SULFUR ON SOME FRUITS CAUSES CANNING GRIEF

Certain fruits treated with sulfur dust or sprays while developing will form gas when canned in time, reports H. P. Barnes, plant pathologist of the O. A. C. experiment station. "This is true of gooseberries, and may prove true with other fruits such as prunes.

This fact which was shown in recent experience may influence the grower who plans to sell prunes to canneries, in dealing with brown rot control as explained in station circular 53 on Brown Rot control.

"Sulfur or sulfur compounds in any form should not be used on the fruit itself when it is to be disposed of to canners," says Professor Barnes. "Further work is planned by the station to find the shortest time before picking within which an application can safely be made on such fruit as prunes without danger of trouble from gas formation.

With gooseberries it is thought unnecessary to put any sulfur dust or spray on for mildew control.

DEMAND GOOD FOR APPLES

COVE—(Special)—There is a new demand for apples and the apple men are busy packing some cars, getting them ready to ship.

There was a called meeting of the Woman's club at the Central telephone office recently. The business of the afternoon was in regard to the library building and committees were appointed to look after the various departments of building. The work of building is getting well under way. The whole community is interested and many men are busy hauling sand, laying stone, etc. All are giving their services free of charge.

Following the regular meeting Mrs. Nellie Marten served the members of the club a delicious luncheon.

Stewart French had a narrow escape from serious injury last Wednesday, when he was struck while the fruit is developing if a thorough spray of lime sulfur is given, first when leaf clusters are slightly expanded and again just before the first blossoms are fully expanded.

This method is fully explained in the Oregon station circular 42. Insect Pests and Diseases of Gooseberries, by A. L. Lovetts and H. P. Barnes.

Indian Pageant Presented.
