

Chippendale Period

Esquisite for the Dining Room Chippendale period furniture was first made early in the 18th century. It was popular then—it is popular now. It is a period of furniture that is well adapted to use in the dining room.

The Brides of Today Want Quality Furniture in Their Homes

The Secretary

for newest designed homes. Folks who are planning homes are including a secretary. It is a combination of a writing desk and a bookcase. The secretary is both of desirable appearance and very useful.

Quality must be evident in every piece of furniture that is placed in the homes of the young brides of today. They appreciate the value in both appearance and service of good furniture—they know that if quality furniture is used in their homes they surely will be pleased and their friends will find it pleasing and inviting. A wide variety of quality furniture in styles that you will like is on display for your inspection and we most cordially invite you to visit us.

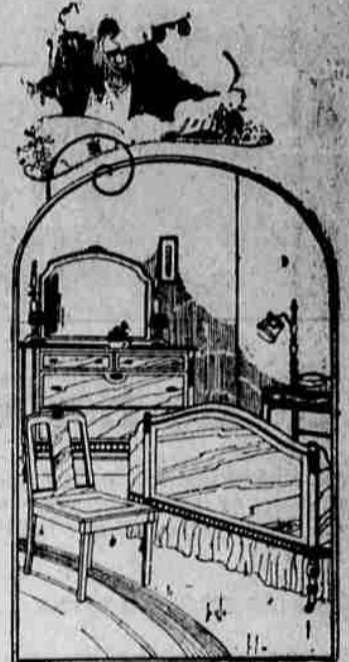

The Reception Room

A console set lends itself to beautifying and warming the welcome of your reception room. A deep seated settee of mohair is desirable.

Bringing radiance to your Living Room

The friendly living room is one of a setting of good inviting furniture—properly placed in harmony with the drapes and walls. It is our business to see that this radiance and cheery welcome is brought to your living room.

The Bed Room

In your new home this Louis XVI suite will give you the delightful effect you are looking for. It is made of genuine walnut, dull rubbed.
