PICTURES ON THE BARBER SHOP CEILING

The dearest expense in the world is a barber shop's ceiling. Here's an idea to help three folks—the man in the chair—the man at the chair—and ourselves. Let's frame and hang on the barber's ceiling life-like pictures of our Michael's - Stern suit models. Let us show the man wearing the lather how he would look wearing the latest—

And let us prove by adding a few prices, how little it costs at Clint's to keep your chin up and your chest out with the best clothes in La Grande.

BOX FACTORY SEEMS SURE

Elgin Expecting Installation of Commercial Enterprise in Near Future.

ELGIN, Or., (Special to the Observer)—Conditions here point to a box factory being installed in Elgin shortly. This seems an assured fact and at least, the businessmen and citizens of this city are meeting the proposition to the fullest extent on their part and it is now up to factory promoters to do their part.
Wm. Adams, of The Dalles, former resident and a present property owner of this city, is the gentleman behind the proposition of installing a box factory in Elgin. The Ad Club took up the matter and decided that the city would supply the site and funds for at least part of the building if Mr. Adams would do the rest. He came to Elgin and had a conference with some of the businessmen and expressed himself as being satisfied with the offer Elgin had to make.

MANY FIGHTING FOREST FIRES

Montana State Blazes Are Serious; Hundreds of Men Battling Flames

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—The forest fire situation in western Montana improved slightly today with the high winds gone and no new blazes of any size reported.

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—For the first time in several days, no forest fires were reported to district headquarters here Thursday. All of the old blazes are still burning with full force Thursday the report states.
A crew of 48 men was dispatched Thursday to Nixon to help combat the Pilgrim Creek fire which has broken from control and spread into excellent stands of commercial timber on Martin creek on the cabinet forest in western Montana. This blaze formerly reported as one of 200-acre size already has spread over 600 acres and is now driven by a strong west wind.

Reports from Thompson Falls asserted that the officials were literally sitting on "top of a volcano, fearing an eruption at any moment unless rain comes."
Sixteen fires are now blazing under a hot sun, fanned by a high wind, on the Kootenai forest, comprising the northwest corner of Montana. One hundred and four men have been sent into the field to fight the blazes, in the majority of cases said to have resulted from indiscriminate brush fires.

Exclusion Bill Report Is Adopted by Big Vote

ever, in the senate. Objection there first came on the departure from the original senate bill against making any exception to the 2 per cent quota for European nations based on the census of 1890, and then on the alien seaman's provision which was construed by some senators as tending to weaken the La Follette seaman's act.

Heretofore party lines were entirely submerged in the voting, but three democrats joined with five republicans and one farmer-laborer in the senate in opposing the report. Those voting in opposition were: Col. Rhode Island; Frazier and Ladd, North Dakota; McLean, Connecticut and Sterling, South Dakota; Owen, Oklahoma and Walsh, Massachusetts, democrats, and Shipstead, farmer-laborer.

Administration leaders in both the house and senate voted for adoption of the report. They had contended from the first that the immigration problem was a purely domestic one and thus within the control of congress and not the executive department of the government under the constitution.

There were efforts in both houses to recommend the report with instructions. That in the house which was sponsored by Representative Sabath, Illinois, ranking democrat on the immigration committee, was voted down 248 to 25. Senator Shipstead moved to recommend in the senate but his motion was ruled out on a point of order raised by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvanian, chairman of the conference managers on the part of the senate.

Both Houses Speed Action.
Both houses moved with unusual celerity in disposing of a conference report. House action consumed only a little more than an hour and within 26 minutes after the final roll call the report had been transmitted to the senate. The senate action was equally prompt. It was called up immediately by Senator Reed. A vote was had there within less than three hours.

After the senate had voted decisively to abrogate the "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan on the immigration question and to have the subject controlled by legislation, the house and senate conferees wrote into the measure at the suggestion of the president a provision that the exclusion section should not become effective until March 1, 1925, and that meantime the president be required to negotiate with the Japanese government in relation to the abrogation of the present agreement.

This provision was rejected by the house, 191 to 171, and then the conferees agreed to accept the house provision for the effective date of the exclusion clause, July 1. The senate bill made exclusion effective immediately upon the enactment of the measure, but Senator Reed explained Thursday that the house date had been accepted so as not to work a hardship on Japanese on the high seas enroute to the United States.

Having failed in his effort to postpone the effective date of the exclusion provision, the president, it was indicated Thursday, is giving thought to three courses of action:
Signature of the bill without any statement or declaration.
Signature with an accompanying statement disapproving the exclusion clause in such a manner as to modify offended Japanese sensibilities.
Return of the measure to congress without signature with an accompanying measure approving all of its provisions except the exclusion section.

Completion factors in the exclusion provision, the president, it was indicated Thursday, is giving thought to three courses of action:
Signature of the bill without any statement or declaration.
Signature with an accompanying statement disapproving the exclusion clause in such a manner as to modify offended Japanese sensibilities.
Return of the measure to congress without signature with an accompanying measure approving all of its provisions except the exclusion section.

Professional Nurse Says Taolac Has No Equal

Mrs. J. Clark Says Taolac Was More Than Match for Her Troubles.

By reason of the fact that she speaks from her long experience as a professional nurse, the statement of Mrs. J. Clark, of 475 Walsworth Avenue, Oakland, Cal., will be of interest to all who are in need of an upbuilding tonic.
"In all my fifteen years experience as a trained nurse," says Mrs. Clark's statement, "I never found the equal of Taolac as a stomach medicine and tonic. Two years ago an attack of influenza left me without appetite and my stomach in such a bad fix that the little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good.
"Stomach pains would make me so weak I would feel right faint. The least exertion would completely exhaust me and six months before taking Taolac I was so weak I had to hire my housework done. I was in bed most of the time for two months and was getting desperate.
"Taolac was more than a match for my troubles and eight bottles left me feeling fine. I got and sleep like a child and have energy and strength that makes life a pleasure. Taolac is simply grand."
Taolac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

HUNT'S LETTER

House and cabinet domination.
The new tax bill, as put through the senate, might properly be labeled The Mellon Bill, for Simmons.
Administration (it is a public nuisance) however, from the way fact with which they view the legislation, apparently regard it chiefly as Persimmons. For certainly it is a bitter dose.
Incidentally, the enactment of the higher surtax rates proposed by Senator Humphreys, of Kentucky, A. H. Lee, D., of New Bern, N. C., brings into prominence again the dean of the Democratic party in the senate, Simmons, who is just past 70, rounds out this session four full terms in the upper house—24 years. His runner-up for continuity of service on the Democratic side is his North Carolina colleague, Lee-Blair Overman, who also has just turned 70. Overman, however, has only 22 years to his credit.
Physically, Simmons is the senatorial Juggernaut. He stands barely over five feet in height. When seated, he is almost lost to sight behind his desk, and when standing he measures up in height to the average senator when seated.

That what he lacks in bodily physique he makes up in mental capacity. In contrast to his body, his head seems unduly large. And it houses an assortment of financial facts and figures not exceeded in the senate unless it be those under the hat of Reed Smoot.
During the period of Democratic control in congress, from 1913 to 1919, Simmons was chairman of the Senate Finance committee and in charge of the formulation in the Senate, of all war revenue measures.

Interest here now centers in what "Cautious Cal" will do when the tax bill, providing for surtax on a battery opposed by Mellon and objected to by Coolidge.
