"Being Respectable."
At Sherrys, Is Excellent Picture.

What does respectability amount to?
The answer is fittingly and vividly presented to the public in "Being Respectable" now running at Sherrys' theatre.
In this case respectability, the leading light of an American home since its original founding by Puritan stock, is in powerful arrest, in fact, that love and all else goes behind it. The drama, cleverly arranged and smoothly portrayed does not come in merely for a moral lesson and such a successful bit of the story as it is unfolded adds to the general aspect.
Monte Blue and Marie Prevost play the leading parts and they are supported by a capable cast. Also showing a comedy.

Versatility Accounts For Torrence's Success on Screen.
"Versatility" is a much-abused word, but an actor who can rise to screen fame and popularity by graphically portraying characters ranging from deep-eyed villains to virile and heroic men and inimitable comedians is versatile.
Such is Ernest Torrence, "The Jackson of 'The Covered Wagon'." Cousin Robert of "The Sign of the Cross," and now "Gen. Orlando Jackson" in "The Fighting Coward," which opens Thursday at the Arcade theatre.
Oddly enough, Torrence, who first gained fame on the screen in powerful but villainous characters, was a comedian of international note on the stage. In real life, he is known to his intimates as the most genial and kindly of men. Confine in your imagination a man portraying such characters, who has been and still is a master musician and singer, a musical comedy and farce comedian of Broadway fame.
Torrence is said to have his greatest role since "The Covered Wagon" in "The Fighting Coward." His "Gen. Jackson" is that.

Is Doubting Thomas No Longer
"All medicines and doctors for stomach trouble proved worthless in my case. Everybody recommended something else and nothing helped, so I became a doubting Thomas as to any cure. While in St. Louis a party pointed May's Wonderful Remedy so highly that I bought a bottle and I am now a doubting 'Thomas no longer.'" It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the toxic material from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—ADV.
