Miss Talmadge Makes Bow as Dancing Girl at Arcade.

The most popular star of the screen in a role that gives her an opportunity to rise to new heights of emotional interpretation—a drama of love, romance and the most thrilling adventure under African skies—an unusual supporting cast, headed by Joseph Schildkraut and Arthur Edmund Carewe.

In her latest picture, "The Song of Love," Norma Talmadge makes her bow to the world as a dancing girl. Her dancing debut, however, marks the finish as well as the start of her torrid career.

"The Song of Love" is the drama of a dancing girl of Africa. To perfect herself for the dancing part of her role Norma took ballet lessons two hours each day. The picture was adapted for Joseph M. Schneck Productions by Frances Marion from the novel of the same name. "This is a First National release, and will be shown at the Arcade Theatre on Thursday.

Pathos and Thrills in "The Old Fool" At Sherrys Theater.

Time changes all things. Youth and beauty pass. The young and strong of yesterday are the old and weak of today. The deeds of old heroes are pushed into oblivion by the deeds of young ones. Are those who did great things in their youth merely in the way when they grow old and no longer have the power to do great things? When they dwell on the grand and glorious days of old—the days of their youth that meant so much to them—are they just old fools?

The Steele family answered these questions in the affirmative. In his youth Grandad Steele was a hero under General Grant and he never tired of telling of those days. His son and his family had no patience with him. He was a burden. He was in the way as they planned to put him in an asylum. Only Johnny, his youngest grandson loved him and cared for him, and Grandad proved that although he was an old man he could still be of use in the world.

"The Old Fool," the story of Grandad Steele, is a picture with pathos, laughter, thrills, love, action and a mighty interesting theme.

NEW FRANKLIN REACHES GOAL

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (Special).—Just 22 years in the month from the time that John Wilkinson, vice president of the Franklin Automobile company, began work on his first Franklin air-cooled motor, he is offering to the motoring public an engine which marks the attainment of a goal toward which he has been striving for over a fifth of a century.

It is said that Franklin's new high-powered 18-cylinder motor, when considered in connection with the fact that it is air-cooled, marks the greatest motoring advance in years.

John Wilkinson built the first four-cylinder, valve-in-head, air-cooled motor in America. Later, he developed the six. For many years, the Franklin Automobile Company has held to the air-cooled field and has accumulated a knowledge of design which has led to results not so long ago considered as beyond attainment by the rank and file of engineers.

The improvements incorporated in the 18-cylinder motor are the culmination of many years of experimentation and research. They mark the attainment of certain definite things for which John Wilkinson worked—an automobile engine cooled without the use of water, which knows no limitations in cooling efficiency no matter how strenuous the conditions—a motor with power for the steepest hills—with speed beyond the possibilities of the modern highway.

In addition, the 18-cylinder motor retains all the smoothness and sturdiness that made its predecessors famous.

SPRING WHEAT IS DISCUSSED

Hundreds of varieties of spring grains have been tried on the eastern Oregon Branch Stations in an attempt to find a more productive and better quality variety for this section. During the early years Haart proved to be the leading wheat in the trials at Moro and at Burns. Haart still continues to lead as a dry land wheat at Burns but at Moro, Hard Federation and Federation, two new Australian wheats have outyielded all other varieties. Under irrigation at Burns and also under sub-irrigation conditions at Union the Federation has proved the highest yielding spring variety.

In Oregon station bulletin No. 284 is given a description of the Federation wheats, and a summary of the truly remarkable results with them at the Branch Stations and by farmers in eastern Oregon. These varieties are spring wheats and are not recommended for fall planting. Milling and baking results show that these two new wheats are superior to Haart or Bluestem for bread making. They are rapidly replacing all other spring varieties in most counties of eastern Oregon, because they have proved superior in actual farm tests as well as in extensive Experiment Station trials. The introduction of these two wheats will increase acre yields of spring wheat at least four bushels an acre in Eastern Oregon. As soon as all inferior varieties have been supplanted by the Federation wheats, this will mean at least an extra 700,000 bushels of wheat annually for the farmers of eastern Oregon with practically no added cost of production.

Bridge Site Protested.

ALBANY, Ore. — An effort to forestall damage suits threatened because of the location of the bridge of Ellsworth street will be made at a public meeting. The plan to be presented will be for the city and county to buy a strip of land on the east side of the street and move the bridge in that direction from 15 to 20 feet.

This plan was once discussed by the city council, but was discarded as impracticable, but the threatened proceedings have brought it up again as the only solution of the problem.
