Rotarians In Session In Toronto, Canada

TORONTO (By the Associated Press)—"Rotary is the establishment of a world fellowship of business and professional men, united in the Rotary ideal of service," said President Guy Gundaker opening the 15th annual Rotary convention here today.

"A world fellowship, while necessarily contingent on the extent and successful establishment of Rotary in all the nations of the world, is likewise contingent on the correctness of the standards of business practice of the men privileged to enter that fellowship," he continued.

"Until men meet on the common ground of correct business methods, there can be no world fellowship of business men. The major Rotary activity for the immediate future will be an increasing and unceasing activity for better business methods and their standardization in codes of ethics. In countries where crafts are organized with great national associations, the greatest opportunity for achievement will be found in codes of correct standards of business practice.

"In my opinion, Rotary's most lasting contribution to the world will be found in the realm of business, in the making of a happier, more contented, more kindly, more cooperative, and more honorable business world. In the achievement of a more honorable business world, you have the solution for all the other betterments sought. With an honorable business world, happiness, contentment, kindness and cooperation must and will prevail.

"With correct business methods, world-wide, the business men of all nations, meeting on this common ground, will establish great Rotary's campaign for written international friendships and good will friendships which will harbor everlasting peace.

"One of the ultimate objects of written codes is to standardize conduct so that all fellow-craftsmen in any line of business can compete with one another on an equality of opportunity. Where men compete on different business standards, there is no equality of opportunity.

"Likewise, competition between men of different standards of business methods is unfair competition. Standardization of right conduct will destroy unfair competition, and written codes of rules of conduct provide the only way for such standardization. When business men compete on a common ground of high business standards, sales will be made on a basis of service, and then that paradox of the imagination—cooperative competition—will be a reality.

"The greatest contribution made by Rotary in its code campaign is the insistence that codes must be made up of rules of conduct expressed as 'shall' or 'shall not.' These codes not written as rules of conduct, nor expressed as 'shall' or 'shall not' fail to accomplish the purpose for which they were written; namely, the standardization of conduct.

"Of the 51 codes adopted since the start of Rotary's campaign for codes, 27 of which are the codes of great national organizations, a careful estimate indicates that 200,000 business men, unassociated with Rotary, are now working under adequate codes which direct them in ethical conduct. This is a great practical demonstration of the results secured by Rotarians as ambassadors to their crafts, and also a conclusive proof of the lasting effect of Rotary upon the whole business world.

"Ethical conduct of business, emphasized and spread throughout the world, will greatly diminish the inclination and disposition on the part of the peoples of the different nations to fight one another.

"Unscrupulous business methods have been a potent cause of many international misunderstandings, and war has frequently sprung from unethical business manipulations, and desire for monopolistic control. It is an historical fact that nations are born, and great wars have happened through the use of business as a pawn in the world's game of chess. History shows that governments follow the same path as business; if business is crooked, governments will be crooked. If business is honest, which Rotary's campaign for better business ethics aims to make it, it has a corresponding reaction upon the character of the government.

"When the Rotary campaign for ethical business conduct spreads and is accepted, and is of world-wide recognition and enforcement, one of the greatest and most serious hidden underlying causes of jealousy and war will have been permanently removed."

that has ever been held in Canada and the second ever held outside the United States—the Rotarians have met in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1921.

The convention will continue in session for four days and will end with the election of officers on Friday. Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, will be one of the chief speakers. Reports will be made of the progress of the work of developing codes of ethical practices in businesses and professions through the influence of Rotarian members of national, international, state and provincial trade and professional associations. Work among boys and crippled children and problems of Rotary club administration will be discussed.

A president and eight directors will be elected, a new administration coming in to Rotary every year. The leading candidates for president are Everett W. Hill of Oklahoma City, at present first vice president; Harry Bert Cradick of Minneapolis and Frank H. Ladd of Houston, Washington, Chicago, Cleveland and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, are the leading cities bidding for the next convention.
