Last Showing of "Conductor 1492" at Sherrys Today.

A temperamental fleecy white goat harnessed to a cart ran wild recently at the Warner Brothers studio and threw its driver Walter "Spec" O'Donnell the twelve-year-old film prodigy to the pavement of an Irish village constructed by Johnny Hines for his latest picture, "Conductor 1492," which he himself wrote.

Scared by the sight of several hundred "extras" and the lashings of the youngster, the goat bolted against a grocery store and in turning a corner in an endeavor to get away, upset the cart, causing "Spec" to land on his side.

Hines immediately stopped filming the Irish scenes and rushed to the aid of the little fellow. He found "Spec" bruised about the face and arms, and comforted him with the information that he didn't have to drive the cart any more. But "Spec," after a few moments became insistent, stating that he didn't mind being upset again so long as he could drive the goat.

"Conductor 1492" will play at the Sherry Theatre, as the feature attraction, last day today.

"Steadfast Heart" Scenes Taken in Town Of Historic Interest.

The exterior scenes of "The Steadfast Heart," now showing at the Arcade theatre, were made at Fredericksburg, Va., unquestionably one of the most historic towns in the United States. Such great Americans as George Washington, John Paul Jones and James Madison were born or lived within the town's area. It has furnished seven presidents of the United States; namely, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Harrison, Tyler and Taylor.

In addition to this the first resolution declaring the independence of the United States was passed in Fredericksburg.

And last, and by no means least, the man responsible for the success of the invention of the first motion picture camera, Thomas Armat was a Fredericksburg product.

"The Steadfast Heart" which will be shown at the Arcade theatre for two days, is adapted from the Clarence Budington Kelland story which ran serially in Collier's Weekly.

BURGLAR ALARM WILL SHOOT AT BANK ROBBERS

CHICAGO (AP)—An automatic burglar alarm for banks which fires blank cartridges simultaneously in all the money cages and from the direction of all doors, is among the protective devices under test in the laboratories of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Rapid fire automatic pistols set off by push buttons distributed throughout the bank constitute the alarm feature of the system. The theory of the inventor is that the fusillade will put the bandits to flight.

The mechanism, housed in a small steel box beneath the tellers' window, is operated on the cartridge belt principle of the machine gun. As many firing boxes as are desired may be installed, and the trigger buttons may be distributed to every employe.

Improvements to make the device fool proof through perfections will prevent its being loaded with genuine bullets, are suggested by the underwriters. Without this, it is pointed out, over cautious bankers might so charge the system as to endanger the lives of bank patrons.

"Tanlac My Salvation" Says, Seattle Lady

Fifteen Years Stomach Trouble Overcome by World's Greatest Tonic

"Tanlac has truly been my salvation and I will never be without it as long as I live," is the appreciative statement of Mrs. Anna M. Yackel, 214 ... Ave., N., Seattle, Wash.

"For 15 years stomach trouble had me in misery day and night. The terrible pain and distress almost drove me frantic and I was so weak and thin I could hardly walk. I tried everything—treatments, dieting, even an operation—but kept getting worse and began to feel as if death would be preferable to my suffering. Then, two years ago, I broke down completely.

"What Tanlac did for me seemed too good to be true. Just five bottles relieved the stomach trouble, gave me a ravenous appetite and built me up sixteen pounds, leaving me in splendid health. Why, I can hardly realize I am the same person. Tanlac has earned my lasting gratitude."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.
