Urged Rehabilitated War Veterans Get Preference

SEATTLE, (Special) -- With the coming of cold weather and a resulting decrease in employment, employers of this district are urged by J. C. Joseph, northwest district manager of the United States Veterans' Bureau to give preference to rehabilitated World War Veterans when vacancies occur or new positions are created. Jobs are being sought for 30 bookkeepers, 10 shoemakers, 10 cleaners and press-and other ex-service men trained in a variety of occupations, he stated.

In most instances the rehabilitated war veterans are allowed from 28 to 90 days on the job without any expense to the prospective employer, it was stated. This is known as placement training and gives the employ- ment opportunity to size up the capabilities of his employee.

"There are still several hundred ex-service men in training in this district for whom employment opportu- nities must be found," said Mr. Joseph. "Actual rehabilitation of the disabled veteran family rests with employers of the district. Unless this men are placed in positions for which they trained at the expense of the government, their training will have been of little benefit and the ex- service man will not be able to take his rightful place in the commercial world and society. So far, employers of this district have been willing in the matter of supplying employment opportunities for our vocational training graduates. I have reason to believe that further and increased co- operation on their part may be expected."

Mr. Joseph urged that employers who have positions to fill during the next few months should get in touch with the nearest office of the Veterans' Bureau immediately by letter, telephone or personal contact. Bureau offices are located in Seattle, Portland, Spokane and Boise.

When the entire day the incident is closed, that means that neither side is ready for the fight yet.

Revolving peace will come soon after (action) today, learns a report war lords to chase themselves.

a position to put time and special attention on testing work have enhanced the value of their animals greatly by the official records they have made. Dairywomen whose facilities for record making are somewhat limited are given an opportunity by the advanced registry department to determine the production of their cows through the farm and dairymen's classes. Such classes are useful especially in affording definite information as to the production of cows when they are handled under conditions which approximate those to be found on the average dairy farm.

EUROPE'S HAIRDRESSERS FAIL AMERICAN WOMEN

HEERLIN, (AP) -- "Permanent waves" are so hard to get on the continent that one American woman makes two trips a year to the United States rather than entrust her hair to the uncertain efforts of the European coiffeurs.

Beauty parlors over here not only sometimes ruin the hair in an effort to give it an enduring curl, but they have not learned how to put the hair into hair as "specialty and as pain- fully as the American beauty doctors. Women frequently faint from exhaustion and pain in the hands of the European experts.
