Lloyd's Comedy Said To Be Greatest Ever Produced.

"Harold Lloyd" is undoubtedly the most consistent performer in the movies—a tireless young man in horn-rimmed glasses whose energy and ingenuity are on tap twelve months in the year.

That's what Bob Sherwood, motion picture critic of Life, had to say about the comedian who opened Monday at the Arcade theatre in his seventh feature comedy, "Safety Last!" But after seeing the first seven-reel comedy ever produced and after having laughed from beginning to end until our sides ached, we will say more. Lloyd is dynamic in the world of laughter, and when I say "Safety Last!" is the greatest comedy ever produced I am not using superlatives. Well, see it yourself!

Never was there anything funnier screened or more thrilling than Lloyd's climb up the side of a twelve story building. There's a laugh for every brick. A thrill-a-minute, laugh-a-second comedy! And a real story with as delightful love scenes as the most romantic blood-and-thunder picture this year has ever witnessed. The three scenes set the large audience in shrieks of laughter, but the scene in the department store where Lloyd is frightened to death to hear the floorwalker will find him with his fiancée are also screamingly funny.

File Star—Then Is Hurt On The Street!

Richard Denny, popular Universal star, cheated death and even serious injury for several days in that most thrilling and dangerous of all sports, automobile road racing, and then received injuries which put him in bed for many weeks while driving his town car around a corner of Hollywood Boulevard.

Denny spent several weeks at Del Monte and Monterey in Northern California, while exterior scenes were being filmed for "Sporting Youth," his newest Universal-Jewel feature, coming next Friday to the Star theatre. It is a story of automobile racing and the big climax of the picture is a road race. The course used is the same that is used for the annual races at San

"No Trespassing" At Sherry's Last Day—Delightful Movie.

Joseph C. Lincoln, author of the forthcoming Irene Castle production, "No Trespassing," which will be shown at the Sherry theatre, by birth, Mr. Lincoln spent the greater part of his life on the Cape before he commenced to write his famous Cape Cod stories. So far as practical knowledge of Cape Cod kitchens is concerned, Mr. Lincoln ought to know what he is talking and writing about.

For this reason Director Edwin L. Hollywood feels particularly elated over Mr. Lincoln's warm praise of a Cape Cod kitchen scene which appears in this picture. Before the studio set for this scene was built, Mr. Lincoln, together with Director E. Douglas Bingham, journeyed from New York to Cape Cod to look over the possibilities for exteriors.

When the company returned to New York the kitchen set was built in the studio, following the plans drawn by Mr. Hollywood and Mr. Bingham. A few days later Mr. Lincoln visited the studio to watch Mr. Hollywood shoot the scene. For a few minutes he stood looking at the set, his head tipped characteristically on one side.

"Do you like it?" asked Mr. Hollywood.

"Fine," said Mr. Lincoln. "In fact, you've got more Cape Cod atmosphere here than there actually is on the Cape. It couldn't be better."

How The Cement In Your Concrete Is Made

One hundred years ago an English mason named Joseph Aspdin invented portland cement—the basic material in all concrete material. The haphazard and uncertain methods of that early day offer a most striking contrast to the precise operations, close quality control and huge outputs of present-day plants.

Portland cement got the name "PORTLAND" because Aspdin noted its resemblance when hardened to a well known English building stone quarried on the isle of Portland. Today it is commonly known merely as cement.

The cement industry now ranks tenth in the amount of power installed and is the fourth largest manufacturing user of coal. Great quantities of oil and some gas are also used for fuel.

Over 16,000,000 pounds of high explosives were set off in cement mill quarries during 1923.

More than 150 pounds of raw materials are required for each 91-pound sack of cement.

At a temperature of 2700 degrees Fahrenheit generated by a roaring 30-foot tongue of flame, the finely powdered mixture form a new chemical and physical compound called clinker.

After the clinker has cooled, this glass-hard material must be ground to the fineness of flour. In storage, clinker is inert, but as soon as ground to cement, it must be protected from moisture.

Cement sacks are first tied with wire ties, then hung upside down on a machine and filled through a flap valve in one corner of the sack. In 1923 over 500 million sacks were filled for shipment.

Until needed for shipment, cement is stored in large concrete bins. One out of every 33 freight cars carried by the railroads contains cement or supplies for cement mills.

Why Pay the Penalty of Lying Awake?

MANY people spend hours at night, restlessly tossing from side to side, waiting for sleep. All because they drink coffee with their evening meal.

If the caffeine in coffee irritates your nervous system and keeps you awake when you should be asleep, recuperating your energies, why not stop coffee and drink Postum?

Postum is a pure cereal beverage, absolutely free from caffeine or anything that can disturb health and comfort. Many prefer Postum for its delightful aroma and flavor.

If you want to know the truth, change to Postum for a month or so, and see how much better you will sleep and feel.

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason"

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water; Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.
