Thrilling Fires At Sea Filmed In Big Picture.

Moving picture thrillers, like women's fashions, are continually changing. Not so long ago, train wrecks were "the rage." This season the taste runs to shipwrecks. But a fire at sea is a comparatively novelty, a "creation." This time it has been executed by France Mitchell in "Love's Whirlpool."

The fire begins at the pre-dawn hour of three, when the passengers of a giant liner are deep in slumber. Flames blow off the hatch of the forward hold and, following their way against the efforts of the ship's fire-fighters, send the terrified passengers dashing from their staterooms to huddle on the blistering deck.

With the fire gaining ground, panic sweeps through the ill-fated voyagers. They rush the guards at the lifeboats, crowding into one little craft until its deck is packed and the scrambling mass is precipitated into the sea, none to swim and others to sink.

Critics who have seen "Love's Whirlpool," which was adapted to the screen by Elliott Clawson and Bruce Mitchell from the novel by Martin Losh, "The Inner Sight," have declared the fire scene to be one of the most realistic and thrilling actions of a photodrama ever pictured. To see it, they say is to feel that one is in the midst of its very x—a fighting, struggling participant in its terrors.

James Kirkwood, Lila Lee and Madge Bellamy have leading roles, while others in the cast are Helen Ames, an Larry Mathews, Eric "Ginkney" Sellers, an underworld spy, Edward Martindel as the banker, Margaret Livingston as a maid in the Milton home, Madge Bellamy as the financier's daughter, Clarence Golder as his lawyer and Joe Mills as "Parson" Monk, an ex-convict.

Comedy, "Hunting Hank."

Screen Players of Note Appear in Fine Kipling Picture.

Jacqueline Logan, Percy Marmont, Sigrid Holmquist and David Torrence are featured players in George Melford's Paramount production, "The Light That Failed," from Rudyard Kipling's famous story, which will be on view at the Grande Theatre for 150 days, beginning Wednesday.

Jacqueline Logan, who heads the cast, is one of the best known heroines of the screen. She has appeared in many Paramount pleasures in roles which called for unusual ability and has a large following. Fourteen pictures in two years is the medium through which this popular player has won her way to middle fame. Among portunity to display her talents. She already possesses a large following which her recent Paramount picture, "A Gentleman of Leisure," in which she appears with Jack Hall, has done much to increase.

David Torrence, who plays "Torpenhow," is a brother of Ernest Torrence of "Covered Wagon" fame and has many successes to his own credit.

Much of the story action in "The Light That Failed" is located in Port Said and the Soudan country. This is one of the most ambitious pictures yet produced by George Melford. It shows the terrible hardships of the Soudan campaign which averaged the death of General Gordon at Khartoum. Among the big scenes is a surprise attack by desert tribesmen on the British camp.
