GERMAN BABIES CAUSE WORRIES

BERLIN, (AP)—The high cost of living hounds Germans from the cradle to the grave.

Layette for the baby are so expensive few families can afford them. A child's shirt cost from 12 to 20 billion marks in November. Even a secondhand perambulator cost 30 gold marks, and the midwives and doctors have all placed their fees on a gold-mark basis. It costs trillions of marks to outfit a new arrival in a German family in these days of declining paper marks, and the trillions are lacking in all families excepting those of profiteers.

A girl baby is more of a tragedy than a boy baby in the average German family today, because of the dowry which must go with every German girl who finds a husband. No girl without a dowry can avoid being an old maid in Germany, and there is little prospect of the average German family accumulating enough surplus to endow daughters with sufficient linen and money to make them attractive to German men who have such a large assortment of women to choose from because of the great excess of the female population.
