HIGHWAYS STILL DUE MILLIONS COLLECTED ON AUTO SALES

WASHINGTON, LAPE.—Owners of motor vehicles pay to the federal government in taxes each year more than double the amount spent by the government on account of federal-aid highway and forest road construction, together with all administrative outlays, according to Secretary Wallace of Agriculture, who has charge of the administration of the highway funds. Since 1917 the government has been collecting a tax on the selling price of motor vehicles, tires and automobile accessories, and also a tax on the use of passenger automobiles for hire. On June 30 this year $489,612,021 had been collected from these sources. Expenditures on highway by the government in that time totaled $264,782,210, or 45 per cent of the amount taken in.

TEXTILES HELD SLOW, BABSON

Roger W. Babson Analyzes Industry and Its Securities and Makes Report.

WHILE THE TEXTILE industry has been held slow, Babson's analysis summarized in a statement issued today pretty well accounts for the development.

Conditions in both the cotton goods and woolen and worsted industries are irregular and unsettled, says the statement. "The fundamental reason for this is largely the fact that prices of these goods are relatively much higher than most other kinds of articles. When business men in any line feel that the price structure is beginning to get top-heavy, there is likely to be considerable caution exercised regarding the purchase of raw materials, the manufacture into finished goods and the buying of goods for retail distribution. This is the case now in both cotton goods and woolen and worsted goods, especially men's wear lines. Certainly production is in progress.

"The cotton goods industry began the fall with a fairly good supply of orders taken during the late summer production was good during September, especially among southern mills. During October, however, a tendency to increase the price of cotton goods in line with the advancing price of raw cotton brought about renewed resistance on the part of buyers. As a result, many mills in both the North and South are going on part time.

"Whether or not the recent Government report, which states this year's cotton crop is estimated about 10,250,000 bales as compared with an average of 8,500,000 during the previous three years, and at 12,500,000 during the three years previous thereto, will result in freer buying of cotton goods than before, will show. There is much evidence presented to show that both the American and the world's supply of cotton is very low compared to the need for cotton goods. Buyers, however, argue that conditions are no worse than a year ago, that consumption is declining, and that 20-cent cotton fully discounts all the bullish factors. Nevertheless, there is no question of a shortage and that demand for goods is high and that the only reasonable development is for cotton prices to advance.

"The present situation favors low-cost concerns. These are mostly located in the South. It is estimated that Southern mills usually work much more steadily than Northern mills.

"The wool situation is not quite so bright as cotton. There is no acute shortage of wool, and the price ten-deny has been recently downward. The chief difficulty at present seems to have arisen by reason of an attempt last summer to raise higher prices on men's spring wear lines. Considerable sales resistance and but few orders are reported. Another reason is that makers of men's clothing entered this season with fairly heavy stocks carried over from a year ago. There is consequently less reason for purchases than last year. In addition to these factors general business as reflected in the index is now 19 per cent below normal.

"Women's wear, especially novelty lines are, however, apparently meeting with more success than men's lines. Mills making such goods seem to be operating on better schedules than those making men's wear.

"Turning to the securities representing the textile industries," Mr. Babson continued, "the listed textile stocks are few in number. American Woolen, Consolidated Textile, and the two silk lines, Madison and Kayser, come first to mind in this connection. By far the majority of the New England mill issues enjoy only a local or over-the-counter market. The trend seems to have been the same for all kinds, however. Ever since the general market started its downward course last March there have offered little resistance to the trend and are today holding only about midway between the lows of 1921 and the highs of 1922. In one or two specific instances, notably American Woolen, 1921 lows have been practically realized.

"The shrinking margin of profit and gradual decline in capacity operations of which the American clothing is the most striking case, may be held accountable for the decline in stock prices. Many other lines of business have been subject to the same influences.

"As for the future, there is no assurance of any broad advancing tendency while general business and stocks are continuing on the balance of the decline begun last spring. To be sure, this may not mean materially lower levels in the stock market, but until the decline has spent its force and a broad advance is in prospect, there is no argument for purchase of any specific groups. The changes involved in trying to work against the trend are too great. Textiles will probably be a profitable purchase when cotton and other commodities stabilize at levels which give some assurance of being maintained and when the fear of increased competition from abroad has been either fully realized or dissipated. But that time is not the present.

"When the time does come to buy there should be included in one's broad list a fair sprinkling of those properties which have diversified their business through localizing in both the North and South. Further, the woolen, silk and cotton groups should all be included in order to have a truly representative list."

The Clay I Use

White, Refined Super-Clay

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Some think that model clay is new. Not so. Besides all ages have employed them. Most of the famous bodies of history owed their beauty to complexion clay.

But, until late years, few women ordered and received their beauty from millions of clay, and only in a prime quantity.

What I Owe to Clay:
About 1906, when beauty experts taught me the use of clay. Now, at a friend's home, I look like a girl of 18. After 32 years as a model star, I still play young girl parts. And millions marvel at my youthful beauty.

"I have supplied my methods to scores of friends. They followed their beauty by them, and they kept their youth. As I have received that same youth and youth can do this with it. And I am going to help them.

A Perfected Clay:
The clay I use is not the grade and model clay as many use today. That is out of date. Also, scientists say there have been studying clays for 23 years and even. And they have perfected this.

They have found that this clay, superabsorbent, which being maximum youth. They have learned how to refine them to remove the useless part. The clay I use is white and clean. It is not like the old clay which being unrefined, results in the White Youth Clay will be a real solution in a use of other ways.

Clay Is Essential
No girl or woman can look her best without this use of clay. See with a woman keep her youthful bloom and contour as I have. Users of clay stand out in any crowd.

Clay purges the skin of all that clings to the causes of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes.

It draws the blood to the skin to nourish and refine it. The result is a rare afterglow, then a lasting new complexion.

It firms the skin, combats the cause of wrinkles, takes out lines, reduces enlarged pores. Thus it gives and maintains a smooth, soft, baby-like complexion.

The results are amazing—almost unbelievable at first. Many women in 20 minutes seem to drop ten years. And my girl's face, at my grand old age, shows what constant use can do.

You cannot afford to miss these benefits. They mean too much to you. But use a modern scientific clay. My White Youth Clay, they tell me, is the last word in facial beauty.

Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay is now stocked by all druggists and retail goods dealers. Price 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, based on lemon and strawberry. This should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, which brought my hair about half. My Beauty Book comes with each.

In fairness to yourself, see what Youth Clay does. You will ever thank me for it. If the first tube fails to delight you, your dealer will return its price.

September Sales of Tobacco in France Create New Record

PARIS, (AP)—The proceeds of the sale of tobacco in France during September totaled 147,000,000 francs, the highest figure ever recorded. During the first nine months of the current year the total receipts of the French government's tobacco monopoly amounted to 1,250,500,000 francs, as compared with 1,181,500,000 francs for the corresponding period in 1932.

The increase in the receipts is not so much the result of greater consumption of tobacco but is due to the rise in the price.
