To Attend Buyers week—Clint Van Fleet left last evening for Portland to attend the 11th annual Buyers Week. Mr. Van Fleet is also a member of the executive committee of Oregon Retail Merchants which will also meet in the metropolis this week. Ernest Watkins will leave tonight as a representative of Hill's Department Store.

Moody Bible Class Meets—The Moody Bible Study Class will meet at the home of Mrs. Charley Cain, 1409 E. Street tomorrow afternoon, August 8, at 2:30 o'clock. The subject will be current events in the religious world, the translation of Tiliab, the miracles of Elisha his successor, including associated facts in history of Israel. All are welcome to attend these classes.

Will Go to the Coast—Tomorrow Joseph Keeney and his wife and Kenneth Keeney and his wife will leave for Newport, Oregon where all but Joe will spend several weeks. He will remain there a few days and then return to Portland to attend the D. O. K. K. convention.

MANICURES NOT TO STEAL THEM

(By I. N. S.)
 BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Jersey City may issue an edict compelling manicures to wear long sleeves and wash their faces instead of using powder, but the manicures of Boston will have none of it.
 "Laws or no laws, we will dress as we please in Boston, and will put on all the sweet smelling powder we wish," is the general summary of the opinions of a large number of manicure ladies questioned on the subject here.
 "There is no reason why we should wear uniforms and look palid and act like Pilgrimage maidens," said one manicure. "We will not steal any husbands. Most men when they want treatment for beauty go to the barber shops. That's the place for them anyway. If there is any move here to follow in the footsteps of Jersey City there will be a concerted howl and many violators."

SPORTSMEN'S ANNUAL FISH DINNER GOOD

 Oregon Sportsmen Association.
 Nominations offered by the committee were: Al Andrews, president; Nate Zweifel, vice president; Howard O'Brien, secretary; treasurer, L. A. Wright, J. D. Dobbin, M. E. Walsinger and W. C. Kelley, directors.
 Election followed by unanimous vote. Prizes were then awarded as indicated in the foregoing paragraph of this article.
 Garfield Holm secured the hard luck prize which was a shirt offered by Westenhaver & Gilbert, and then the banqueters demanded that a full explanation be given by Mr. Holm who told of his fishing experiences.
 Judge Knowles then offered a resolution requesting the game commission to back up on some of its restrictions in order to conform to the state laws. The resolution was adopted.
 Governor Pierce and State Game Warden Berglund were extolled in the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted.
 Resolved that the Wing Pin and Fleetfoot club of Union County at its Annual Fish does hereby express renewed faith in the Oregon plan of handling the wild life of the state and to it further resolved that we as a sportsmen's organization do hereby express our confidence in Governor Pierce as an official whose acts and desires are plainly for the best interests of the game and fish perpetuation and that we do unanimously agree in extending confidence to our present State Game Warden, Capt. Berglund, whose untiring efforts in behalf of consistent game regulation have convinced us that he is a man especially adapted to the office he holds and one whose acts reach far above political influences and are directed towards wild life perpetuation in Oregon so that present and future generations may appreciate and enjoy the best sports this great national park holds namely, its fish and game.
 It is further resolved that the sportsmen that sign against hunting and trespassing were being freshly created over the valley for the reason that the privileges had been abused, and then he proceeded to deliver a sermon to hunters which was loudly "amended" by Game Warden Waiden relative to the manner in which some hunters abuse the courtesies extended them by farmers and condemned the wild shooting in uninhabited communities.

 The banqueters adjourned after smoking repeatedly on the La Grande National Bank and Herman Roesch.

SORROW OVER OHIO AMONG ALL PEOPLE

 the funeral cortege even as they tried to make a path for the train of mourning.

As the train reached the railroad yards, where it transferred from the Chicago & Northwestern railroad to the Baltimore—Ohio to continue its long journey from the Golden Gate to the capitol, traffic was halted for blocks at every street intersection and the people were massed so densely along the right of way that the train could only creep and at times stopped altogether.

It was probably the greatest demonstration for a public figure the city has ever witnessed and can compare only with the reception accorded the body of a former chief executive brought here—Abraham Lincoln, in 1865.

Not only did the people gather in the hot dusty yards and stand for hours wedged so tightly together that they could scarcely breathe, but they were joined by the hundreds from windows and from house tops. Every point of vantage had its complement of mourners.

Train Behind Schedule.
 Due to the great crowds that thronged about the funeral train as it reached the more densely populated cities of Iowa and Illinois, the cortege entered Chicago shortly before 6 o'clock, over two and one-half hours behind schedule. It departed at 7:15 o'clock nearly four hours behind the estimated running time.

The formal demonstration of the city's sorrow was made through an aldermanic committee which took a wreath aboard the train, bearing the inscription "Chicago's sympathy." The wreath was presented to Secretary of Commerce Hoover by Acting Mayor Martin J. O'Brien.

The train paused in its transcontinental trip only long enough for the change of engines and the necessary operating delays, due to the crowds, however, it was here for a little over an hour moving along at a snail's pace most of the time. Besides the city's floral offering, many other floral pieces were put aboard the train here.

As the train bearing the president's body moved along, those watching from the train saw the sorrowful faces of the thousands with all eyes directed toward the last coach where lay the body of the nation's chief and where rode the widow. Tears trickled down the cheeks of men and women as the funeral cortege passed. Little children followed the train as it moved down the tracks, some of them sobbing.

Great Throngs Quiet.
 Despite the great throngs, and it was estimated that those who saw the funeral cortege as it passed Chicago numbered anywhere from 200,000 to 300,000 persons, there was scarce a sound as the train rolled slowly by. People stood with heads uncovered and almost breathless as they witnessed the spectacle for which some of them had stood along the dusty, hot and uncomfortable right of way for more than four hours.

In making the trip through Chicago the train passed through the sections commonly designated by the nationalities inhabiting them. It was a significant fact that through these quarters of the city, so often termed "foreign," the train was met by the same sorrowing thousands that greeted it elsewhere. Italians, Poles, Greeks, Jews, Germans, negroes, Slavs—they were all Americans mourning the passing of Warren G. Harding as the funeral cortege swept by.

Mrs. Harding, at a window in the rear coach near the casket of her husband, for a while watched the endless throngs, the sympathetic sorrowed faces of the crows, the tear-stained faces of men and women and little children. She must have felt that no living president in the country's history ever drew his countrymen to his side as did Warren G. Harding in death.
 Two standard Pullman coaches laden with floral offerings to a point which made passage through them by the train crew impossible, gave mute testimony of the outpouring of love which has been America's response to the death of its leader all the way from the Golden Gate to the city on the shores of Lake Michigan.

ON BOARD HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN AT CHICAGO. (By the Associated Press)—The heart of America—the great prairie region between the Missouri river and Lake Michigan—was filled anew with sorrow Monday as the funeral cortege of the republic moved eastward thru the states of Iowa and Illinois, and then onward toward Washington.
 Leaving Council Bluffs, on the banks of the Missouri, the early morning hours, the special train bearing the body of President Harding traveled eastward to arrive late in the day at Chicago. Transferred from the Chicago and Northwestern railroad to the Baltimore and Ohio, here, it sped eastward into the darkness on the last portion of the long and sad journey from the Golden Gate.

Never in the history of any nation, perhaps, have such scenes of poignant sorrow for the dead and such manifestations of deep sympathy for bereaved loved ones been witnessed as during the day when countless thousands marked reverently the passing of the funeral train. To those aboard the train it seemed as though the American people had moved into the two states traversed and were standing silently with uncovered and bowed heads. Eyes grew misty and throats choked at the unconcealed display of emotion by a stricken people.

Changeable Gold and Bronze.
 Paris.—Changeable gold and bronze ribbon is popular today as a trimming for summer hats. Little hats in soft pastel shades are trimmed with large bows and knots of this material.

FRENCH WORKER HOLDS RECORD FOR WHISTLING
 (By I. N. S.)
 PARIS, Aug. 7.—Jules Reynier, young workman of Trans, in the south of France, today holds the world's non-stop whistling record. Reynier whistled continuously for ten hours and one minute, at the same time rolling scores of games of duck pins. Reynier stopped whistling only long enough to drink five schooners of beer and ended by whistling the "Marseillaise" while the spectators applauded.

Until Reynier's successful attempt the record was held by Georges Trétois, of Rougers, whose time was slightly more than eight hours.

One reason why Sunday means more to small-town people is because it affords their one excuse for dressing up.
