"Through the Dark" Showing at Sherrys Today, Tomorrow.

Characterized as the most thrilling motion picture ever woven around life in a crookdom, "Through the Dark," featuring Colleen Moore, will have its first presentation in this city today, when it begins an engagement at Sherrys.

In this latest Jack Boyle story to reach the screen, "Boston Blackie," known throughout the underworld as the slickest of crooks, makes a thrilling escape from San Quentin prison. In his dash for liberty he is assisted by a pretty student at a fashionable and exclusive school for girls. Her part in the escape leads to the revelation by the police that she is the daughter of Mother McGinn, a character in San Francisco's crookdom, and that her father was a convict and died behind prison bars. How the girl fights against the evil environment in which she is thrust and proves to "Blackie" that the only way is the straight way, furnishes a story of rapid action and many unexpected twists.

A brilliant cast of players supports Miss Moore. Forrest Stanley, who played opposite Marion Davies in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," is cast in the role of "Boston Blackie." Others in the cast are Hobart Bosworth, Margaret Seddon, Eddie Phillips, George Cooper, Carmelita Phillips, Wade Boteler and Tom Bates. Comedy showing, "Corn Fed."

Women Bravely Risk Lives for Few Pipe Puffs.

Cigarette-smoking flappers are centuries too late!

Modern girls who use tobacco despite conventional disapproval because they think it indicates an up-to-the-minute smartness, are following in the footsteps of women who died before the United States came into existence.

Girls who smoke today have only Puritanical traditions to break. The gentle devotees of nicotine four hundred years ago bravely faced the terrors of legislation, excommunication and the infliction of the death penalty.

The delicately fragrant modern cigarette was unknown to the women shown in Pola Negri's new Paramount picture "The Spanish Dancer," produced by Herbert Brenon, which comes to the Arcade theatre Thursday for a three-day run. Cambronne pipes stuffed with strong tobacco were used. Copies of these old-time pipes are shown in dramatic gypsy camp scenes in which Miss Negri appears.

"The Spanish Dancer" is Pola Negri herself. The picture is something much greater than an ordinary costume play. A strong story of real men and women is told in Herbert Brenon's vivid fashion. Faithful attention to every detail from period pipes to shoe-buckles to the architecture of Madrid's principal squares, mark the picture in which Miss Negri essays her greatest screen role.

"The Spanish Dancer" features Antonio Moreno as leading man. Headed a strong supporting cast are Wallace Berry, Kathlyn Williams, Gareth Hughes and Adolphe Menjou.

Rum Runners Swim to Shore Only to Be Put Under Arrest.

Not long ago the news was flashed from New York that there was great activity among the rum fleet anchored off the tip of Montauk Point and that all kinds of smaller boats were making ready to run "wet goods" into shore. One boat—much larger than the rest, a fifty-foot cabin cruiser, the Columbia, christened "The gem of bootleggers"—stocked up with 400 cases of liquor, paying $18,240 for the wet cargo and headed toward the American shoreline.

It was snowing and bitter cold the Columbia ran into a fog, and at fourteen knots hit broadside on the rocks. For three hours, the crew clung to the boat and then, when it began to sink, the men started to swim. After a quarter of a mile in which they suffered heavily from exposure, they dragged themselves to shore and trudged twelve miles to the island light-house where they said they were "duck hunters" and were given clothes and hot coffee. The coast guard patrol, however, finding no craft and whiskey, placed the men under arrest.

The liquor, confiscated for remnants of New Haven, Conn., was labelled and the rum-runners fined $500 each.

A boat, similar to the Columbia, was used in the Madge Kennedy production of "Three Miles Out," which tells a most thrilling story of rum running in the very spot where the Columbia bumped into the fog.

Miss Kennedy appears as the heroine who becomes a captive of brutal bootleggers on their own boat. In her support is Harrison
