X-RAY PHOTOS OF MUMMIES

CHICAGO, (AP)—Pictures of mummies taken with the X-Ray disclose conditions existing in the bodies of ancient Peruvians and Egyptians which otherwise would escape our knowledge; unwrapping the mummy means its destruction for purposes of accurate study. Such pictures have been taken by D. C. Davies, director of the Field Museum of Natural History, co-operating with the Victor X-Ray Corporation.

These pictures revealed also what had been buried with the body. For instance, various Peruvian mummy packs were found to contain ears of corn, pottery, vessels of clay containing shells, bits of metal, guard vessels, beads, clay figurines and cut bone objects.

"In addition to the range of objects found in the bundles, we learn from the X-Ray pictures something definite concerning the age, sex, and condition of the bones of the individual buried therein," said Mr. Davies. "We are able to discover the nature of injuries received during his life, as well as determine whether the deceased was a sufferer from chronic rheumatism, tuberculosis of the lungs, caries of the teeth, and other conditions of disease."

"In the Egyptian collections the mummy of a man of the twenty-sixth dynasty was photographed in four sections, beginning at the head, and furnishes a wonderfully clear picture of the entire skeleton. Here we may expect to find traces of pathological conditions such as bony tumors, rickets, hydrocephalus, pyorrhea and caries of the teeth, all of which have been shown in the examination of unwrapped skeletal material to have been common conditions of disease among the Egyptians of the most ancient times. The great advantage of the X-raying process in this regard is that it is possible to discern accurately these facts without injuring in any way the exhibition value of the specimens.

"Mummified cats, hawks, jackals, crocodiles and gazelles, also have been pictured with very satisfactory results. In the case of the hawk, even the tail feathers are very definitely shown. The picture of the mummy of the gazelle brings out the skeleton with marvelous distinction. That of the crocodile also shows the bones still to be in their proper relative position to one another."

Further investigations are to be made upon the Egyptian material as well as upon vessels made of marble, alabaster and metal. The work will be extended to several departments, and plans also are under way to take X-ray pictures of rock formations, which are more than 3,000 years old. Moving pictures of the process are contemplated.
