JOURNALISM JUDGES NAMED

Many Prominent Oregon Men Selected to Pass on Merits of High School Newspapers.

PRINCIPAL—A number of leading newspapermen, authors and educators are invited among the number of judges who will determine the awards of the annual high school journalism efficiency contest conducted by the University of Oregon school of journalism. Winners of the awards will be made known at the convention of the High School Press Association to be held concurrently with the Association of High School Student Body Officers at the University, January 11 and 12.

The several contests and the judges who have agreed to serve follow:
1. For the best example of a reporter's work on a high school paper: Ben Hur Lampman, local staff, Portland Oregonian; Frank Jenkins, editor of the Eugene Register; George Turnbull, professor of journalism, University of Oregon.
2. For the best original editorial: N. J. Levinson, editorial writer, Portland Telegram; George Pulham, publisher of the Salem Capital Journal; Colin V. Diment,

3. For the best general mechanical makeup of a newspaper: Elbert Rode, editor of the Cottage Grove Sentinel; Paul R. Kelly, news editor of the Portland Oregonian; Robert C. Hall, professor of journalism, University of Oregon.
4. For the best record of service to a high school by a high school publication: Judge Jacob E. Kan-ner, Portland; W. A. Reid, secretary of the Corvallis Chamber of Commerce; Earl Kilpatrick, dean of the University of Oregon extension division.

5. For the best method of obtaining and handling advertising for a high school newspaper or magazine: Harry Marcus, advertising manager of the Oregon Journal, Portland; G. Lansing Hurd, manager of the Corvallis Gazette-Times; W. P. G. Thacher, professor of advertising, University school of journalism.
6. For the most adequate production of a mimeographed newspaper: Floyd W. Westerfield, manager of the Springfield News; Grace Edington, editor of Old Oregon, University of Oregon; Mary E. Kent, University extension division.
7. For the best high school notection in a Portland paper: Charles Fisher, editor the Eugene Guard; Hal E. Ross, managing editor, Oregon City Enterprise; Eric W. Allen, dean of the University school of journalism.
8. For the best high school notection in a paper outside of Portland: L. D. Felsheim, editor the Western World, Bandon; Arthur Rudd, editor of the University of Oregon Emerald; Alfred Powers, assistant director, University extension division.

9. For the best advertising and business management of a high school year book: Staff of the University school of journalism.
10. For the best story in a high school magazine: Edison Marshall, Medford; Charles Alexander, Albany and Mable Parsons, Portland.

"Is There a Santa Claus?"

Did you ever have a small boy or a small girl say to you: "Is there a Santa Claus—there isn't, is there?" What did you reply? Or did you laugh?

Perhaps the kiddie who asked was pretty wise, maybe scornful. But the point is that he did ask. No matter how fictional he thought the Santa Claus idea to be, the point is that he showed pretty plainly that he would like to believe in Santa Claus. For, he remembered how jolly it was when he did believe.

It would be a pity if there were no Santa Claus—that is to say, if the spirit of Santa Claus didn't exist.

That is really what makes Christmas bright for the little ones—the Santa Claus spirit.

Haven't you observed that some men and women, even after they have outgrown the believing-in-Santa Claus stage still hang up their stockings? They laugh in sheepish apology for the sentiment. But that stocking idea sort of holds a warm spot in their hearts. They like its sentiment, its Christmas spirit.

Nearly every small boy and small girl feels that way about it. Ask them, and see.

Maybe your youngsters have reached that wise age and you no longer get the chance to play Santa Claus.
You know you miss the thrill of it.

Why don't you awaken that Santa Claus spirit you've got and go out and get some fun out of it? Go out and pretend you are Santa Claus. Take along some gifts to fill some strange kiddies' stockings. Maybe they still believe in Santa Claus—with a starved yearning belief that too often has meant disappointment Christmas morning.

Metal Glands Give Aged Locomotives Additional Power

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Locomotives, while not subject to gland transplanting, can be rejuvenated, according to an announcement by the Southern Pacific company.

The railroad in authority for the statement that weak and decrepit locomotives can be vitalized, energized and otherwise made into hard-working babies of trains.

"Some of these engines are being operated with greater efficiency than when they were new," said George H. Hornum, superintendent of motive power for the railroad.

Various new appliances and parts are "grafted" on the old engines. They are overhauled from tender to cowcatcher.

No. 3025 is the oldest engine of its type on the S. P. line. Recently it was refitted, and now it is carrying the heaviest load daily the entire distance between San Francisco and Los Angeles, 471 miles.

Plan to Fill Danube with Barges VIENNA (AP)—All the energetic is being wrong from the historic old Danube, made famous in song, music and story almost everywhere. Presently the barge who once but little about sailing are looking forward to next summer which promises to be the busiest in a transportation way, in the river's history.
