PROPER POTATO STORAGE SAVES "HEAVY LOSSES"

Improper storage of the large Oregon potato crop results in heavy losses due to shrinkage and decay. Good storage houses and bins will prevent much of this loss. The best location for a storage place is on a dry, well-drained slope fronting on the sunny side to avoid undue high temperatures. Requirements for good storage are freedom from extremes of heat, cold and moisture, easy and thorough ventilation, ability to retain a uniform temperature, convenience in cleaning and use, ample space and durability.

The best temperature is from 32 to 38 degrees F. Potatoes that are warm may be left outside but cooled by the night air and then stored late at night or early in the morning.

In Oregon a storage house with ventilated bins is better satisfaction. It has a double wall six inches thick with ventilators to let the air in at the bottom and out at the top. The floors, walls, and partitions are made of dressed lumber. The bins are made with an air space between. The bins are separated from the main walls and floor by a sheet-iron air space and in joints and studing, thus providing complete circulation around the bins. The bins are made in sections for easy handling, cleaning and disinfecting.

Bins and storage houses are disinfected by treating or washing with copper sulfate (blue stone), 1 pound, water 10 gallons, or formaldehyde 1 pint, water 10 gallons. After disinfection the storage house and bins are well aired and dried before potatoes are stored in them again.

The Rainier Apple

The Apple to Plant for Profit
In our sincere judgment this is the finest dessert apple thus far developed. It has all the mild qualities of the Delicious, which commends it to the taste of those who cannot eat the more acid apples, and, in addition, it has a decidedly spicy flavor, will keep firm in ordinary storage for weeks without becoming mealy, and in cold storage the RAINIER keeps perfectly for a year.

Awarded Wilder Silver Medal 1922 American Pomological Society
We offer first class RAINIER trees for spring planting. Also other standard apples, peaches, pears, plums, prunes, apricots, etc., small fruits, shade trees, shrubbery and roses.
