WOMEN OF BERLIN AROUSED BY ORDER TO MUZZLE DOGS

BERLIN, (AP)—A war of words is raging in Berlin between women who own pet dogs on one side and the police and non-owners of dogs on the other. It was started when the police put into effect again an order requiring all dogs to be muzzled and kept on leash when in the streets. The women dog fanciers charge that this is simply a means of persecuting them for taking the muzzles off their little pets and letting them loose for a run in the Bergarden.

The police justify the order by charging that the dogs running loose about Berlin have become a nuisance and a menace to public health, and the non-owners of dogs are arguing against the unnecessary waste of food in maintaining the dogs.

The war of words is being conducted through the medium of communications to the newspapers.

The Little Darling

"Mother, isn't Auntie just like a bulldog?"

"Hush! Hush! Don't talk so loud!"

"Why? Would the bulldog be mad?"

OUTBURSTS OF EVERETT TRUE By Congo

THE PARK HAS FIRST SNOWFALL

THE PARK, (Special)—Mrs. Liddy Vandervanter, with her two babies, went to Baker Thursday. She is on her way to Pleasant Valley, where she will visit with her parents.

Lester Miller went to Baker Thursday.

Ed. Miles was in Union one day last week.

A. J. Vandervanter was at the Springs looking over his cream interest.

Roy Jones was in the city transacting business last week.

Joe Lay is working hard seeding this fall.

Jos. Foster was a visitor to the city one day last week.

Udell Lay went to the Springs last Saturday.

Ed. Gillespie was transacting business in Union last week.

Clarence Vanorder has hauled three or four loads of grain to Union the last two weeks.

Mrs. Ida M. Hunter returned home from Mrs. A. J. Vandervanter's Saturday.

Returning home from the mail box Jack Hunter had the sad experience of meeting the coyote that has scared so many people around her of late and took a shot at the running animal but missed. That's the sad part of the story, but it sometimes happens that way.

A party of cowboys headed by Cy Turner of Big Creek, are up at the head of Catherine creek rounding up the remaining cattle.

Mr. Ord of Big Creek, stopped all night at Jos. Lay's Friday. Mr. Ord was driving a bunch of cattle to Union.

Clarence Vanorder sold five head of beef cattle last week.

Jos. Lay has a deal on selling his Jersey cattle.

Othello Lay, now in Chicago, wrote his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Lay, stating that he arrived O. K. but cannot see why anyone wants to live in that black, smoky city for as he viewed it from the elevated railroad.

[illegible] Lockwood was in Union last week.

There is much activity on Rodger Flat, cutting logs and cord wood.

George South, of Medical creek, is hauling grain out of Jos. Lay's ranch last week.

The first snow fell the night of Sunday, the 25th. One-half inch at the Forks and three inches at the summit.

A bunch of five deer went down the trail at the Forks Tuesday morning. The deer will be coming back to their old headquarters for the winter as the snow begins to appear in the timber. And they have no enemies to fear from now on, only a few remaining coyotes and cougars, which the deer must contend with anywhere.

Girl Gnaws at Rope in Vain Attempt to Save Man Hanging Himself

LONDON, (INS)—Gnawing the rope with her teeth, Elizabeth Clark, a seventeen-year-old girl of Poplar, London, vainly attempted to save the life of Carl Anderson, a seaman, who committed suicide by hanging.

Walking with her young brother the girl saw the man hanging in a disused timber yard. She shrieked to some men passing to come to her aid, but they only looked in and went away.

She told her brother to chase after them for a knife but all declared they did not possess such a thing.

Then, unsuccessfully, she tried to gnaw the rope through with her teeth, with the man's great gaping eyes staring wildly at her all the time. Finally she found a piece of tiling and sawed through the rope, but by that time the man was dead.

At the inquest she told the coroner that she was not frightened after she saw the man's first stare. The coroner allowed her a fee of five shillings for her trouble.

What They All Think

Ed—What will he say to the man when he was fired?"

Wit—"He congratulated the school on turning out such fine men."—Purple Parrot.

"The papers usually describe everything the bride wears except the look on the groom's face."—Triangle.

Another nice thing about being married is that only your wife's thumb gets into the soup.
