which will stand eternal, through the evolution and the revolution of systems and societies founded by mankind. There must be no mistake whereby we shall confuse the things which are of eternity with those which are of time."
