Solid Defense Helped To Win Giant Success

Thirty-nine Errorless games Seem to Show Pitching Isn't Necessary; Fielders Save Twirlers.

By DAVID J. WALSH, International News Service Staff Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Granting that a sound defense doesn't win ball games, merely saves them, it is nevertheless a fact to daily with the New York Giants had played thirty-nine errorless games, no less up to and including August 15. At that moment the club was 2-12 games in front of the second runner and some were pleased to observe that hitting was the answer, since it is no Masonic secret that Giant pitching is a very sad affair, indeed.

However, it was simply a case of the punch in the batting order securing enough runs to win games and the infield and outfield defense preventing the pitchers from being scored upon often enough to lose something already won. The defense, in brief, had its moments.

Better still, many of them came in big series. The Pirates and the Reds happen to be the Giants' most likely rivals in any. Facing this sort of solid pitching during the season, the Giants turned in a series of errorless games, nine against the Pirates and seven at the expense of the Reds. That kind of hitting means many an unexcused start took the form of a "hit."

Incidentally, the Giants' errorless hitting record is not the longest in the history of the game. The Philadelphia Athletics, in 1901, had a record of 37 errorless games. The Philadelphia Athletics, in 1901, had a record of 37 errorless games.

Twice in recent months have the champions played four successive errorless games. Twice have they played errorless doubleheaders. Can you be? H. Sit with a horse whip.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 22.—(A. P.)—Eighteen players of the University of Utah champions of the Rocky Mountain football conference have been summoned to report for scrimmage on September 15. The call was sent to forty players, including the remaining member of last year's team and those of the freshman team who showed good form.

Frank Fitzpatrick has a wealth of outdoor sports which to him are 1922 matches. The prospect for a winning team being brought together than had other time in the University's history. The Utah center expressed confidence in the local school's chances to again win the conference championship. Utah's first game this year will be against Williamstown on Oct. 3.

Berlin Theaters Feature Pinellas of Gendie Sex. BERLIN, Aug. 22.—(A. P.)—Lady boxes are star attractions at the cheaper variety houses in Berlin, and attract many tourists to those places of amusement. There are several in various suburbs and some have and they box with great vigor.

One of the best-known female boxers has a nose which is badly deformed from having been broken, and another has a cauliflower ear.

Most of the female pugilists are young and extremely active. They are about as widely as many of the men who pose as professional boxers, for the art of boxing is not highly developed in Germany.

AN EVERLASTING "GIRLHOOD" SEEN

LONDON, Aug. 22, (A. P.)—The rejuvenation of women as well as men, and without the aid of the beauty doctor and the dressmaker, has been promised by Dr. Voronoff, the famous monkey gland expert. Dr. Voronoff explained during the recent International Surgical Congress that he was making experiments at the present time, and expected to be able to announce the secret of everlasting girlhood about November.

The announcement that he expected to make grandmothers into debutantes caused a sensation among the delegates, and many of them were frank in saying that they believed it utterly impossible. In fact some of them said he ought not to do it, one prominent social worker of London declaring: "What the doctors should do is to find some means of preserving the strength of women of seventy, so that they could give the benefit of their ripe experience to those in need of it."

BRITAIN UPSET OVER MODERN GIRL'S "SENSE"

By E. A. Wary, International News Service Staff Correspondent. LONDON, Aug. 22.—Have the women of this generation less restraint, less sense of what is decent and becoming than the women of, say, two generations ago?

That is the essence of the controversy which, begun by Lady Diana Manners, is now agitating Britain. Lady Diana Sutton, wife of England's most famous surgeon, answers the query with a distinct "Yes." "To me," she says, "it is a perfectly sober and justifiable accusation."

"Lady Diana," continues Lady Sutton, "seems more concerned with the manners than the morals of modern girls. I am glad of that, because I hold no particular brief for the girl of my own girlhood. I do not claim that she was, in a sense, any better than the girl of today. But when it comes to the question of manners it is a very different story."

"O Tempora! O Mores!" "Lady Diana tells us that there has been no change at all. 'Things have always been the same,' she says, 'and always will be to the end of time.' Such an assertion strikes me as at the more remarkable since I happen to write immediately after witnessing the revival of a play which burst on the horizon twenty years ago as a comet of improbability. It is now regarded as a highly respectable south."

"I remember well when it was produced. It was discussed with bated breath, and the heroine was regarded as a monster of wickedness. Today no young woman would turn a hair at its most thrilling passages. 'Therefore I think it is safe, at any rate, to assume that modern girls are different. 'What, then, are our criticisms? To me the most distressing thing about the modern girl is that, even though she is beautiful, she appears to desire to give the impression of guilt. There may have been plenty of foolish girls in the last generation, but they had at least the decency to disguise their folly. They did not flaunt it on the house tops."

On Points of View. The modern girl, for example, considers it deplorable to miss the point of a ruse story. Her mother would have regarded it as deplorable to see it. The girl makes a point of going to dance unaccompanied, even when her partner begs her to do so. Her mother would have insisted on a chaperon, even if her whole soul had been crying out for an hour alone with her partner.

The modern girl, even when her lips are red as roses, plasters them with artificial scarlet because she believes it smart. Even had her mother's lips been white as snow she would have avoided using cosmetics, because she would have considered them vulgar.

She drinks cocktail after cocktail, although she loathes them, because otherwise she will be regarded as out of fashion. But though her mother had been a teetotaler, the girl would not have avoided turning her back into a saloon, and not advocating temperance.

I do not say that everything is unprofitable so long as it gives an innocent pleasure in the Art than even so long as the face which meets the world is demure, the eyes demure, then the thoughts behind it do not matter.

But it does seem to me obvious that if a woman persistently behaves as though she were deplorable she will presently become so. That is the danger to which the modern girl constantly is subjected. It may remain a pose to the stronger nature; to the weaker it rapidly becomes a reality."

DOYLE VISIONS SPIRITS' AID IN CRIME PROBES

LONG LAKE, N. Y., Aug. 22.—The Sherlock Holmes of the future—in fact, even the plain, every day detective of the day to come—will depend to a great extent upon guidance from the spirit world in the solution of crime. Particularly will this be true in crimes involving loss of human life.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, and the champion of photographs of the spirit world, photographs that have aroused a storm of controversy, sponsored the following.

Sir Arthur was interviewed at a local hotel, while resting from a lecture tour. Guidance from the spirit world, he says, is now being received. Why should that help not be applied to the solution of crime? Particularly so when the spirit of the murdered is enlisted in the hunt and a practical means of communication is established with it.

Just what weight the average American jury would give to such testimony Sir Arthur neglected to state. In fact, there was a broad hint that American juries have been noted for disregarding testimony of what "ambiguities" call real value in favor of sentiment.

However, Sir Arthur likes the country. The lecture tour has been satisfactory. Even the American flapper meets with the approval of the distinguished English visitor. "Bob her hair?" "Why, certainly." "Roll her stockings?" "If she wants to."

Summer Readers Want Stories of Adventure. CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—(A. P.)—The summertime reader would rather have a true account of pirates or shooting wars in the Ark than even a love story. Declares Nathan R. Levin, assistant librarian of the Chicago Public Library, who has been studying the tastes of the general readers for years.

That does not mean that the love story has become unfashionable. "It means rather that at vacation time everybody temporarily forgets his desire to get on in his own business or personal affairs and prefers to read about criminals or trapping wombats in the wilds of Australia."

Oil And Baths Savage Tamers. MANTUA, P. I., Aug. 22.—(A. P.)—How the messengers of mercy and health are gradually conquering the terror of the island of Jolo that the ways of peace are better than their own old savage customs, is told by Miss Montaya Ballo, Moro nurse, in charge of the puericulture center of Jolo. The Moro mothers are being gradually and steadily won over to civilized ways in the care of their children, Miss Ballo says.

Describing some of her many difficulties during the first days of her assignment at the center, Miss Ballo, in a report, says: "At present there are forty babies and a few excellent mothers coming to my center. Most of the babies need treatment. The expectant mothers come for advice. The first few days of my home visits the people were afraid of me. They hid their children and the expectant mothers hesitated to come. Now they are beginning to realize the good of the puericulture center."

"On June 18, last, there were four babies needing attention. Two of them were full of sores and two had fever and were afflicted with it. The first thing I did was to give them rapid sponge bathing then castor oil, because their tongues were coated. The parents of the children were frightened because they had never bathed patients when they have fever. When I visited them four days later they were all getting along nicely and now the mothers are kind to me and tell other people how I cured their babies."

When his coat and collar became too restrictive, a man can get some relief by laughing about woman's subtleties.
