Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated poisons commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that acted and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenshin, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense Allenshin with the understanding that if the first bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment. Red Cross Drug Company will supply you. Mail orders accepted.

MENNONITES TO SETTLE IN RICH MEXICO VALLEY

(By J. N. S.)

LAREDO, Tex., Aug. 14.—Within a short time 4,000 Mennonites from Canada and South Dakota will pass through Laredo on their way to their new home in a beautiful valley in the southern part of the State of Coahuila, Mexico. Eight representatives, including a bishop, of these Mennonites have but recently returned from this valley, where they bought outright large tracts of land and secured options on others, amounting in all to 1,200,000 acres. Beyond Saulte, the capital of Coahuila, the main line of the National Railroad traverses a long stretch of desert country which is bounded on the west by a chain of mountains. About midway of this desert there is a railroad water station known as Ajio Nueva. Directly west of the water station, on the opposite side of the mountains, there is one of the most beautiful valleys imaginable, traversed by numerous ever-flowing rivers and streams and dotted with many small crystal lakes. The climate of this beautiful valley cannot be exceeded anywhere in Mexico nor is it possible to find more productive soil and in which, with the aid of irrigation (not always needed), anything that grows in a tropical or a semi-tropical country can be grown throughout the year and in the greatest abundance.

Valuable Forests.
 The valley has magnificent forests of different varieties of native trees, while at least forty different kinds of fruits can be grown there. The establishment of this new colony from the North will mean much for Mexico in more ways than one. Among other things it will mean the diverting of the main line of the National Railway without increasing, perceptibly, the distance from Laredo to Mexico City. Beyond Saulte the National traverses for a long distance a desert section of the country which produces no traffic for the road. This desert is on the east side of a chain of mountains that divides it from the "Valley of the Serranites," which is now without railroad facilities; so the National will throw its line to the west side of the mountains, traversing this beautiful valley and coming back to the main line at a point farther south.

To Dig Own Grains.
 To make this change will require a new railroad grade of approximately 100 miles, but the Mennonites have agreed to do the grading at their own expense and their offer has been readily accepted by the National line. The diverting of the railroad from the desert side of the mountains to the valley on the west side will not materially increase the distance to Mexico City, while at the same time it will add so vastly to the tonnage of the railroad that it cannot be approximated now in figures. Soon after the railroad first went built, the builders realized that a fatal mistake had been made in not building the railroad to the west of the chain of mountains instead of traversing the great desert section on the east, which has been only a source of expense to the road without a possibility of its ever giving anything in return. After these many years the mistake is at last to be corrected.

The beginning of the movement of the 4,000 Mennonites from Canada and South Dakota has not yet been definitely fixed, but it will be in the very near future, and possibly the first movement will be made early in the fall, as the Mennonites, according to their representatives, are more than anxious to see their new El Dorado and are impatiently waiting for the command to begin their movement to the South.

Same Old Story But a Good One.

Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles."—adv.
