IRATE HUSBAND WHIPPED WIFE

CANTON, N. Y. (U.P.)—A keyhole vision of his spouse resulted on the leg of another man, missing fingers (found in the visitor's ear, and cigar ashes in his bed, when he smokes only a pipe, resulted in a horsewhipping for Mrs. Caroline Gessler by her husband, Frank A. Gessler, who asks a divorce.

The "other man" in the case, unnamed, and admittedly unknown, is believed to be an Oswego doctor by Gessler, who says that all attempts to identify him upon his visit to the Gessler farm house here have proven futile.

"It seems that these fellows have been going on for some time," declares Gessler, "but I didn't know of them until about two weeks ago."

Curtains Down.

"At that time I returned from one of my meetings and saw the curtains in the front of the house pulled down. This is unusual in our home, and when I started to go into the room I found the floor trampled.

"Having removed my hip boots I was in stocking feet and my approach had not been heard by my wife and her suitors. I stepped and peered through the keyhole. I could just see the back of a man on the sofa, and then I made out my wife's head on his shoulder.

"I put my shoulder to the door and tried to take a look, but it held. Finally my wife opened it, but she was alone. I ran into the room and saw a man hurrying to the door and a moment later heard the roar of a motorcar.

Wife Denies It.

Gessler said his wife denied she was sitting in any man's lap, and declares her husband's disposition is due to a belief that the husband had suddenly gone insane.

"I could not make her story and so had to accept it for that time. But I kept a close watch on what was happening around my home. Nothing occurred for three days and then I saw a car near my gate. I went first and impounded the car.

"It was a popular make, but had no license plates on it. In the back I saw nothing at first, but as I looked for the plates I pulled aside an old robe and

OIL IS FOUND IN THE NORTH

MOSCOW, (AP)—Soviet Russia has been unable, so far, to do much towards the rehabilitation of her existing mines, but scarcely a day passes that some new discovery of mineral or oil deposits is not reported.

The Russians themselves have long known that various unexplored regions of the north and Siberia hold some of the richest metal deposits in the world. During the past year dozens of scientific expeditions have been sent out to investigate the possibilities of these regions.

From Vladivostok it is reported that the commission of Professor Polevoy, which has returned from Kamchatka, announces it was successful in finding great masses of all these, so plentiful that it literally could be scooped from the clay.

Explorations are continuing in the Kola peninsula, where last year a number of hitherto unknown metals were discovered, in the mountainous districts between the Arctic and the White Sea. These metals are supposed to have been of meteorological origin.

Work also is continuing in the exploration of the huge field of magnetic iron ore in the Kursk province in South Central Russia, which for a number of years has been known to exist and was extensively studied by scientists as the "Kursk Anomaly." In this region the magnetic strength of the ore is such that compasses point towards it instead of to the magnetic pole in the north. Estimates as to the quantity of iron ore in the field vary but sufficient boring has been done to indicate that it is probably the largest individual iron deposit yet discovered.

While some of the more enthusiastic scientists have recommended immediate development of the
