SHERRY'S TODAY AND TOMORROW

Movie fans and those who are fond of the classics of the American stage are in for a treat when the famous old melodrama, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," is shown at the Sherry Theatre on Thursday and Friday. This famous old play has been made into a super special. The story of "Ten Nights in a Barroom" is familiar to almost everyone, as it enjoyed great success both as a novel and play. It has been on the boards for over sixty years and is said to have been played in every town and city in the country. Therefore, it is not surprising that the always enterprising movie producers found in it splendid material for a most unusual feature. L. Casa Russell, who wrote the scenario, has followed the story faithfully, only making such changes in the original story as the dictates of the screen required. Of course the wide range of the photoplay permits of a much more elaborate version than the stage could give. Such scenes as the log jam in a raging current, culminating in a thrilling climax in the rapids and the burning of the Inn are only possible since the advent of motion pictures. Even the most elaborate stage presentation could not hope to touch them for realism. Scenes such as those take months to make and cost a small fortune.

All of the old favorites are there. Joe Morgan, Simon Slade, Little Mary, Harvey Green, Willie Hammond, and all the rest of the fine characters. A unique excellent cast brings them to life with all their joys and sorrows. John Lowell plays Joe Morgan, the baby-faced villain is Little Mary. Others are Nell Clark Keller, Charles Mackay, James Phillips, Ethel Dwyer, Charles Beyer, Kempton Green, Lillian Kumbell, Robert Hamilton and many others. Also showing a comedy.

AT ARCADE, "HEART'S HAVEN"

Here is that ideal story you have so long waited for! At last—a story that will entertain and appeal equally to the younger generation, the grownups and the old folks! Here is a picture that will keep Bobbie and Mary from fidgeting and asking embarrassing questions. Here is a picture whose human characters live and love and share the same joys and sorrows as you and I. Here is a story that will not bore the old folks. And, above all, here is a clean, wholesome story that will entertain you, touch you, cheer you, inspire you and make you go away with a smile on your face and sunshine in your heart.

That ideal story is "Heart's Haven," Benj. B. Hampton's latest all-star production, adapted from the famous novel by Clara Louise Burnham, which will be shown at the Arcade theatre starting today.

"Heart's Haven," in brief, is a story of three generations, therefore appealing to the three generations of theatre goers. First, there is a love story of a rich, young and beautiful girl and young man who start poor and finally achieve success.

Then to the amazement of these young lovers, the older generation has a romance of its own. The heroine's father and the hero's mother were childhood sweethearts, years later, thrown together by fate, their old romance revives.

Thus we have young romance and middle-aged romance—but there are youngsters in the story, and they also have their romance—it is a tiny puppy. What happens to the girl and boy and the puppy is a matter of suspense and thrill. The child actors are Frankie Lee and Mary Jane Irving, two of the best known children of the screen.

A late Fox News reel will also be shown.
