that his son was out with him and started back but could not locate the boy. After telephoning La Grande and Pendleton the boy was finally located in the latter city. A stage, going west, had picked him up and while taking him into Pendleton, had passed Mr. Hall, who was returning to the springs in another attempt to locate the boy.

To Attend Osteopathic Meet.— Dr. J. L. Ingle left this morning to attend the annual Oregon Osteopathic association's convention and post graduate course held this year in Albany. The osteopaths are planning the biggest meeting ever held in Oregon since the national convention in Portland in 1915. Aside from local speakers from Oregon there will be many nationally known, among them Dr. J. H. Gerding, president of the College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons of Los Angeles, Dr. A. D. Becker, dean of the Kirkcaldy College of Osteopathy and Surgery, will discuss children's diseases and Dr. Dayton Holcomb, of Pasadena, Calif., will give several lectures demonstrating his methods of non-surgical treatment of stomach disorders. Dr. Karl Johnson, of Louisville, Ky., and Dr. J. Ivan Dunlap, president of the Durrer Hospital of Philadelphia, will give lectures throughout the convention. Dr. Ingle will drive through in his car, stopping in Portland for the rose festival and the Grand Lodge of Masons, returning to La Grande June 25th.

No Vote Felt.— We have refused to join the League of Nations, and this is in full accord with the wishes of the vast majority of the American people, as I believe," he added. "So long as the league remains a political body, inevitably dominated by the larger nations of Europe, poisoned with the tradition of age-long animosities, membership is not for us."

Mr. Burton declared members of the republican party were "by no means lacking in interest in what is happening in the rest of the world nor are we unwilling to cooperate in the most friendly way with less fortunate nations."

He pointed to a long list of legislative and executive acts designed to aid the farmers. He told of the improvement in employment and the benefit resulting to labor, of the success that attended the efforts of President Harding to obtain abandonment of the 12-hour day in the steel industry, and of the restrictions placed upon immigration, declaring that "limitation and selection must be the order of the day."

Establishment of peace with Germany and the other former enemy powers also was listed as a republican accomplishment together with establishment of a budget system, reduction of taxes, enactment of a tariff law "based upon the fundamental idea that our labor and enterprise should not be handicapped by differences between foreign and domestic costs; passage of act for the funding of foreign debts and the funding of the British and other indebtedness; reduction in the public debt, and readjustment of freight rates."

"The past at least is secure," he concluded. "In the future there is no lamp to guide so safe as that of experience and history, and the people will surely repose their trust in those principles and in that party organization which has stayed as prominent a part in the upbuilding of the nation and in the prosperity and happiness of all its citizens."

Mr. Burton declared that America stood ready to take the lead in another arms limitation conference whenever the occasion appeared suitable and that in the European reparations tangle "whenever the various nations can agree, whenever they are willing to look to the future rather than to the past, America's aid will be given without stint and our boundless resources will be available in the way of loans for their rehabilitation and development."

Taking notice of indications of a third party movement, Mr. Burton said a tendency in that direction was manifest wherever parliamentary government existed. The effect, he added, is "inevitably toward the republicanism of the future, in attractive policies and oftentimes control by a minority or combination of minorities." Orderly and effective parliamentary government demands that the people divide into two parties on outstanding questions, he asserted, adding that "the strength and usefulness of the republican party must depend on the maintenance of enduring principles in the advocacy of which triumph can only be secured by party solidarity and an organization whose members unite in close formation and do battle to every foe."

Turning to the recent congressional investigations, Mr. Burton said he "must enter a solemn protest against the impression that there is widespread corruption in the government at Washington" although "there have been exposed to the scorn of the country instances of bribery and dishonesty on the part of public officials and of cowardly and overreaching on the part of those who are ready to use their opportunity to debauch those in office."

"The vast majority of public officials, from the highest in the land to the humblest clerk in any department, are working honestly and faithfully for the public good," he added. "It is time to call a halt upon indeterminate scandal-mongering, which is largely designed to insult the intelligence and undermine the patriotism of the American people."

The chairman declared the republican party stood now as always for law enforcement and against "hasty changes in existing laws and regulations."
