"Potash and Perlmutter" Possesses Notable Cast, at Arcade Today.

One of the most notable casts that has ever graced a motion picture will be seen at the Arcade Theatre today when "Potash and Perlmutter," a First National picture produced by Samuel Goldwin, will be shown. It is conceded to be one of the most important assemblages of dramatic personalities ever gathered for a film production.

Not content with securing most of the favored members of the original stage production, headed by Alexander Carr and Barney Bernard, the co-stars, Mr. Goldwin signed up Vera Gordon and Lee Koberler, two celebrities, in addition.

Carr and Bernard play their original parts, as Mawruss Perlmutter and Abe Potash, and Vera Gordon, who attained instant fame in "Humoresque," is cast as Rosie Potash. This is the first real camera experience of Carr and Bernard, and previous to the shooting of the film Director Clarence Badger experimented with the two stars until they were as at home in the studio as on the stage.

These popular players have in their support Hope Sutherland, a talented recruit from the speaking stage; Martha Mansfield, a featured player for many years; Len Lyons, who has won his spurs on Broadway; and Adolph Miller, Edward Durand and Barlowe Borland. In addition many professional clothing models will be seen on the screen.

William S. Hart in "Wild Bill Hickok" Coming to Star.

William S. Hart in "Wild Bill Hickok," directed by Clifford S. Smith, is an announcement that will have familiar ring to the motion picture world. In the good old days, beginning in 1914, Clifford S. Smith directed this famous star in no less than 45 pictures. Twenty-two of these were two-reelers and twenty-three were five-reel features. These were productions that made Bill Hart world-famous as the king of western heroes.

Few theatergoers have forgotten "The Arson." Many critics still refer to this picture as one of the best ever screened. What western memories are awakened by "The Disciple," "Hell's Hinges" and "The Apostle of Vengeance?"

With the return of William S. Hart to the screen under contract to make nine specials for Paramount release, the star has formed a new organization almost entirely of old Hart stand-bys. Entrusting the direction of his future pro-

EXPERTS AVER LOST HEAT IS WORTH MILLIONS

CHICAGO (AP)—An annual fuel tax of $400,000,000 for the United States "is approximately the price paid by home owners and tenants for building standards of the United States which are extravagant of fuel," according to a survey completed here by the Bureau of Industrial Research, which extended into all parts of the country and in which a number of state universities cooperated.

What is described as "the wasteful standard of construction" will be maintained in buildings to be erected this year, the survey says, and adds that this will add "many more millions to the fuel tax and be passed on to tenants in requirements for excessive rent to cover the fuel waste."

The fuel consumption in 16,000,000 homes of northern states is fully 20 per cent and probably 50 per cent more than would be necessary if standards were maintained in materials, the survey reports. "The heat which pours inward through the roof of buildings in Chicago, New York and every other large city where artificial heat is required during part of the year, represents a wasted expenditure of fully a billion dollars every four years, for 40 per cent of the heat produced by burning expensive fuel under present conditions escapes through the roof. The time honored fallacy that air spaces between roof and upper ceiling serve to stop heat losses is disproved."

Owners of buildings have not been taught that heat is transmitted through lumber, brick and stone just as it is through glass, but lost rapidly. Many homes in America have a fuel cost equal in a period of 25 years to the first cost.

The survey proposes that all buildings, large and small be given a fuel cost rating for the benefit of purchasers and to encourage more permanent construction.

Tashi Lama of Tibet Seeks Refuge in Peking Monastery

CALCUTTA (AP)—The Tashi Lama, head of the Buddhist religion in Tibet, who was recently forced to flee from his monastery at Tashilumpo, has reached Calcutta in incognito and immediately embarked for China.

His Holiness is now on his way to Peking where he hopes to find refuge in a large Buddhist monastery which sheltered the Dalai Lama who fled from Lhasa ten years ago.

The Lama's flight was the result of his having been subjected to unbecoming indignities, supposedly through jealousy of his exalted position as the ecclesiastical head of Tibet. His property and lands are said to have been confiscated by order of the supreme council at Lhasa, which reduced him to the level of a small landlord.
