FAMOUS STAGE PLAYS

"The Hero" Another Valuable Property Made by Preferred—Plans More Like It.

The presentation of "The Hero" which the Sherry Theatre is presenting is in line with the announcement made some time ago by Preferred Pictures that they intended filming in special productions meritorious plays which have proven more than ordinary successes on the New York stage.

"The Hero" probably received more universal praise than any other production on Broadway last season. It is the work of Gilbert Turey, playwright; actor and novelist, Burns Mantle, dramatic critic of the Chicago Tribune and the New York News, for inclusion in his year book of the stage, "The Best Plays of 1921-22."

The direction of the piece is credited to Gasnier who it will be remembered transferred to a film version Otis Skinner's "Kismet." A distinguished cast headed by Gaston, Glass, Barbara La Marr, John Sainpolis and David Butler. Also showing a Sport Review.

RIVALS HISTORIC DELUGES

Man Made Torrent More Sensational Than Real Disasters.

A man-made flood that will at least rival and probably surpass the greatest deluge in history will be seen in the William Fox special production, "The Town that Forgot God."

A whole town, built especially for the purpose of being destroyed by the torrent, is washed away. Everything is swept before it, houses, barns, trees, inhabitants of the village and livestock of all kinds, not to mention a half dozen cameramen who were swept from their platforms while the scenes were being made.

No city in history was so completely demolished as "The Town that Forgot God." Even Johnstown, Pa., which was virtually destroyed by water on May 31, 1889, when a dam gave way, permitting the mass of water more than twenty feet in height to rush through the town, was not wrecked in as spectacular a fashion as this typical American village.

Even if motion pictures were available of all the great floods of history, including the Johnstown deluge, the more recent Dayton, O., catastrophe or the Galveston, Tex., disaster, it is doubtful if it would be any more thrilling or realistic than the one staged by Harry Millarde for the William Fox photodrama.

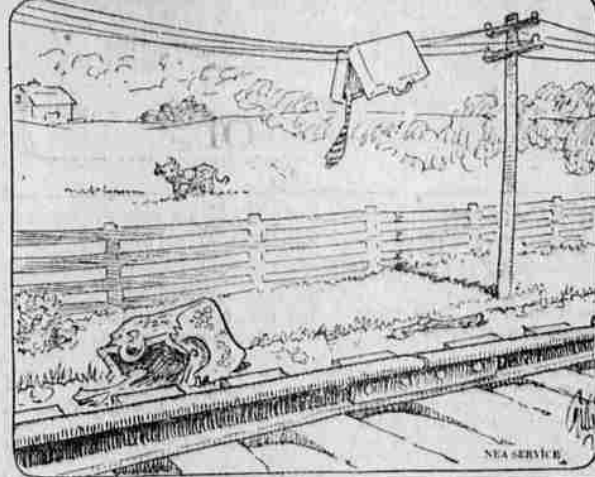

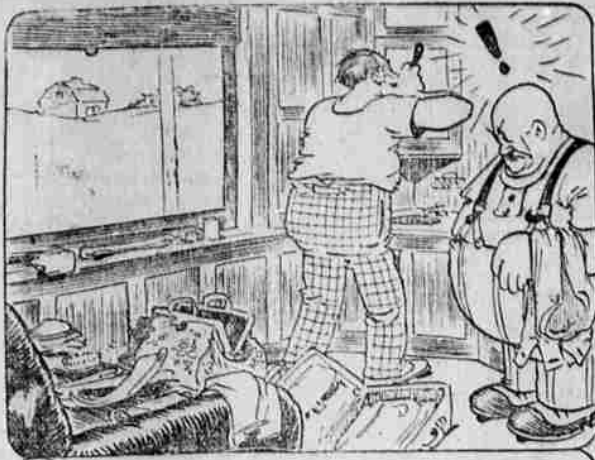

When this picture plays its opening engagement at the Astor Theatre in New York City the audience actually stood and applauded the thrilling climax formed by the terrific storm and flood scenes.

In addition to the torrent of water there is a terrific storm raging throughout the time the rushing waters are tearing the village to bits. This adds greatly to the realism and forms a scene that few people will believe is not the actual raging of the elements.

The village, which is destroyed by the storm and flood, was built in a valley across the Hudson River from New York City. Underneath the ground throughout the town a concrete base was laid to prevent the water from seeping into the ground before the scenes could be completed.

Nearly a score of cameramen were used in the making of the scenes, but six of these were thrown into the torrent when the platforms upon which they were standing were toppled over by the rushing waters. In a few minutes after the dam was destroyed the temporary town was under water.

EVERETT TRUE Ry Condo

Even the most blasé motion picture producer attending the spectacle admitted that it was the most realistic and thrilling sight he had ever seen staged for a photodrama.

"The Town that Forgot God" will be shown at the Star theatre today.

Same Old Story But a Good One. Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles."—adv.
