Excellent Peaches—
Charles Edwards, of the La Grande Mattress and Weaving works, presented the Evening Observer today with a box of home-grown peaches, that were ample proof of the delicious fruit that is raised in La Grande. The peaches averaged about 6 to 8 inches in circumference and were beauties, both in appearance and in their appeal to the appetite.

Funeral Held This Morning—
Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. O. S. Allen, who passed on in Summerville a few days ago, were held at Summerville this morning at 10:30 o'clock with Reynolds and Zimmerman funeral service parlors in charge of the services. She was laid to rest in the Summerville cemetery. A large gathering of sorrowful friends were present at the last service.

No Remedial Plan For Wheat Farmers Has Been Presented

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — While the department of agriculture is digesting every plan that is offered for relief, in the hope that some method would afford a helpful remedy for the present situation of the wheat farmer, action has not seemed expedient, George B. Christian, secretary to President Coolidge declares, in a letter to J. Q. Adams, president of the Farmers' Union of Washington and northern Idaho, in response to an appeal from a conference of wheat growers here last week, asking a special session of congress.

The president Mr. Christian's letter declares, "shares with you a great solicitude for this important interest and a great sympathy for any part of it which may be, temporarily he trusts, in any distress. It is his earnest desire to afford every possible relief and listen to every possible suggestion.

"The most experienced legislators with whom he has consulted have not yet been able to offer any plan for legislative action which seems to be practical."

STRESEMAN GIVES REPARATION STAND

merce and other commercial organizations.

Doctor Duisburg, head of the Bayer Chemical and Dye works, presided. He praised Chancellor Stresemann for the courage manifested in taking the helm of the ship of state while the craft was being "badly tossed by the high seas and threatened with foundering."

Doctor Duisburg advised the chancellor to get rid of the surplus crew and needless ballast to make room for passengers and cargo.

Has Industrialists' Support

The ship also needs a compass, he said, to enable it to find its way into open water, as it now was threatened with being caught in the "scylla and charybdis of Anglo-French relations." The fact that Chancellor Streseman was permitted to unfold his program at a luncheon tendered him by "big business" is viewed as an indication that the industrialists and allied interests are in full accord with the government's attitude on reparations and its program of radical taxation and financial measures.

In opening his address the chancellor said his government stood by the offer the recent Cuno government had made for settling Germany's reparations debt. Despite the heavy new taxation of property, a lasting recovery in Germany's finances was impossible without a previous settlement of the foreign situation.

"The world," said the chancellor, "expects from its statesmen a return of normal conditions of international commerce, instead of the present chaos. Such a possibility is opened to us in the last official publication of the British government. The French premier, too, at Charleville indicated a practical solution as to the aim of his policy by claiming positive pledges for German reparations deliveries, namely the German railroads and control of the German economic system, and of German customs. This principle also was expressed in the German memorandum of June, which to our regret, remained unanswered.

Rhinelanders Still Loyal

"For us in Germany there is no Rhenish question to be solved internationally. The Rhinelanders have the right to determine their leations to the reich. Hitherto they have not expressed the slightest desire for a change in their loyalty to the reichland to Prussia.

"We accept with satisfaction the French premier's declaration that he is pursuing no political aims or ideas."

Obituary

F. C. Bonsel,

A telegram, received by Reynolds and Zimmerman funeral service parlors this morning, announced the death of F. C. Bonsel, aged 42 years, at Weed, California and stated that the remains were being forwarded to La Grande and would arrive here Sunday morning on No. 24. Funeral services will be held from the Reynolds and Zimmerman chapel at two o'clock Sunday afternoon and interment will be made in the I. O. O. F. cemetery. Reverend O. W. Jones will preach the funeral sermon

M. Bonsel was a resident of La Grande for many years being employed on the O. W. railroad. His death came as a sad shock to his many friends in this community. He is survived by his father.

Stupidity is very annoying to an instructor, except in the case of an instructor who is teaching a girl to swim.

The most prolific animals have the least chance in the world, and now you know why the poor have all the children.

STAR PROMISES MUSICAL TREAT

La Grande is promised a rare musical treat next week in the form of the Harmony Doctor's Quartette who will appear at the Star Theatre on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

This quartette is composed of four young men from the American school of Osteopathy at Kirksville Missouri. They are touring the United States in the interest of the school and the profession, and have sung in some of the largest theatres of the United States. They have appeared at the Missouri in St. Louis, the Globe in Kansas City, also broadcasted over the Kansas City Star radio station; they have sung at the Miller theatre in Wichita Kansas which has the reputation of being one of the most critical houses in the middle West for music.

They have also appeared at the big Colorado Theatre in Denver and received much praise in the Denver Post.

The young men are traveling in a Dodge touring car, which is elaborately decorated with signs of every discription and nature, and is much the center of attraction wherever they go. They are now enroute from Yellowstone Park, to Los Angeles where they have a two weeks engagement, after which they go to New Orleans.

The quartette is out of the ordinary in as much that they sing nothing but the latest song hits of the day; a few of the numbers they feature are: "Yes, We Have No Bananas," "Barney Google," "Who's Sorry Now" "That Red Head Gal" and others.

The management of the Star feels very fortunate to have been able to secure this bunch of celebrated melody makers, for an engagement in La Grande, and the public is promised a sure cure for the blues when they appear Monday and Tuesday.

At this late date the average man can confess that he never was very enthusiastic about standing for the national air.
