

The First Spring Hat—

What should it be?

THE Parisian—the New Yorker says, "Small. Tailored. Straw. Dark. Navy with a touch of white." For then one is hatted smartly and practically for all the events and errands of the day.

Replicas of New York's first spring models have just arrived here. They were created for us—then rushed to us by the Vogue Hat Company of Fifth Avenue. Come early—while they are still all here. Come—whether you come to buy—or come to look.

drivers who braved danger and hardship on the Oregon-California trail in the days before the railroad. He went through many thrilling experiences in the rough life of that day and was known as a courageous man.

After the coming of the railroad, he took up agriculture and operated a large farm near Canyonville until ill health caused him to retire. He was affiliated with the democratic party and in the convention days was a figure in state politics, although he would never run for office himself.

Radio for All Chinese Ships.

BEKING (AP)—The ministry of communications has issued an order requiring all vessels plying Chinese waters, if of tonnage or over, to be equipped with radio. The order applies to foreign and Chinese vessels alike. It is estimated that about 300 ships will be affected.

Tiger Team Ready For Trip To Salem Tourney

Coach MacTavish and 7 Tossers to Leave for Salem Tuesday Night.

Coach Lester MacTavish and his seven basketball players will leave La Grande Tuesday night to compete in the state basketball tournament to be held in Salem on the 12, 14, and 15 of this month. This tourney is an annual affair conducted by the Willamette University and representatives from all sections of the state compete. This is the first time La Grande high school has had the honor of entering the competition since 1919.

MacTavish states that the rough edges have now been trimmed and the team is playing the best basketball yet this year. Nightly practice has resulted in the work rounding out into an even smoother condition than was manifest at Union, when the boys romped thru to the district championship.

A rally and pep meeting is to be held in the high school Tuesday morning to give the quintette a "real, honest-to-goodness" send-off and the student body is expected to turn out en masse at the secondary train when the team leaves for western Oregon.

Players who will make the trip are: Captain Owen Price, forward; Ray Lynch, forward; Bernard Hummel, center and forward; Eugene Metcalf, guard; James Cook, guard; George Stager, center and guard; Roy Williams, forward and guard.

Coincidentally with the meeting to-morrow the Pendleton team will hold their first practice at the Boarding house.

The La Grande committee is busy at present, not only with organization plans, but also in reference to arranging for a ball park at the high school. Plans are formulating in an encouraging manner at present, according to announcements.

The officers of the local club are as follows: Frank Hayes, president; Jack Foyre, J. E. Short, Claude Serantini, Harris French, Carl Helm, Charles Reynolds and A. J. Martin, directors; Charles Reynolds, secretary-treasurer; Harris French, manager, and Hector Melonis, field manager.

MITT ARMADA TO INVADE U. S.

(By JACOB A. HUSTON.)

LONDON, (ING)—Invasions of America by European boxers, hitherto have been undertaken chiefly by individual scrappers, but a more attack upon America's boxing prestige is shortly to be made by an imposing array of Old-World knuckle-dusters.

The generalissimo of the invading army is Harry Lewis, who managed Augie Hatner, the American, middle-weight, during his stay in Europe last year. He will be assisted by John Alf, a French boxing manager and trainer, and the star of the stable, which Lewis and Alf will transport across the Atlantic in Billy Mascard, the European featherweight champion.

Mascard's objective in the United States will be a match with Johnny Dundee for the world's featherweight title. Since the retirement of Eugene Criqui, Mascard has come to the front as the best of the European featherweights, and he is believed to be good enough to give Dundee a run for his money. Mascard is not entirely a stranger to American boxing fans, as he has performed there before.

Two Belgian mid-weighters will be included in the entourage. One of these is Pete Hobin, a welterweight, who is eager to take on Mickey Walker in a championship bout. Hobin also has been in the United States before and claims that he once knocked out Walker in the seventh round in a bout staged before Mickey had acquired the welterweight title. The other Belgian is Louis Hebrants, a featherweight, who has made quite a reputation in European circles, his chief claim to distinction being a twenty-round draw with Criqui.

If the claims of the European "armada" are correct, Luis Angel Prijo has a new rival in the heavyweight ranks, who curiously enough also hails from south of the Equator. Included in the Levine-Alf menage is Ramon Rojas, who is a native of Chile, but who has absorbed most of his athletic training in Europe. Rojas is a large young man with large ideas. He thinks it is incumbent upon him to demonstrate that he and not "Red Pat" Luis is the real prince of the ring of South American heavyweights. Having accomplished this he is perfectly willing to allow public opinion to force him into a bout with Dempsey, provided the promoters talk a financial language he can understand.

The real test for American boxing will be the Old-World aggregation of scrappers is concerned, will be Brnie Lizard, who is a featherweight and the only English man in the outfit. He claims to be the featherweight champion of England, which gives him a title for advertising purposes. What makes Brnie an attraction, however, is not his title but his shape. He is five feet ten and one-half inches tall and weighs 122 pounds. Physically speaking, he is a boxing feck, built along the general lines of a wire-less aerial; but those who have seen him in action declare he knows how to manage his longitude and that his lack of latitude is no particular handicap to him in the ring.

According to present plans, the voyaging honors will sail for New York at an early date and will be ready to listen to the conversation of any promoters or managers who care to join the welcoming delegation at the dock.

Clark Griffith Listens. Miller Huggins is the tolerant type of manager who is pleased to accept suggestions from those under him. John McGraw isn't. Neither is Connie Mack nor Frank Chance. They use the one-man system and use it well.

There may be something to say on both sides of a given question, but McGraw, Mack and Chance will do the saying. So will Clark Griffith, if he ever again takes up the managerial end of the game. Griffith listened once and once was a great plenty. It cost him a pennant as manager of the old Yankees.

"We were to go to Boston for a single game in the final week of the season and then return to New York for a double-header the next day," says Clark. "I told Jack Chesbro to stay home because he had pitched the day before and was due to pitch one of the games the following day."

"He pleaded to be taken along and I listened. Chesbro was to be presented with some gift by friends in Boston, so I let him have his way. Mistake Number One.

"The crowd was so great in Boston that we had to move our hotel out along the first base line. I didn't see Chesbro again until game time, when he came to me, said he had warmed up and was ready to pitch. I said no, but Willie Keeler and others got at me and I consented.

"They knocked Chesbro out of the box, we lost the game, the double header in New York the next day and finally the pennant."

"Small, But a Work Divine." This minute steak's a beauty. The wily magnate cried. I fear 'tis out of season. The hungry route sighed. —F.R.

An Olympic Bet at Two. The present indoor track and field campaign, of more than ordinary moment because of the proximity of the Olympic games, has developed many fine prospects and three real stars among the young runners, namely Joe Tierney of Holy Cross; Schuyler Cook, of Penn State, and Lloyd Hahn, of Boston.

There may be at least one individual victory at Paris to be found among this trio. The writer happens to like Tierney at 400 metres. He has done 58 seconds for 500 yards, a world's indoor record, and is coming all the time. At that, there wasn't a half mile in the world who could have beaten Hank the night he did clear to 1:54 for 500 metres, indoors. Hahn also is coming but probably will have to come too far to head off Nurni, of Finland, and Wide, of Norway, at 1,500 metres.

President Angell, of Yale, has suggested that Big Three football coaches be removed to the stands when the games begin. It is now up to the coaches to suggest that President Angell try to run his university from the New Haven Railroad.

Gov. Pierce & Son Cheat Portland. —At least that might be said by Portland dealers, because Pierce & Son are willing that Union County shall enjoy the cream of its own products. Governor Pierce & Son, breeders and raisers of big horns of pure-bred Herefords, have contracted to sell us a supply of their famed steers, and the first allotment is now on the block of our retail stores. We are especially delighted to announce that we can give our customers this service, and publicly express our gratitude to Pierce & Son. Governor Pierce & Son have commanded the top price in all offerings at the Portland Stock Yards, and in order to keep these splendid steers in La Grande we had to pay a bonus—a substantial bonus, too—but we did it willingly. Now we can check, because the fastidious wealth of Portland has nothing on us; that which they paid big prices to get is now selling where it was raised—Union County. The steers now at hand, and the balance to come, are identical with the ones that created a sensation and drew a bonus in Portland. They are all grain fed—an important item in the raising of beef. The particular epicurean wants grain fed beef—when he can get it. The average weight of these steers is around one thousand pounds, and their age puts them just beyond the baby beef stage—just where the most delectable steaks and roasts are produced. At no stage of beef production is the flavor as rich, or the tissue as tender as in and just out of the baby beef stage. We are as tickled as a kid with a new pair of boots, over this contract, and we want our customers to share of joy and special offerings with us. In fact, it is and always will be our policy to keep superior quality always foremost in the operation of our extensive plants and retail establishments.
