Fashion Notes

Red Kid Motoring Hat. Paris.—For motoring and for other sports, there is a chic little hat of red kid. In something between a turban and a jockey cap effect. Its visor is of transparent mica.

Mottos on Hats. Paris.—After all, why should not a language become an ornament? Yet it looks odd to see a hat, blouse or skirt decorated with a motto, even when the embroidery is on the Czech order and the motto is in some such idea as "Tout Ou Rien."

To Relieve Severity. London.—Some of the tailored costumes seen here today employ the shiny and the dull sides of crepe, satin to relieve the severity of the frock. A suit in crepe-satin has the coat made with the shiny side out, while the skirt has the dull side out.

Bright Bathing Hosiery. New York.—Not to be outdone by bathing suits, the bathing hosiery has burst forth in a veritable riot of color. It seems stockings are to be worn on the beach this year—stockings in awning stripes, with fishes and shells doing duty as cloaks.

PRETTY NIPPON PRINCESS FOND OF SMART GARB

(By Duke Parry) TOKYO, (JNS)—The crown Princess of Japan who was said by Mrs. Cyrus E. Woods, wife of the American Ambassador to Japan, to be "one of the most attractive looking Japanese women I have ever met," is not unlike her Western sisters so far as her enjoyment of beautiful clothes is concerned. Crown Princess Nagako Kuni has been shown by the Japanese photographer in Kimonos of girid design, or bamboo, Kimonos featuring the dragon and the Imperial phoenix bird of Japan. In foreign dress she has appeared equally attractive, her demand for "attractive picture hats, dainty Summer frocks and the latest shoes from Paris having been frequently noted.

These Japanese who were interested in every detail of the Crown Princess's new life at the Akasaka Palace, as the wife of the future Emperor of Japan, were particularly pleased when a Tokyo department store well known for its dealings with the titled families of Japan told recently of some of the frocks in Princess Nagako Kuni's wardrobe, which was delivered just before the wedding to the Akasaka Detached Palace. Especially interesting to the Japanese was the fact that the Crown Princess, while apparently favoring Western dresses, never failed to choose cloth in which was prominent some of the figures used in the texture of the Japanese kimono. Various colors and designs were shown in the most recent purchases of the Crown Princess. One attractive dress was on a ground color of ivory about with cherry flowers and the lucky mandarin duck figuring in the pattern. The Japanese idea of mandarin ducks makes the birds a lucky omen to the new bride, as the males and females never separate and are models as devoted mates. Another fine design is a happy combination of the pine tree, peonies and phoenix birds. "Mitsie in Hovers" is the name of the design for the third dress. Roses of the most attractive shades are featured in another, while roosters on an ancient purple background convey a classic sentiment in still another one. One dress, which is said to be a particular favorite with the crown Princess, shows bright spring flowers on a purple background.

Porema in Tokio are looking forward with great anticipation to the annual Cherry Blossom Party, which is held in Tokio every Spring at the Shinjuku Detached Palace grounds. At this time a limited number of new arrivals in Japan will be allowed to enter the palace grounds and to have a close view of the Crown Princess, who will at that time attend her first Cherry Blossom Party as the Crown Princess of Japan.

NAGGING WIFE BOON TO HUSBY, SAYS DOCTOR

WASHINGTON, (I.N.S.)—The nagging woman probably is promoting the life of her husband rather than shortening it, according to the theory of Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute of New York, who submitted his data in the National Museum, in Washington.

A wife's nagging, he ventured did much good if it caused her husband to take precautions to protect his health. Married men, he said, live longer than those who remain bachelors.

Dr. Fisk said that more than half the people were sick, but did not know it. He believes there are few diseases that cannot be prevented.

He endorsed periodical examinations, particularly of the eyes and teeth. He estimated that among working men there are 25,000,000 persons with defective eyesight and as many with faulty teeth.

The physician put the economic loss to the nation each year, resulting from preventable diseases, at $3,000,000,000.

Dr. Fisk declared that human intelligence, if applied, could alter the fact that average men are at their best between the ages of 18 and 31 and that the limit of their working span is 42 to 45 years.

TAX OFFICE SWAMPED

SALEM, Ore.—Based on the activities of his department during the last week, Earl Fisher, state tax commissioner, has predicted that more than 40,000 state income tax returns will have been received at his office when the time for filing federal income tax returns expires next Saturday night.

Mail brought approximately 1500 returns. As a result of the congestion in the income tax department Mr. Fisher had a number of his employees at work opening letters and checking returns.

A Hick Town is One in Which a Man Can Find Nothing Thrilling to Do While His Wife is Away.

PHILADELPHIA, (AP)—Leaping 1000 feet or more to earth at the end of a swaying parachute that may be either good or defective, is the perilous business of "Lucy" and "Flibbert," the "heavy" twins of the naval air service.

'TWIN' TRY PARACHUTES

The twins claim a certain portion of the naval aircraft factory at the Philadelphia navy yard as their birthplace. For them life is not only a series of ups and downs, but full of many striking incidents, especially when parachutes fail to open.

Named by the air sailors, the twins are amazingly unattractive in appearance. Their chances for winning a beauty contest are all for their countenances, when gray from birth, are kept that way by the hazardous nature of their duties.

Made in the semblance of human form, "Lucy" and "Flibbert" weigh respectively 150 and 200 pounds each. They work in the summer flying costume of the air force, but their constitution is said by the sailors to consist mainly of coiled rope covered with canvas with enough buckshot in their chests to bring them to the specified weights required for parachute testing. Bombs.

Leather boots and gloves and a picturesque loop knot on top of their heads complete their costumes. The loop is their sole means of support—from the parachute.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headaches, sneezing, snuffling, mucus discharges or dryness, no struggle for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

As soon as the aircraft factory completes a new "Lucy" or "Flibbert," the newcomer in aviation is shipped to one of the naval flying stations. They test the parachutes provided for the quick descent of the crew of the airplane in case of accident in the clouds. The test vary, "Lucy" or "Flibbert" may be assigned to hurdle downward from a lazily swaying balloon, or they may be shoved off the wing of an airplane speeding at 125 miles an hour. Despite their many hard knocks and terrific falls, their friends, the sailors, say they have never failed to report for work the next day.
