'Cordelia the Magnificent' On at Sherry's Today Only; Story Interesting.

By his air of craven bravado you can spot the man who hasn't topped the writer enough; by the impudence of his speech you can identify a detective, and until now it has been an even easier job to spot the villain in the movies.

A mousetrap with poisoned bait, a mousetrap with a cat, and a mousetrap with a mousetrap. But the movies are entering upon a new era. One has been promised who will do it all, in a way that is not immediately perceptible. For instance, in 'Cordelia the Magnificent,' are Floyd Whitlock, Huddy Gordon and Lewis Drayton. Just between themselves, one of those men means no good toward Cordelia. Which one, even Cordelia doesn't know, but she has reason to suspect all. Dayton, for example, is English and wears a monocle. Whitlock once played a villain before. Gordon has no perfect a record—there must be something wrong somewhere.

'Suppose,' said Miss Young to George Archibald, director of this Metro picture, 'I fancy the villain and don't know it. I'd like to desert him.'

'Not at all,' replied George Archibald; 'you could kiss and make up.'

Indeed the director only two men knew the man's name—Leroy Scott, who wrote the story, and Harry Gibson, who produced the picture. Expecting, of course, those who've read Mr. Scott's novel.

Among others in Miss Young's notable supporting cast are Jacqueline Goddard, Carol Holloway, Katherine Murphy, Elinor Hancock and Mary Jane Irving.

'Cordelia the Magnificent' is to be shown at the Sherry Theatre today only, and it will surely be of double interest to those who have followed the story in serial form in Hearst's International Magazine. So faithfully has the tale been adapted to the screen that even Miss Young's gown are reproductions for the most part of the heroine's in the magazine illustrations.

Tarkington's 'Penrod and Sam' Coming To Star Theater This Week.

'Penrod and Sam,' both Tarkington's famous story of American boy life, was produced at the Hollywood Studios by Associate First National Pictures, Inc.

Encouraged by the marvelous reception which the public tendered 'Penrod,' which was filmed by Alvin Karpis for First National Pictures, the latter organization undertook to put on an even more lavish American boy story from the pen of the famous Tarkington.

Because of William Beaudine's recognition in the art of directing children, he was chosen to handle the directorial assignment. Beaudine is also famous for his comedy. So industry in his ability recognized to handle children that he has been repeatedly employed by many producers to make the 'Kid' sequences of pictures which were under the direction of their own directors.

The production is presented by J. T. McDonald and under the personal supervision of William Beaudine. It stars Bruce Alexander, protégé of D. W. Griffith in the role of Penrod and Joe Butterworth as Sam Williams.

Continuity was prepared by Hope Loring and Louis Lichten, in collaboration with Beaudine.

'No expense or pains were spared in making this film a faithful screen reproduction of American boyhood,' said Mr. McDonald. So faithful in fact every man who sees it will forget that he has grown up during the showing of the picture.

It will be presented at the Star Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Boys Take 6-Weeks Trip in Canoe On Mississippi

KANSAS CITY (INS) - Expeditions on the Mississippi River rivalling those of Mark Twain's famous characters, Huckleberry Finn and Jim, Tom Sawyer, were told by four local youths who have returned from a six-week trip on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers in 15-foot canoes.

Paddling against dangerous currents, maneuvering to avoid destructive snags, riding waves of the river freighters and sleeping in the middle of the swirling waters, the boys were a part of their adventures.

The boys, Edward Callender, Charles Orr, Byron Howard and Elmer Crabtree, all students of Missouri University, said their proudest thrill was furnished by a storm on the Mississippi in which the two canoes became separated and were apart four days.
