WRITER SCORED "JAZZ OF 1852"

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Dancing was "demoralizing our young people" even before the Civil War, according to at least one critic of American manners in the year 1852, a copy of whose volume of reminiscences growing out of a visit to the United States has been brought to light in Los Angeles second-hand bookstore.

This unbeliefing writer, who identifies herself on the title page as Mrs. Duncan, an English woman says: "This hugging and whirling with shut eyes because of dizziness and panting and falling on each other's shoulders, confounds people of sedate and tranquil manners."

Not only American dancing, but the popular American tunes of 1852 excited Mrs. Duncan's indignation, for, "being interested in their musical powers, I gathered collections of their popular airs, and fell indignant at the ineffable nonsense of the words which are in nearly every case attached to them."

Sherry's to Show "Orphans of the Storm," Today And Tomorrow.

The most remarkable motion picture success of the year is D. W. Griffith's dramatic epic, "Orphans of the Storm," an elaboration of the famous old play, "The Two Orphans."

For nearly half a century "The Two Orphans" has been equally popular in Europe and America, following its long initial runs in Paris and at the old Union Square Theatre in New York. In a sense it is the most popular of all stage love stories. Here in America it was identified for thirty years with the name of Kate Claxton, who played Louise Girard, the blind heroine.

Mr. Griffith took this celebrated play and built around it a motion picture with grandiose historical background, and at an expense greater than the cost of all the current stage plays in New York Combined.

Patrons of the Sherry Theatre, at which this United Artists Corporation release will be shown will find all of the great "Two Orphans" story that used to interest their fathers and mothers, but also a very great deal more. The story is now set amid the turbulent events of the revolution in France that marked the down fall of the Bourbon monarchy.

Fortunately, Mr. Griffith had two wonderful French types at hand for the embodiment of Henriette and Louise Girard, the two heroines. These are the Misses Lillian and Dorothy Gish.

One of the best casts of recent years enacts the famous story, including Joseph Schildkraut, the celebrated Roumanian actor, sometimes called the handsomest leading man of Europe, who has the romantic role of Chevalier de Vaudrey.

For those unfamiliar with the stage story: Henriette and Louise are little Norman wayfarers in Paris. The former is abducted by a rich noble, while the latter falls into a den of thevish beggars who send her on the street as a charity singer. The tremendous interest springs from the effort of the sundered orphans to be reunited and the love of the Chevalier for Henriette from whom he is separated by an almost impassable gulf of birth and class distinctions.

In Mr. Griffith's story these adventures are carried right into the revolution. We see Henriette and the Chevalier as puppets of fate in the Region of Terror, from which the gigantic Danton strives to extricate them. The climax is one of the most thrilling ever staged not excepting Mr. Griffith's ice jam rescue in "Way Down East" or the ride of the Ku Klux Klan in "The Birth of a Nation." Besides the thrills and the spectacular features, there are plenty of laughs. Creighton Hale as Picard and Lucille La Verne as La Frochard furnish the comedy, which is specially interesting to those familiar with the humor of the Latin nations.

Jane Novak in "Divorce" at Star Today And Thursday.

"Divorce" is the name of the motion picture being shown at the Star Theatre, today and Tuesday and seldom has a topic of such wide-spread been treated so powerfully on the screen.

"Divorce was introduced by Chester Bennett and released by the Film Booking Offices with Jane Novak in the leading role. Miss Novak heretofore has been chiefly associated with out-door parts, in dramas enacted in the open spaces of the North and West. "Divorce" is a society drama of exceptional power, in which the producer deals crushing blows to the evil of domestic discord and shows how by applying the principals or human understanding and love all need for divorce would be obliterated.

John Bowers is seen as the husband and a rugged and captivating personality he is. In the scenes in which he is discharged from his high position by his father-in-law at the behest of his wife who is trying desperately to save him from the fast friends who are preying upon him, Bowers does quite the most impressive acting of his recent career.

Other of note in the cast are James Corrigan, Edythe Chapman, Margaret Livingston, Freeman Wood, George Fisher, Philippe de Lacy and others. The story was written by Andrew Bennison.

A one reel scenic film made in Oregon by the Kiser Studio of Portland is also on the program.

Highest Cross is Placed.

As a result of recent complications, the president is said to be critically ill, according to City of Mexico press dispatches.

Union Non-Detonating Gasoline

Gasolines explode in two ways. One kind explodes with an instantaneous crash—detonates.

It deals a sledge hammer blow upon the piston head, depending upon the single impulse for the complete stroke.

Because of its tendency to explode prematurely, it limits compression. It often causes "knocking" which you notice on the hills.

The quick, crashing blows, repeated, increase vibration, increasing wear and tear.

Steady, Sustained Power

The other kind of explosion—the kind that Union Gasoline delivers—is progressive and prolonged. For Union is non-detonating gasoline.

The piston receives a strong, steady, sustained thrust throughout the entire stroke. It pushes through.

Higher compression is permitted, because compression is limited by the tendency of a gasoline to detonate, as all authorities know.

Thus increased power and efficiency result.

Note the "Lift" on Hills

You'll find a new "lift" on hills with no "knocking." The car is being pulled up by strong, sustained impulses.

There's new speed on the level, too, and more rush in the getaway.

Increased fuel economy follows this increased all-'round efficiency.

And the decreased vibration saves much wear and tear.

These are features to look for when you use Union Non-Detonating Gasoline.

Union Gasoline is the product of progressive refining methods. The latest methods for its improvement are constantly searched for by able chemists and engineers, equipped with every accepted facility for studying refining processes.
