

DRAGON FLY ON WESTWARD TRIP

Library Chats

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP)—With a course set straight into the west, and with flying hots following in successive waves, the dragon fly of Montana is making a new chapter in natural history this fall. For the first time known in this section, there is a migration of dragon flies, a natural phenomenon which, in fact, is not recounted in any of the available textbooks on entomology.

Recently the curious migration was noted by entomologists at Montana State college. The insects were flying in dense waves, the waves being rather sharply defined as they passed. For a few minutes the air, at a height of some fifty feet, would be filled with the insects and a few minutes later there would not be one in sight. Again and again came the waves, each insect driving a straight and rather steady course toward some unknown goal. On different days the migration was noted and specimens taken at the college. The speed of the winged "snake feeder" and the height of flight made a gathering of specimens a difficult matter. So far as can be learned, the migration carries no special economic significance. The dragon fly preys upon small insects, largely mosquitoes, which it captures in flight. Both sexes are found in the migration. This flight of the insect in Montana is being carefully noted, as it is of interest to observers of insect life where it may be of no importance to others.

OREGON PREPARING FOR HOME-COMING

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene. (Special)—With the appointment of Hadden Rockey as chairman of the Home Coming committee, plans are under way for the celebration of the annual alumni reunion on the University of Oregon campus, November 23 and 24. A high point of this year's Home Coming will be the annual Oregon-O. A. C. football game to be played on Hayward Field on the afternoon of November 24.

The annual student parade, rally and campus bonfire will feature the program November 23. The following morning will be devoted to alumni gatherings and the annual business meeting of grads and former students. In the evening the Home Coming dance will be held.

Chairman Rockey was appointed by Claude Robinson, president of the Associated Students. Rockey served on the student council last year and has played on the varsity basketball team two years. The appointment of members of the committee to serve with the chairman will be announced this week.

In addition to alumni and former students who will come to the campus, there will be hundreds of football fans who are interested in watching the Oregon-O. A. C. game. The largest crowd in the history of the alumni celebrations is expected this year.

Communists Lead Mobs In Raid on Saxony Farms

DRESDEN. (AP)—Peasants in the Mulde valley could scarcely believe their eyes recently when at day break they went to the fields to work and discovered that hundreds of acres of wheat and grain in the shock had disappeared like magic over night. The Mulde district, it developed, had been invaded at night by hundreds of unemployed from the cities and towns, and the grain carried away on their backs.

In other localities the unemployed became even bolder and invaded the farms in broad day light, defied the peasants, and helped themselves not only to grain which had been cut, but picked the ripening fruit, and even dug up whole fields of potatoes, cabbages and other vegetables. The raiders said they were hungry and that they had decided upon force as a means of relieving their stress. In reporting the case, the authorities announced that the movement was in the hands of Communists. Only a few of the unemployed men were communists, the German police reported, but because of empty stomachs they were easily led by the radicals.
