Clever Dinner Dance At Country Club

For marked originality, artistic effect and a most enjoyable occasion, the dinner dancing party given Wednesday evening at the Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. Harley Richardson is an outstanding event in La Grande society.

The long tables lighted with candles had for its centerpiece the good ship "Mayflower" which if memory does not fail, is the boat that brought early American ancestry to the land of milk and honey. The "Mayflower" floated on a sea of glass giving a most natural appearance and effect.

When all eyes had beamed with wonderment on the table carrying the ship and nautical decorations, the hostess in a brief statement told the guests that the "Mayflower" had a passenger list who embarked in search of homes, and it would be but proper for the same feature to be extended in the evening's program. Guests eagerly sought places marked bearing their names, but none were to be found. However, they did find a delicately tinted folder at each place and upon close inspection a photograph showed plainly on the back of the folder while the word "men" marked the cover. Under the photograph on one-half of the folders were the words "The Gentleman of This Home," and on the other half "The Lady of This Home." It was plain then that photographs of the homes of the guests had been taken and tastefully attached to the menu folder, a novel idea that caused many pretty compliments.

On the inside cover of the folder was the following catchy verse:

Eat, drink and be merry
And wish you well, we pray,
And though you miss a wink to-night
Tomorrow the brighter day.

The dinner menu occupied the center of the folder as follows:

- Pilgrim Cocktail
- Mixed Standish Relish
- Brittany Broth
- Mayflower Salad
- Puritan Turkey and Dressing with Cranberry Sauce
- Thanksgiving Potatoes
- Bradford Ice
- Plymouth Rock Rolls
- New England Plum Pudding
- Coffee
- Almonds

Then came the little verse that prompted guests to leave the dinner table occasionally to dance to the excellent music furnished by the orchestra. The verse was:

As music hath charms
And the rhyme is right,
While eating and drinking
Let us dance tonight.

The entire evening was one of exquisite pleasure and the "Mayflower" feature was carried out in most successful manner.

Fashion Notes

Shoes, Bags of Euploid Skin, London. — Among the novelties of the season are shoes and wrist bags of python skin in tan, of crocodile and shark skin in reddish brown and in brown and of hand in variegated stripes and white.

Definite Style for Brides.
Paris. — There is a very definite style for brides just now. The lines are more simple than the lines of other gowns at present. One big sweep of embroidery, in pearls and brilliants, is seen on the gown and this motif is repeated on the shoes.

Variation of Bertha.
Paris. — Another variation of the bertha today is being adapted to the use of the young girl. The dancing frock comes up over the shoulder, and the bertha of lace and crisp dechaine—slips down over the shoulders nearly half way to the elbow.

New Use for Rainy Day.
London. — A recent rainy day provided guests at the Berkeley with an excuse for appearing in the new and delightful waterproof coat frocks. Ornate umbrellas, embroidered in striking colors, also made their appearance.

Varying Loud Stripes.
New York. — Some of the new top coats of semi-sports type shown here today have a clever way of varying the otherwise flamboyant stripe. Long panels of plain material set off the narrower panels of horizontal striping.

Still in Demand.
New York. — The skirt-and-sweater costume is still in demand today for wear on the links and at the country club. Among the smart skirts are those that fasten on the side and expose themselves in over plaids and velvet checks.

Brown Leather Gloves.
New York. — No glove is more attractive today than that in brown leather, heavily stitched with brown and tan. Gauntlets are growing more popular, but this one has some eyelid motifs and is faced with tan to match the stitching.

Attractively Trimmed Lingerie.
New York. — The linen lingerie which has become a favorite with so many women is now more trimly attractive than ever. It is of sheer white Belgian linen bound with pink or blue or orchid batiste, and dotted with insets of Turkish point or real fillet.

Famous French Recipes

Cepes a la Bordelaise.
Paris, (U.S.S.)—This is the season for cepes, a favorite kind of mushroom in France. It is found at the foot of pines and oaks and can be easily distinguished by the little brown pear "cap" it wears.

Cepes are at their best when prepared "a la bordelaise." Clean and wash well. Skin and dry in a clean linen cloth. Drop into a large kettle with warm olive oil and brown over a hot fire. Cook with chopped shallot, a bit of garlic and parsley. Serve in a vegetable dish over which have been scattered bread crumbs freshly browned in oil.

When there were no insurance companies, fire alone didn't indicate a season of business depression.

PLEADS FOR MORE POETRY ON STAGE

LONDON. — A plea for more poetry in the theatre is made by Miss Clemence Dane, celebrated English dramatist.

"Poetry on the stage," she says, "expresses only what people say. Verse expresses what they feel and are too shy to say."

"Every great age has been expressed in verse. The Elizabethan age was expressed in the verse of Shakespeare. Is it not possible that we are entering another great age which will produce another Shakespeare?"

"England is now full of young people trying to fight verse. This country is crowded with poets. They are very sensitive and readily hurt by criticism or ridicule. It is up to us to give them all the help and encouragement we can."

"I don't believe that the theatre is going to the dogs. I believe it is going up, up, up and that the theatre of the future will be the theatre of verse."

"If I had a son and a daughter and could not afford to send them to a university in England I would send them out with a touring theatrical company. It is the finest education in the world."

"I am a Philistine. I don't believe in art for art's sake. If the theatre has no use and serves no purpose in life it has no future."

FORD COMPANY IS NOW MAKING WIRE

DETROIT, Mich. (Special)—Because outside manufacturers failed to meet specifications for wire used in winding armatures of starter generators used on Ford cars, the Ford Motor Company has itself gone into the wire manufacturing business. This new industry at the Highland Park plant, though not yet in full production, is at present turning out every day some 70 miles of the insulated copper wire.

The making of 6,500 generator units daily calls for the absolute standardization of parts, particularly wire size. If the wire winding on the armatures is slightly off size, or if the insulating cover is a bit thin or irregular, either the binding will not fit and generator efficiency will result.

So, with outside wire not giving all satisfaction, the company determined to make its own and improvements and simplification of standard wire-making machinery have been placed this plant about of almost any others in quality and economy.

One interesting drawing operation is where the wire passes through eight diamonds each reducing the size a few thousandths of an inch. The cost of each diamond may run as high as $300 and it takes several days of continuous drilling with diamond dust in order to pierce one. They can be used about six months without appreciable wear.

Cotton, used for the wire covering, is also made by the Company and is spun from the cotton imported from England.

The new wire, which in every way meets the high standards of Ford manufacture, has brought a general improvement in the production of starter generators.

Pinon Nut Industry Is Attracting Interest

TUSCON, Ariz. (AP)—A new industry is in the making in the Santa Catalina mountains, near here, local forestry service officials believe.

According to an announcement made recently by the forest officials, pine bearing edible pinon nuts are increasing rapidly in this range, and it is hoped that soon there will be enough bearing trees to make the harvesting of the nuts a profitable industry.

"There are two types of pinon trees in the Catalinas," a forest official said. "One type bears the edible nuts, while the other type is practically useless."

"In the mountains around Albuquerque, N. M., where the nuts grow in abundance, the industry is flourishing. The nuts are shelled and shipped to all parts of the United States. Within a few years, we may hope to see enough trees producing to make the gathering and shelling of the nuts worth while in this community."

Hybrid Tomato Proves Against Stinger Fly

HONOLULU, (U.S.S.)—A hybrid tomato, proof against stinging by the Mediterranean fruit fly, has recently been developed by the staff of the Federal agricultural experiment station in Honolulu. The hybrid is produced by crossing the common tomato with the highly Hawaiian tomato and is almost perfectly round. It averages the size of a billiard ball. Professor John M. Westgate, director of the station, says the smallness of the fruit seems partly responsible for its immunity, the curvature being such that the stinger slides off.

When crated Florida fruit is quarantined, P. O. R. the letters sometimes stand for Fall of Food.
