THE OLD HOME TOWN

tain Applegate, although then only a boy, served as clerk to his father and soon learned to speak fluently the various Indian languages. He was made Assistant Indian Agent and later held the position of United States Indian Agent of the Klamath Indian Reservation.

The Chief of the Modoc (Old Settlement) tribe remained loyal to the government and rendered the United States Army valuable assistance in subduing the rebels. Had the Modoc chief not remained loyal it would have caused other tribes to have taken sides against the government and, with such a small number of United States soldiers and whites in the country, it is thought such action on the part of the combined Indian tribes would have resulted in totally wiping out all the whites then in Oregon.

Captain Applegate tells many interesting tales of pioneer days in Oregon. He has spent most of his life in the open and is well versed in woodcraft. He is about six feet two inches in height and, notwithstanding his advanced age, is remarkably active. He is a keen student of human nature and by his kind disposition and friendly ways has won a host of friends everywhere he has traveled.

His experience has been varied. He has been a private and an officer in the Oregon State Militia, Clerk to the United States Indian Agent, United States Indian Agent, school teacher, newspaper publisher, editor, printer, United States Game Warden, United States Game Warden, merchant, stage driver, insurance agent and is now in charge of the Municipal Auto Camping Grounds of Klamath Falls, Oregon.

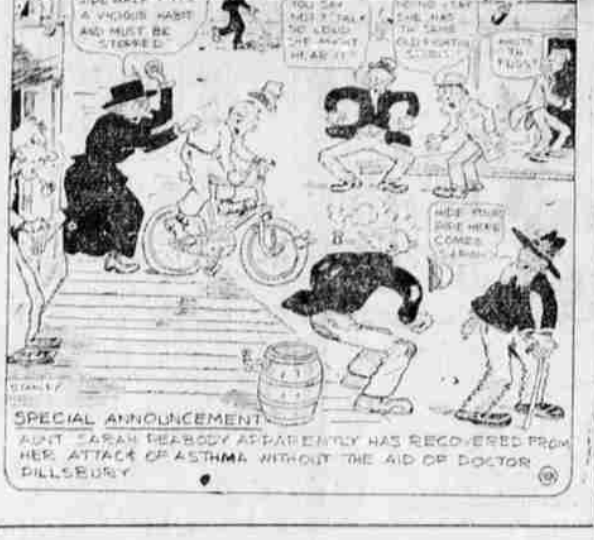

Information is given by producers (Continued from page 1) forming seemed to have gone and now it was a case of making the loss as little as possible. To do this he said it was necessary to have pure seed. Then Mr. McKinnon told of the advertisement in planting good seed, which has come over the valley and predicted that if anything like a balanced business condition could happen for the farmer, that the difference in profit and loss by those farming in the valley could be measured by the kind of seed used.

Mr. A. Miller, of Portland, spoke on Oregon as text, but incidentally called attention to the fact that he was a Democrat, which when explained by Chairman McKinnon meant that Mr. Miller is out seeking the nomination of his party for United States senator.

E. E. Braze, now one of the state industrial accident commission, was a guest of honor yesterday. It is the first time he has wandered back from the capital to his old home town since he was selected to run the state's accident insurance department. Mr. Braze admitted a lot of things, one of which was that he is not playing politics but is attending strictly to business. Another was that he was sure he was at home when he was in La Grande among his friends. He said he was hardly capital wise yet, for the ins and outs of state-house life were a little difficult for him to grasp.

Office Cat He knows. "Do you believe two can live as cheaply as one?" asked a La Grande. "No, I don't. I happen to be the father of twins." The naked hills he wanted to the breeze. The fields are made, the groves untracked. There are the limbs of all the abandoned trees. No wonder that the corn is stalked.

Payne Ranch in Cove Sold Mrs. Edna F. Conklin, who has owned the old Payne ranch in Cove for some time, has sold the property to J. M. and G. G. Buckland, the deal having been completed this morning. This is a tract of 200 acres located in Cove and surrounded by fine orchards. It has been used a diversified ranch and never has been set to fruit. The intention of the new owners is to plant the area to cherries next season and later on plant the apple trees.

The Good MAXWELL What the Public Thinks of The Good Maxwell. It must be apparent that the active demand for the good Maxwell is the result of wide spread conviction on two points: That Maxwell cars are soundly designed and built; and that at their present low prices they offer the best values in their field.
