At 1:30 o'clock a delicious luncheon was served, working in the color scheme of the decorations, of yellow and white. Mrs. Zurbick proved a delightful hostess and everyone enjoyed a good time.

Fashion Notes

Has Different Droop.
Paris.—The tan of shanter, crown which is much favored, is inclined now to droop at the back instead of on the side. This brings a high, straight, stiff band across the forehead, which is especially becoming to young and pliant faces.

THREE FINGERED JACK ARRESTED

Traveling Evangelist Is in Clutches of Oakland Police; Is Charged With Wronging 12-Year-Old Girl.

Color for Black Costume.

New York.—To the black street costume, so greatly in vogue today, there is a clever way of adding a bit of color. This is to intertwine a length of bright silk with the black girdle and allow the bright silk to hang as panels on each side.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rev. W. A. Godwin, traveling evangelist, known as "Three Fingered Jack," was arrested by the Oakland police early Saturday in his room in an east bay hotel, on a Tacoma warrant, charging a statutory offense against a 12-year-old girl.

In his room were found letter-boards bearing his name and the nickname, which was made famous two years ago when "Three Fingered Jack" toured the West in an anti-L. W. W. movement. Oakland police believe Godwin is the famous evangelist-labor agitator of that name.

Arrest was on instruction of Sheriff Thomas Desmond of the northern city. The sheriff said a warrant had been sworn by the mother of Pauline Carr.

Godwin was traced through a telephoning the arrival of an officer who left Tacoma today.

Godwin was traced through a letter he wrote the girl from Oakland. He instructed her to address letters to him through general delivery.

"Three Fingered Jack" conducted a series of revival meetings, that toward the end of the series proved sensational and resulted in large attendances in La Grande a little over 12 years ago. Following the meetings here, he conducted similar ones in other towns in Eastern Oregon and along coast points.

Franklin Carburetor Kept Free From Dust By Use of Separator

"All Franklin cars since 1916 have been fitted with some kind of air filter or dust eliminator, but the centrifugal type air cleaner used as standard equipment on the 1924 model is the most effective equipment we have hit upon," says Louis Stellmann, chief engineer of the Franklin Automobile company, according to Chas. Bohnenkamp, local dealer.

The centrifugal type dust separator is practically 100 per cent successful in performing its function, according to Mr. Stellmann. In extreme tests it effectively disposed of sand, dirt, dust, grasshoppers and mud which were fed into it. Under some conditions of travel, this device prevents as much as a teaspoonful of grit for entering the motor through the carburetor during each hour.

To the owner this means not only a safeguard against destruction to the power plant but it reduces the carbon accumulation on the piston heads. The equipment has no dirt receptacle to clean, and is compact, light and self-operating.

Another advantage of the Franklin centrifugal type air-cleaner is the free entrance of air, allowing the motor to operate at a maximum efficiency at all speeds.
