Four Women Complete 9,200 Mile Journey in A Franklin Brougham

Mrs. S. T. Carter of Columbia, S. C., with her daughters, Mrs. M. N. Moore, a friend of the party, is completing the last stages of a journey which took them from their home town to the Pacific Coast and back again. Throughout their entire journey, they were unaccompanied by male companions and traveled desert, prairie and mountain trails without rest, save those of a few hours at the Franklin Brougham.

The women took the southern route through Texas and New Mexico to California, returning over the northern route via the Lincoln Highway. The trip was made in a Franklin Brougham. When the women visited the Franklin factory at Syracuse a few days ago, they had covered 9,200 miles since June 3, when they started on their trip. They were then on their way home to Columbia and intended to make stops in Philadelphia, Washington and Norfolk.

Probably the saddest experience yet recorded was the recent headlong drive of midday's wind from her daughter to her home.

States To Take Indians

PENDLETON, Ore.—The time is not far distant when the Indians in the United States, who are now wards of the federal government will become wards of the various states, according to a statement made here last night by Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs in the department of the interior. The trend now is unmistakably toward this result, he stated.

The speech of the commissioner was made before a dinner of the Pendleton commercial association. He arrived in the afternoon to make an inspection of the Unatilla Indian reservation, which is in charge of Mayor E. L. Swartzlander.
