

Local News In Brief

COMING EVENTS
 July 26.—Union County Pioneer annual meeting at Riverside Park.
 Aug. 5.—Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri Association picnic at Riverside Park.
 Sept. 25-29.—Union County Fair at Elgin.

In Farm Alike—Thomas Wallinger, of Alicel, superintendent of school district No. 46, was a business visitor at the county school superintendent's office today.

Guest From La Grande—Mrs. Joe Hendricks has as her guest Mrs. W. M. Peare, of La Grande. Mrs. Peare arrived today for a visit at the Hendricks home on the reservation—Pendleton Oregonian.

Visiting in City—W. M. Cues and family, formerly of this city but now making their home in Portland, are spending several days here visiting old time friends. They will leave for their home in Portland sometime the latter part of the week.

Visiting Parents—Mrs. Marion Holman, and baby son arrived in the city last evening and will spend a couple of weeks visiting here at the home of her mother, Mrs. Holman will be remembered by all of her friends as Lulu Mulkey.

Baby Daughter Arrives—Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Lyons are the happy parents of an eight pound daughter born July 11 at the Grande Ronde Hospital. The little girl has been named Janis May. Mrs. Lyons will be remembered as Miss Theira Oesterling.

Driving to Medford—Ed. Ford and Ed. Cyr left today by auto for Medford where they will be joined by Mrs. Ford who has been touring the state for several weeks and planning to take a trip into California but became slightly ill several days ago and has decided to postpone her trip to the more southern state until some other time.

This is a "Hail" of a Story—G. M. Curtiss, locomotive engineer, came in from Kamela today and he is what he pulled: "A. M. Mochan the day of the hailstorm I pulled my engine up to take water. The hail began to fall and I yelled to the fireman to get in the cab. About that time two hailstones as large as any hen egg produced on Dr. Phyl's chicken ranch came crashing through the cab window. The fun began. It seemed as though it would not quit. Volley after volley of those icy pellets whacked away until I began to think that something was going to happen. I looked out when the storm subsided a poor old Ford cab standing in front of the Mochan hotel looked like it had been through a world war battle." When asked if there was any truth in the report that hail fell so terrifically at Kamela that the roof of Martin King's house was pierced a bottle of rare old beverage concealed in a hand grip was broken. Mr. Curtiss shook his head saying: "I am telling no tales on Mayor King. Just where he kept his private supply is not known to me and I refuse to be questioned further."

 for recognition right away," prohibition be passed over, but expressed himself as for a soldiers' bonus payable out of excess profits.
 With the election of Johnson assured, no concerted effort was made by state tabulation headquarters to bring in the missing precincts, but when 5721 of the state's 3520 precincts had reported Johnson had a lead of 67,479.
 In those precincts the farmer-laborite polled 248,060 votes, as compared to 189,273 garnered by Governor Preus and 17,161 for James A. Carley, Democrat.
"Fine," Says LaFollette.
 MADISON, Wis., July 8.—Senator LaFollette, informed that Magnus Johnson had defeated Gov. J. A. O. Preus for United States senator from Minnesota, said Tuesday: "Isn't that fine, that is a magnificent victory in behalf of the people."

Gompers Pleased.
 WASHINGTON, July 18.—President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor Tuesday sent a telegram to Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor senator-elect, saying the people of Minnesota were to be congratulated on their choice in Monday's election.

Harding Disappointed.
 CURRY, Alaska, July 18.—News of the election of Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Labor candidate, to the senate from Minnesota, over Governor Preus, was received by President Harding Tuesday morning, when his special train on the Alaskan railroad was stopped here for breakfast.

The chief executive read the Associated Press dispatches saying Governor Preus had conceded his defeat and giving returns from about half the state, but he would make no comment for publication on the grounds that the voters of Minnesota had spoken, and any statement from the president would be unseemly.
 It was obvious that the president was greatly disappointed.

Accepts Secretaryship.
 PENDLETON, July 18.—C. I. Barr, for more than two years secretary of the Pendleton Commercial association has resigned to accept an offer of the secretaryship of the Astoria Chamber of Commerce. The fact that he would return to Astoria to seek up the reins he laid down there to come to Pendleton were practically assured several days ago, but no definite statement was made until a telegram was received today by the East Oregonian from Mr. Barr authorizing the statement of his resignation.

VISITS ASYLUM, PENITENTIARY

 among the insane was very noticeable, nearly all the women were along in years. We wondered if many of these women were there by ingratitude of their children, who would not care for them in their declining years. It was a sad and depressing sight to see so many old women inmate from whatever the cause, but there comes the comforting thought that they are well cared for by the state. They were all plainly and neatly dressed.

"In the bakery, the help was busy and hundreds of loaves of bread, of all sizes, were cooling ready to use. Much of this work is done by the inmates watched by competent overseers. The laundry was working overtime and huge piles of cleanly washed clothes testified how clean that line was kept.

"We visited the sewing, tailoring and different workshops and everything was made easy as can be for these poor inmates. It is encouraging to see the work done by these poor people; fine baskets, sewing and other things which were very nice, indeed. Most of the living rooms are furnished nicely and everything is made easy as can be for these poor people. Anyone having friends or relatives at the asylum may rest assured that every care and attention is being given them and they are being better off at the asylum than at home.

Visits Penitentiary.
 "We walked one-half mile to the penitentiary and got there about noon. The gentlemen in the crowd were called to one side and taken over the place. The ladies were shown over part of it, but as there were so many ladies and very few men, we didn't get to see many prisoners. We were shown the cells. The inmates were out on the farm. What we did see were dressed in brown khaki like any other man. The warden told us there were four hundred and fifty men and four women confined within the walls. Seven towers on the high walls are manned by guards with loaded guns. There is not much chance for escape. It seemed to us. Some good paintings were shown us as the handiwork of the prisoners.

"This visit did not take as long as the asylum and a hungry crowd longed to see the search of lunch and spent some time satisfying the inner man and we got a very poor lunch at Salem.

"We went all over the State Capitol building and had the pleasure of meeting Chief Justice McBride in his room. We got to see him and give him a cheer, but on account of just recovering from a siege of illness he didn't make us a talk, as we hoped he would.

"We called on Governor Pierce, but as it was late, he must have gone to his lunch and he missed one of the greatest sights of his life, if that fact, we are sure.
 "In the afternoon, the crowd broke up into bunches and went to the different places. We went out to visit the school for the blind. It was closed for the summer and was being repaired for the coming year. All we got to see was the grounds which showed taste and care. After standing on the steps of the Capitol Building for some pictures to be taken, we took a well earned rest and at four o'clock our special train started for home. We had one of the best lessons in civics and sociology and one that will stay with us all our lives.
 "We are glad we are teachers and will now labor more earnestly to help our pupils to live better."

LA GRANDE GETS LUMBER MILL

 orchestra played "Stars and Stripes Forever." Before being seated the entire gathering led by Elmer J. Stoddard and George S. Birnie, sang "Auld Lang Syne."
 An exquisite fried chicken dinner was served by Mrs. Ingrid of the County club, with the following menu:
 Melon Cocktail
 Fried Chicken
 Lemon Ice
 New Potatoes in Gravy
 Creamed New Peas
 Hot Rolls
 Pickles, Olives, Green Onions
 Radishes
 Jello Vegetable Salad
 Ice Tea
 Coffee
 Nabisco Wafer Sundae
 Chianti
 This menu was printed on a high finished pine board instead of the usual cardboard, indicative of the lumbering industry and highly appropriate and in harmony with the occasion.

Former Event Recalled

Acting as toastmaster, Bruce Dennis, of the Evening Observer, recalled an occasion of ten years ago when August J. Stange, who was then living in La Grande, was called to Merrill, Wisconsin to complete a business campaign which had been mapped out by the Stange interests. Before removing from this city a dinner was given in his honor at the Palmy hotel and during the evening resolutions were adopted wherein La Grande made a loan to the A. H. Stange Lumber Company of Merrill of one August J. Stange administering that company to shorten the time of his absence and return him to La Grande, his chosen home in the west. This document was signed by the business men of this city and presented to the Stange Lumber Company of Merrill.

When the business campaign which Mr. Stange took over in Merrill was completed last year, he immediately began to plan to come home to La Grande and the Stange Lumber Company issued a communication under corporate seal of the company to the people of La Grande setting forth that the loan of August J. Stange had been acknowledged, that constant heckling by the said party to be permitted to return to La Grande, and that the desire to repay the loan by the company caused that concern to return Mr. Stange to La Grande stipulating it in the document. This was also read by the toastmaster, and then he followed with an "Official Receipt" which had been prepared by the bankers last evening. In this receipt due acknowledgment was made of the return of the borrowed person, and sentiment was also conveyed to Mr. A. H. Stange of the appreciation of having his son a permanent resident of La Grande, of having the family name enrolled in the educational and civic institutions of this city, closing with the hope expressed that La Grande may yet be the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stange as well as the home of their son and his estimable family.

some into in some detail by T. J. Scroggin, cashier of the United States National bank, who spoke on the subject, "La Grande's Sound Financial Position." He told how the banking institutions had run for years in a conservative and safe manner and how they had emerged from every period of the nation's financial history stronger by continuing their careful yet fair methods.

Again the party relaxed into the slaying mood when Mr. Stoddard and Mr. Birnie led a special procession for the event.

Commissioner C. J. Black spoke to the toast, "Officially Speaking" and he in firm language expressed the attitude of the city commission in being ready to support any move that would assist in locating the Mr. Emily Timmer Company's plant in this city. He was followed by E. L. Meyers, cashier of the La Grande National bank, who presented well prepared statistics on the business of the city in a number of lines. In a vein of good humor he reviewed his arrival in La Grande thirty years ago, and then compared the different epochs of development covering his subject, "La Grande's Steady Growth" in a most admirable manner.

"La Grande as a Lumber Center" was reviewed by Earl Stoddard of the Grande Ronde Lumber company in a way that impressed everyone with the knowledge of a young man who has been raised in the lumber business. He issued a strong welcome to the Stange interests to locate here.

H. N. Ashby, manager of the Howman-Hicks Lumber company, told why his company had come to the northwest from the southeast and spoke of the bright future ahead for every community that has been blessed with forests nearby. He mentioned some extensions and developments which his company is planning that will increase the pay rolls, and closed his remarks by urging Mr. Stange to locate here and bespeaking a friendly and neighborly feeling among all the mills in La Grande territory.

Diverting from the subject of lumber for an instant, W. E. Moore, of the White Pine Box and Lumber company, gave a very classical tribute to water. He likened it into many beautiful things but insisted at the close of his talk that regardless of the Volstead act or the Eighteenth amendment, water remained a mighty poor beverage.

 F. J. Johnson, proprietor of the Union Box Company of La Grande, further extended the hand of welcome to the new mill. He told of his pilgrimage to La Grande when he heard of a box factory that was not working in this city, how he had purchased it and started in a very small way a year or so ago and how his box business had grown until his pay roll reaches $2500 a month with assurance of better things in the future.

County commissioner Hutchinson brought the greetings of the town of Union and pledged his support to the proposed new mill as a member of the county court. City Commissioner Brownson likewise took the loyal stand that was taken by Commissioner Black. City Manager Hayes told of his arrival in La Grande a few months ago and expressed a regret that he had not come here a number of years sooner for he said, "It is the best city of its size on the coast."
 "Welcoming a New Industry" was the subject assigned G. L. Larison, president of the La Grande Chamber of Commerce. The speaker made a strong argument for this city and indulged in the science of salesmanship to impress everyone with the data which he produced. His picture of the future was vivid and almost alluring. Mr. Larison did not speak for the Chamber of Commerce because the banquet was not given by the Chamber, it being just a business men's gathering to honor a friend and engage in argument conducive to improvement of La Grande to the extent of urging the location of another industry.

When the arguments had been made; when seemingly every feature of La Grande as a good saw mill location had been laid bare, the toastmaster asked the guest of honor, Mr. A. H. Stange, to respond to the cordial and friendly features of the evening, but to disregard the saw mill question for no one expected a verbatim and sincere in argument conducive to improvement of La Grande to the extent of urging the location of another industry.
 The speaker paid a high tribute to this city, to its people for the manner in which they do things, to the harmony and oneness of purpose of all, and fervently thanked each and every one for the kindliness shown himself and his family. Referring to the loan made ten years ago to his lumber company of August J. Stange by the city of La Grande he said his confidence had now returned his son to the city as a citizen among those whom he loved.

 "However, I feel that our obligation has hardly been entirely discharged even with the receipts and documents which have passed this evening," said Mr. Stange. "To me it seems that to close this transaction as it should be closed with myself acting as judge of this momentous question, that instead of delaying my verdict as to locating the plant two more days as I had intended to do, in order to get into some other matters, I might as well decide this question at this banquet table."

There was a stillness that was almost oppressive. Every guest listened with utmost eagerness. The moment was tense as the speaker continued by saying, "an judge permit me to say that you businessmen of La Grande have made a good case for your city, your argument has been convincing and I will say that the plant will be located on the old fair grounds site in the city of La Grande."
 It was then that loud cheering followed and the banqueters, convinced of the positiveness of Mr. Stange's statement, began shaking hands with each other in a grateful manner.
 The happy occasion closed with the entire party singing "Oregon, My Oregon."
