Thomas Meighan
Plans Leading Role
In "Pied Piper Malone"

A lot is said about individuals who contribute the various portions that go to make up the complete picture. Well, here's one—"Pied Piper Malone," featuring Thomas Meighan in the title of star, that also has a whole of a cast—a personnel that Lloyd's would underwrite cheaply and guarantee a tremendous success. It will appear at the Arcade Theatre beginning today.

"Pied Piper Malone" was written by Booth Tarkington and com-mentally, there is something of a personal element in this—a long close friendship between Mr. Tarkington and Mr. Meighan.

Alfred Green directed the picture and Tom Gearty wrote the scenario. It's a whopper, and makes thing entirely new. Mr. Tarkington himself picked out the locations around his summer home near Kometunkport, Maine. This is a virgin ground for picture folk—a snug harbor of healthy, wholesome children and picturesque women and fishermen. In this quaint historic background, Meighan, Tarkington, Green and Gearty partook of their craft, and, as they all so enthusiastically promised, have come along with one of the most beautiful pictures of the year.
