STAGE SUCCESS COMING TO STAR THEATRE

The story of a child's faith in her mother, whom scandal brands as "Trimmed in Scarlet," comes to the screen of the Star theatre Wednesday as a Universal all-star photoplay of that title.

"Trimmed in Scarlet," written as a play by William Hurlbut, made a striking success on the New York stage with Maxine Elliott in the leading role. When it was purchased for film production Universal held it for a year before definitely deciding on the choice of director and players.

Kathlyn Williams will be seen as the branded mother and Lucille Ricksen, one of the screen's most popular ingenues, as the daughter. The impressive cast includes David Torrance, Roy Stewart, Robert Agnew, Phillips Smalley, Raymond Hatton, Gerard Alexander and others of popular fame. Jack Conway, directed.

"Trimmed in Scarlet" takes the tongue of scandal and their victim and presents a dramatic picture of one of the strangest situations the screen has known; the situation of a mother traveling the world over in search of adventure and coming back home to find a daughter who has not been estranged by the poisoned rumors that society has borne to her ears.

The Oregon Trail will also be shown Wednesday at the Star.

Walter Hiers, star of the Paramount comedy, "Sixty Cents an Hour," which opened at the Star theatre last evening, is a genuine comedian, as the fine reception accorded the picture amply proves.

This comedy is bright, thorough and scampers along merrily to a unique finish. The story is that of a soda-jerk, a fat young man working for a slim salary. One of Jimmy Kirk's ambitions is to take Mamie Smith, daughter of the bank president of Zavina, on a automobile ride. When he hires a touring car at the rate of sixty cents an hour, the whole family pile in, and Jimmy's day is spoiled. His second attempt, however, is much more successful, for this time he gets a roadster and rines off in triumph.

But a dark plot is brewing; crooks are on his trail, for under the seat of the very car in which he is speeding is a goodly quantity of silver coin, loot from the raided Zavina bank, and they are determined to get it. But this is a far harder task than they had anticipated, and soon they find themselves bound securely and deposited safely in the bottom of their car by the supple Jimmy, who returns to tell the police of his find. Then the fun begins. This comedy has a most amusing climax.

Jacqueline Logan, in the role of Mamie Smith, is more charming than ever. Richardo Cortez, Charles Ogle, Clarence Burton and others render efficient support.

Tonight is the last showing of "Sixty Cents an Hour" and most interesting Whirlwind Tale film at the Star theatre.

SHERRYS

Human Appeal and Humor Makes "Dollar Devils" Highly Amusing

In "Dollar Devils," the Victor Scherzinger production, which comes to the Sherry theatre today and tomorrow, there has been given to the screen one of the most human and appealing photoplays of the year. Produced and directed under the personal supervision of Victor Scherzinger, "Dollar Devils" represents a splendid example of all that is best in motion pictures.

Although it abounds in thrills and action, the real appeal in the picture is intensely human. The story is laid in the sleepy little town of Halloway. At the start the town is shown in all its contentment and happiness. Neighbors gather on the street or exchange gossip and discuss the events of the day. The general storekeeper is not so engrossed in the mad chase for dollars that he cannot close up shop on a sunny afternoon and see fishing. Zannon Carthy, a lovable old character, is seen driving about the town dispensing wit and philosophy.

Everything is serene and happy 'til suddenly a serpent enters this Eden, in the form of one Bruce Merly, a notorious crook. Having been transformed into a veritable mining town of the days of '49. Just how this is brought about and the ensuing complications, attendant on this change, makes an intensely human and appealing story.

There is a deep love interest plenty of suspense and many humorous and entertaining situations. It is all worked out to a logical and dramatic conclusion, which leaves one with the happy impression of having seen something worth while.

The cast is an excellent one, and is made up of Joseph Rowling, who achieved fame in "The Mirror's Man" and who is here seen in the role of Zannon Carthy. Eva Novak has the stellar feminine role. Cullen Landis, as Jim Higgins, an ambitious young engineer, has a part for which he is eminently fitted. The crook, Bruce Merly, is realistically portrayed by Hallam Cooley. Other members of the cast are Miles McCarthy, May Wallace, Lydia Knott and Roy Farrell. The setting and scenic effects have been produced with rare and artistic skill. Throughout it all there is a human atmosphere and true to life touch that places the picture in the category of one of the greatest productions of the year.
