 California professor claims college girls are cave women, but he may be judging by their clothes.

rides endless laughter when the two cattlemen reach the city in which Bonnie Bell, educated at an Eastern college, is to live. Bonnie Bell builds a mansion next door to Winner, whose wife is the dictator of society. Bonnie Bell finds that all of her father's millions will not get her into society, and in her loneliness she makes friends with the gardener of the Winner estate. The comedy drama that arises out of this friendship, which finally brings Bonnie Bell her heart's desire, won the hearty commendation of the audience at the Sherry Theatre yesterday.

The production is one of the most lively that has been seen here for many months. The ranch life is pictured with fidelity, and the scenes showing the mansion in which Bonnie Bell found only loneliness are the most easily examples of studio architecture that have been presented.

David Torrence gives a splendid impersonation of Colonel Wright, Frank Sheridan who much laughter as Curly, and James Morrison plays the hired "man next door." Pretty Alice Calhoun, a favorite with screen fans in this city, plays Bonnie Bell, giving to her the sparkle of youth. Others in the cast are adequate.

"Comedy showing, 'Homo Blues'."

"Hell's Hole" Will Be Shown at The Star Saturday and Sunday.

The announcement from the Star Theatre that the special William Fox offering, "Hell's Hole," starring Charles Jones, will be played beginning Saturday for a two-day run is of unusual interest. "Hell's Hole" takes its name from the dynamic climax to which the story speeds, with Jones "adapting" on the action, with characteristic daring and abandon. The big highlight preceding the climax is the onslaught of an avalanche, especially staged for this picture in the California hills. This avalanche, vigorous in its conception and thrilling in its execution, buries the cabin in which Charles Jones, as Tom Musgrave, holds his treacherous friend and the girl is lover captive.

The picture commences with one of those characteristic Jones exhibitions—a free-for-all fight, rebellious, primitive.

Playing the feminine lead in "Hell's Hole" is a convincing heavy. Others in the cast include Kathleen Key, Hardy Kirkland, and Eugene Padelleiro, who plays a Mexican pistol-happy to the real villain of "Hell's Hole."

Director Emmett J. Flynn has handled the details of the story effectively. The story is an original from George Scarborough's pen, adapted by Bernard McConville.

"The Bad Man" Now Running at the Arcade Theater—Proves Fine Drama.

Undoubtedly motion pictures are improving. "The Bad Man," an Edwin Carey-First National picture which opened at the Arcade Theatre yesterday, is an fine example of the forward strides that are being made in motion pictures as could be wished.

The principal reason for this is that "The Bad Man" is a photograph with a plot. Most motion pictures are supposed to have a plot, but in "The Bad Man" it is presented so that all can see. Possibly this is because the screen version of Emerson Brown's play is a literal translation, but regardless of the cause Director Carey deserves great credit for maintaining the plot consistently throughout the production.

Holbrook Blinn, star of the original stage version, is the star also of the film play. Blinn is so accomplished an actor that comment on his ability would be out of place. Sufficient it is to say that there is no screen actor that can be called to mind at this moment who could give a finer interpretation of the role than Blinn. Charles A. Selton, in the role of "Uncle Henry," was also a member of the original stage cast and the same praise goes for him, too.

Ernie Bennett, whose work with Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood" will be remembered, plays the leading feminine role. She is delightfully dramatic at times, yet whimsical and she lends her own life to a very different role. Jack Mulhall in an adequate hero and Walter McGrath makes a very finished villain and Walt Street broker all in one. The others in the cast whose work deserves special mention are Harry Myers, Toddy Sampson, Stanton Heck, Thomas Delmar, Frank Lanning and Peter VonKudla.

"The Bad Man" and a late Fox News will be the attraction at the Arcade Theatre today and Saturday.

Uganda Wars on Elephants NAIROBI, Central Africa (AP)—A number of African hunters are to be appointed official elephant hunters in the Uganda colony, in view of the frequency of elephant raids upon native cultivation.

In making this announcement, it is explained the hunters will be expected to drive off the elephants in different districts and to shoot if necessary, but the ivory will be the property of the government.

Original Americans were noted for their high cheek bones; the moderns for their high nose bones.

DOCTOR SCOFF'S 'SYNTHETIC MAN'

BERRINLEY, Cal. (U.S.)—"Synthetic" men who will result from the process of gland transplantation are an impossibility, in the opinion of Dr. T. C. Burnett, associate professor of physiology at the University of California. "New men cannot be made from old men, nor can a man be made over out of various factors from other people," he said, in contradicting the prophecy of Dr. Max Theodor, made in a lecture before the Royal Farnham Academy of Science, that synthetic men would be a result of this process.

According to Dr. Burnett, it is too early to draw conclusions as to the results of gland transplantation, for where these extracts are injected, in some they have apparently aided the subject, while in others no evidence of their success has been revealed as yet. It is his belief that, because the process and its study are still in their infancy, only preliminary and provisional conclusions as to their effect may be reached.

The grafts seem to last a certain length of time, and, although they do not make a man young, a number of experiments have shown that they make a man feel better and become more vigorous for the time being. Perhaps this may be
