The L. and L. Drug company have opened their fountain in their new location on the corner of Adams and Depot streets and are ready for business. The fountain is the only one of its kind in this city. It is made of the same sort as is used in the Hazelwood and other large fountains in Portland.

Sold Livestock

Henry Hansen, of Enterprise, has just returned from Portland where he marketed two carloads of hogs and two of cattle. He says he got a good price for them and that the pork market is in good condition at present. Although cattle are not going as well, according to Mr. Hansen, the stockmen have no reason to complain, he declares.

Mr. Bridges is Here

Frank H. Bridges, for many years a resident of La Grande, arrived in the city last night from his present home in Los Angeles and will remain a few days on business. He looks fine and is well.

earnest looks at bedtime toward the window were what gave the children an idea that something was going on—or rather, coming off. And then again, it was also discovered that Mrs. A. let her children stay up as late as they wanted to. If she had sent them to bed when they should have "fallen hay" Mrs. A. wouldn't even have gotten home—let alone disrobing and displaying herself for admiration. But Mrs. A. never thought of that!

Then the police hear from somebody about her neighbor's dog keeping her awake at night by his barking. The police protest to the dog's owner and discover that the lady's cat is what keeps the dog barking. Ad infinitum.

Tring Life.
Very few people actually know of one-half of the efforts the police make to apprehend criminals. And of course, not knowing, those same people, guilty of any misdeeds themselves, cuss the officers because this man or that man isn't behind the bars.

"Three after three, month in and month out, the police spend many hours in offices in strained positions, in cold or hot weather, in rain or shine, night and day, trying to 'get the goods' on some one. Many times the police or the county officers have surrounded some suspected house and laid, concealed all night long, anticipating a shipment of booze or something similar, in vain. But the people don't know about that.

It is a safe estimate to say that four out of five bootleggers, or moonshiners captured are not captured on the spur of the moment but as the result of days and possibly weeks or months of work.

It's a funny thing, but when the police are fooled or made the butt of a joke, the whole town laughs. On the other hand, when the police make an arrest that takes another citizen out of circulation, do the people applaud?

A little co-operation, a little assistance and a little less needless posturing of the police by the citizens might bring results that would be really surprising.

Aged Couple Marry

The bride is a recent arrival from Sumner, Ore., where it is rumored she is the proud possessor of a gold mine. The couple were married by a minister of the Seventh day Adventist faith from Marshfield.

China Swaps Flies.
PEKING, CAPY General Fung Yuchang, the Christian general, has started a crusade against flies in his camp at Nanyuan. Each soldier is required to bring in a daily "bag" of flies for which he is promised a certain number of coppers. To facilitate the deed, the army has been divided into "sweeping" units. Special rewards are offered for exceptional results.

"Provided, always, that if the United States is officially represented by a delegate on the commission, any American citizen appointed under the foregoing provisions shall cease to be a member of the commission, and no fresh appointment under these provisions shall be made so long as the United States is officially represented."

"In the event the reparations commission advises Germany in default, the governments interested must confer at once on the nature of action to be applied and the method of their rapid and effective application." During the currency of the loan the allied powers agree not to apply sanctions unless the reparations commission declares a default, after taking the opinion of the agent general for reparations payments and the representatives of the foreign bondholders.

that because of their asocial tendencies some of the sturdy Scotch families rebelled against them, and were banished from the settlement.

Later, it is said, others of the settlers were driven away by the Spaniards, and it is thought likely many of them fled into the jungles and remained. This, if the supposition is correct, might account for the white Indians.

But the San Blas tribes of Indians have a different story. Many years ago, they say, so long ago that no one can recall the date, a band of white men came to Durango and set about to rob the red men of their wealth. In their exploitations, however, the pale face visitors incurred the displeasure of an evil spirit, and soon they died. Their spirits, so the story goes, being accused, were driven into the fever-haunted jungles where they stayed forevermore. That is the legend of the San Blas tribe.

According to their oldest traditions, no San Blas could intermarry with another race. That law still holds, and so strictly is it observed that even now a white man visiting their villages is carefully watched. But there are tales of Pochontasos even among the San Blas, and they say that some of the women of the tribe ran away with pale face men, whom they married, only to be slain later or their babies killed a few days after birth.

It is thought improbable by those official historians that the white Indians is of Spanish origin.

for the men of Spain were never forgotten by the Indians as white men, but as "pale faces." This failure of the Indians to refer to the Spaniards as white men while the term was applied to other strangers of the jungles, is considered solid ground for the theory of those that believe the new-found tribe descended from the Scotch.

POLITICAL PLANS ARE SHAPING UP

his address accepting the Democratic presidential nomination. His idea is to cover the field generally with emphasis on the more important issues, such as honesty in government, foreign affairs, taxes, tariff and farm relief.

TO OPEN THIRD PARTY CAMPAIGN IN THE EAST

CHICAGO (By the Associated Press)—Senators La Follette and Wheeler will open their third party campaign in the eastern seaboard and New England states, then touring the west and south over divergent routes to every state in the union. Representative John M. Nelson, national manager of La Follette's candidacy, stated today.

ley. In pounds per acre barley nearly equaled the average yield of winter wheat and considerably exceeded the yield of both spring wheat and oats. The average acre value of barley was $4.18 more than that of oats. Notwithstanding this, there have been during the past five years in Union county nearly twice as many acres sown to oats as to barley.

Information about varieties of spring crops including wheat, barley, oats, corn, potatoes, and flax and cultural methods for eastern Oregon conditions, is given in Station Bulletin No. 204, copies of which can be obtained free by writing to either of the Branch Experiment Stations at Union, Moro, or Burns, or to the main station at Corvallis.

HUNT'S LETTER

is the hardest man in Congress, but instead of the symmetrical rounded cranial dome of Longworth, Nelson's bare expanse of scalp exposes a rough-hewn head, suggestive of ability to withstand many bumps and to deliver as good as he is sent, even hitting in ram fashion, with his head, when feet and fists call.

It was Nelson who led the La Follette fight last fall for a revision of the House rules. He stood up, unmoved, against the most withering and devastating cynicism and satire the word wizards of Congress could direct against him. He didn't care what the regular thought of him or his fellows, or what they called him, so long as they amended the rules.

He checkmated every move to entangle him in parliamentary red tape, or to substitute for his proposals any political anarchy of the "just-as-good" brand.

His bald head and bald speech were the highlights of that memorable battle.

The title of "Bleeding Kansas" won by the Sunflower state between the abolitionists and pro-slavery groups preceding the Civil War, may properly be revived here.

for the coming political holocaust in mind. For Kansas is slated to become the geographical storm center of the political tornado, centering over the middle west, during the presidential campaign.

Orders have gone out from Republican headquarters that Kansas must be held secure at all costs against the assaults to be made upon it by the La Follette forces.

La Follette's forces, believing that the loss of Kansas by the Crookshanks cohorts will deprive the president of a majority and send the election into Congress, will send their shock troops into action there.

And the Democrats, hoping to salvage something from the fray for their candidate, will join in the general free-for-all.
