PIRATES PLAY BEARS SUNDAY

Fans Have a Chance to See Two Games Owing to Arrangement of the Starting Times.

Now that the Kelso game is finished and is merely past history, La Grande Pirates are getting ready for Sunday's contest at Walla Walla. Just as much rests on the game as it did last Sunday because if the Bears should win by any chance, then La Grande would be in just the same predicament she was before the series started, tied for first place.

Bench will probably take the mound for his eighth consecutive time and his teammates are figuring on Charley holding the Bruins down while they bat out a few runs. We hope it's that way.

While the Pirates go over to Walla Walla, Pendleton plays at Milton-Freewater and the Dayton boys carry their bats to Pasco.

The following letter has been received from R. D. Monahan, director of the Milton-Freewater club.

"We have made arrangements with Pendleton to start our game here Sunday, May 25th, at one o'clock in the afternoon which will enable the crowd to go over to Walla Walla and see your game, which, I understand, is to be called at 3:15 p. m.

"You realize that our club has won the last three games and have been playing very good ball all season and we would appreciate it very much if a good sized crowd from La Grande attended. It is only 15 minutes drive from here to Walla Walla."

Which means that a La Grander can drive to Milton-Freewater, see the Milton-Pendleton game and then go on to Walla Walla and witness the Pirates and Bears play. Two games one Sunday afternoon.

About that coming Walla Walla-La Grande game. Many fans believe that the game next Sunday will be a lot closer than the last one, which La Grande won 14 to 3. Walla Walla is said to have some better players to use against the Pirates Sunday and added to that, having the crowd behind them, may make some difference. Walla Walla doesn't play the sort of ball exhibited here—a blowup can happen to the best of them.

One of the Walla Walla papers, in commenting on the defeat given the Bears, said:

"Of course, you remember when in the days of real sport you and Skinnay meandered over to Cripple creek or Podunk and played the Red Devils and how they beat you 14 to 3 and then how on your way home the gang got together and agreed to tell the home folks the score was 4 to 3 and that the "umpire" robbed you of the game. And you got away with it.

"Well there were a few hundred of us who traveled 200 miles or more over the Meacham hill thru dust laden winds—and oh, how we wish we could tell that the score of the game was 4 to 3—but we can't do it—the winds would speak out and the La Grande Observer might appear on the scene and give us away. So the truth must out:—The Legion Bears took a trouncing to the tune of 14 to 3 before 2,000 fans in the Oregon metropolis.

* * *

"The Pirates, that well-named cognomen handed to the La Grande swashbucklers, made us walk the plank after they had taken our worldly good from us. Their piratical proclivities were on a rampage. They got us in a corner and butchered us, they quartered us as they imitated the Indians and scalped us—and they even humiliated us.

"Reasons for our humiliations?

"Certainly—plenty of 'em. The chief one is that the La Grande team was sodden and sodden the best team. * * * The Pirates had little regard for regulations, strike out records, curves or what—not as the La Grande gang with blood covered bludgeons spattered with the offerings of Faris, but Wright and Mardis with as much ease as they did when Faris was doing the twirling.

"A careful perusal of the box score will see the Bears offered everything possible in the way of misplays while the Pirates took everything in the way of affirmative playing."

KELSO TEAM IS WINNER IN SNAPPY GAME

it things had been orthodox and according to Hoyle Peckham hit for two bases and was thrown out at third when he failed to stop at second. Then Alexander and Thelton both singled which would have been safe to score Peckham. Feehery sacrificed Reid to third and Reid to second but Bench, next up, went out Palumbo to Externeyer.

La Grande had a chance to score in the eighth but it failed to materialize. Peterson singled with two down and went to second on Davis' hash but C. Davis, next up, hit a hard fast one into left fielder's hands. By the way, Riley, Kelso left gardner is deserving of much praise. He caught two of the prettiest flies seen on the local diamond in some time, taking one of them over his shoulder on the dead run.

Bench Allowed Two Hits

There was nothing the matter with Bench. He struck out 11 men and let Kelso off with two hits but errors in the first and a free pass to Ironite lost the game. Bench had everything on the ball and the Timber Wolves spent most of their time at bat shapping wildly at balls they couldn't even see.

Duke Davis, pitching for Kelso, wasn't so hot but the Pirates managed to glean seven hits off him nevertheless. Davis struck out nine men.

Kelso has, beyond any doubt, a first class baseball team—but yesterday's game also proved that the Pirates were just as good. It wasn't the ball players' fault they lost because they actually played better ball than did the visitors but to no avail.

A large crowd witnessed the contest and also viewed a drill by the Dokkie team prior to the opening of the tilt. The Dokkie band played during the game and their music was excellent.

La Grande Theatres

Last Showing of "Lights Out" At Sherrys Today.

A distinct novelty in screen history is "Lights Out," a play within a play, which is at the Sherry Theatre today.

Mystery, intrigue, vengeance and skillful detection are craftily interwoven, making this an entertainment of absorbing interest.

In the moving picture studios the scenes are told, where a serial is being made to serve two purposes. First, to make money for its producers, second, to be used as instruments for bringing an escaped counterfeiter back to the United States. This man is impersonated in the film by a double, even depicts him as such a dirty dog that it is hoped that he will return to "get" the man responsible. The counterfeiter and numerous complications result through the entrance of two men who look alike; one, the villain, and the other, the man who impersonates him.

Certain members of the cast deserve special mention for their splendid work. Theodore von Eltz as the scenario writer, puts over a really humorous, character creation. Merle Adams, in the leading feminine role, displays a sensible charm and naturalness that rather than distinctive. Ruth Shanhouse, as "Thorpie" Anne, a reformed crook, demonstrates that her heavy dramatic interpretations are an art to them in which she won fame. Hank Mann lives up to his reputation as a funny man in his portrayal of the superstitious negro porter. The rest of the cast lend brilliant support in putting over the tone of comedy and mystery that pervades "Lights Out."

Also showing "The Man Who Would Not Die," an Indian frontier story.

"Good Provider" Showing at Star Monday Only.

The Paramount picture to be shown at the Star theatre Monday, May 26, in which Vera Gordon is starring is said to be one of the most interesting pictures in which this popular star has ever appeared.

The "Good Provider" is the title of the picture and it is sponsored by and for the benefit of the local Episcopal church.

Jackie Coogan Seen As Flying Horseman At Arcade Today.

Jackie Coogan's unexpected rise to be star clown of a circus provides one of the biggest laughs in his delightful vehicle, "Circus Days," which is the First National picture on display at the Arcade theatre today.

Jackie plays the part of Toby Tyler, a peanut butcher, who roams admiring glances at a certain bareback equestrienne. During a terrific storm at night while the circus is moving from one town to another, the little equestrienne sprains her foot. The owner of the circus declares that he will discharge both the girl and her uncle, an aged clown, if she fails to do her act at the next performance. Toby decides to substitute for her. He puts on her ballet costume and tights and, because he has never ridden horseback before, does a safety feat with wide-eyed amazement. He then mounts bareback, but it is a spirited horse and Toby has great difficulty in maintaining his seat.

When finally dismissed by being assisted in and out of the ring by clowns goes into hysterical laughter. Toby is the hit of the show, and as a result of this performance the circus makes him its permanent property.

smaller centers where workers are in the majority and where New England ancestry and tradition are no longer in the ascendant, Walsh will make the greater appeal. And as a Democrat who served the state well as lieutenant governor, governor and senator, he will hold in line the full strength of the regular Democrats of the state.

The contest between Gillett and Walsh brings to the front the Massachusetts penchant for selecting bachelors for high public office.

Gillett was a bachelor through more than 20 years of his service in congress. In 1914, however, at the age of 54, he married Christine Rice Hoar of Worcester, widow of Rockwood Hoar, former congressman.

Walsh's only sweetheart is Miss Letsomerry.

George Holden Tinkham, of Boston, however, is the state's only bachelor congressman brave enough to announce that fact in his official biography. But then George Holden hands leas in Africa as pastime.
