No. Skyrocketing "Sales" Here!

We do not give orders to take quality out of goods to enable us to reduce prices, but consider the nimble nickel better than the slower moving dime; believing in holding up qualities and giving full measure even at smaller prices.

We find ourselves better off by reason of the larger volume of our business.

A "Clearance Sale" is unnecessary here because of the fact that goods are constantly moving—coming and going—never remaining in our Store long enough to grow old and undesirable.

Any other kind of "sale" is largely a "make-believe," a storekeeping method tabooed by progressive merchants.
