Construction Man Here—

L. I. Gavin, official of the Warren Construction company of Portland, is in La Grande on business. He is registered at the Foley hotel.

To Build Garage—

J. L. Munhall took out a permit at the city offices this morning to build a garage to cost $100 on Benton avenue between First and Cedar streets.

Here from Ogden—

Charles H. Turner of the Amalgamated Sugar company of Ogden, Utah, is in La Grande on business. He is making his headquarters at the Foley hotel.

Mr. Pattison Ill—

Herbert Pattison, who was taken ill last Monday afternoon while on an outing trip to Steamboat lake, is still confined to his bed. His condition has remained about the same since the first of the week.

Recovered from Sickness—

Mrs. R. J. Kitchen arrived in La Grande this morning from Los Angeles, where she has been for the last five weeks with her mother. Her mother was quite ill at one time but has now almost completely recovered.

Here from Idaho—

Mrs. LeRoy Hull and her two young sons, Phil and Dell, arrived here this morning on No. 17 from Glenns Ferry, Idaho. They will visit for several days with her mother, Mrs. C. E. Golden.

Spent Week Here—

Miss Genevieve Adams, Harry Mellon and Gordon Galtbraith, from Redmond, have been visiting at the W. A. Dunn home for the past week. The young people motored in. Miss May Dunn accompanied them as far as Portland on their homeward journey, returning to La Grande by train.

Return from Trip—

"I know what they mean now when they say Oregon has one fifth of the standing timber in the United States," said Sherwood Williams yesterday while commenting on a trip from which he and Mrs. Williams and their two daughters had just returned. Mr. Williams says he knows it's there because he has seen it. They travelled 1100 miles through Central Oregon visiting Crater and Diamond lakes and other points of interest.

Millions Each Month in Parcels Post Exports

There are at least half a million such shipments each month. Parcel post business of this class is so great in fact that the cost of compiling the figures would be excessive and out of proportion to the value of the data thus collected.

Commenting on the significance of the new figures, Director Klein points out that where formerly the average American business man considered foreign sales as some "fantastical super-mysterious impossibility," today a mail order from some remote point of the earth for a parcel post package causes no more excitement than a similar request from Boston, Chicago, or San Francisco. The most gratifying feature of this new export development, in Klein's opinion, is the fact that it proves that the American business man is at last viewing foreign trade in its true light—as merely "long distance selling."

"Our main street manufacturers in inland towns, many of whom have never seen salt water, are sending goods abroad as nonchalantly and as expertly as their supposedly better informed rivals with every seaboard facility—and even as efficiently as some of the branches of so-called 'super-exporters' of foreign lands located in American ports who are supposed to have inherited sales instincts from previous generations."

"As soon as the inland producer realized that the doorway of some good foreign customer was no farther away than the nearest postoffice and that foreign sales can be just as easily negotiated in dollars as can domestic transactions, he has gone after foreign trade in true American style. The whole thing is a striking testimonial to American adaptability and readiness to meet new conditions and opportunities. It means if there is to be any continued uncertainty in the business situation it can be materially corrected or modified by resorting to overseas markets. The products of America can farm and factories will be offered for sale on foreign shelves instead of piling up in domestic warehouses awaiting the readjustments of the home market."

The following statement shows the value of the principal classes of exports by mail or parcel post (exclusive of all shipments valued at less than $25) during the first five months of 1922:

Arlington, Ore., Plans Links—WASCO, Ore.—Something of a novelty has struck Arlington, the little city on the Columbia, for its residents are entering heartily into the plan for a golf links on the hills near the city. The tourist trade looks with favor upon the movement and many townspeople are behind it. While no city the size of Arlington has yet put over such a proposition, it is said that the activity of the sponsors indicate that the course will be built.

her manufacturing plants; parades each day, a nightly program of fire works, dancing on an expansive outdoor pavilion, loggers' sports, including a log rolling tournament for the Pacific Northwest title; jousting events; log sawing competition; athletic events with tennis and golf tournaments as well as band concerts, speeches, carnival attractions and airplane events.

On Sunday, August 2, W. A. "Billy" Sunday will make two addresses. These services will be held in the Longview athletic stadium.

Count Claims Peggy Selfish; Wants Title

"I am very unhappy that I didn't know more about her before I married her. I only saw her four or five times before we were married."

Asked about financial difficulties of the match, Count Mornier said that he had told Peggy before they were married that his income was small and he would not be able to support her in the manner to which she had been accustomed. She told him, he said, not to worry—that she had sufficient. Count Mornier denied that he had ever asked for financial aid from Peggy.

"I gave her money and was a good husband as far as I could be," he said.

"My only crime," he continued, "is that I am not rich enough."

No statement was forthcoming from the countess.

SAGE HEN SEASON OPENS TOMORROW IN UNION COUNTY

Tomorrow morning at daybreak some members of La Grande sportsmen will officially usher in the hunting season by searching for the elusive sage hen in its native haunts.

Reports so far would seem to indicate that there is a shortage of birds this year due to some cause which is not definitely known. Sage hens are not hunted to the extent that other game birds in this vicinity but year after year the number is rapidly decreasing. The bag limit is five birds in one day or ten in one week of successive hunting.

The sage brush country to the east of La Grande is most generally hunted by shooters from this vicinity. E. T. Andrews, E. C. Herzinger and J. Jacobson of La Grande have announced their intention of leaving for Huntington for a two or three days hunt. William Stegert, Joe Carr and Charles Hunziker are other hunters who will go out tomorrow morning. This latter party expects to hunt near North Powder.

Other hunters favor the Medical Springs and Tolocant districts for the birds but after all the only thing to do is to go out to where the country looks probable and "start in."

MEXICAN DIES IN RIVER

ROSEBURG, Ore.—Jose Ochoa, a Mexican section hand, was drowned while swimming near the old brickyard in this city. Officers are investigating Refugio Enaguen and Aljo Melito, who are suspected of having plundered the dead man's clothing after the accident.

Both witnessed the drowning but the occurrence was not reported for some time, and as neither of the Mexicans who saw the accident could swim nothing was done to save Ochoa. He was known to have owned a gold watch in his clothing but they are missing.

point near the Grande Ronde hospital. Hearings were also held on improvement districts 149 and 150 with the result that the recorder was authorized to advertise for bids on both districts to be received up to Wednesday evening, August 12.

A bid by the Warren Construction company on improvement district No. 148 was accepted, amounting to $2504.41. A bid was also presented by the Triangle Construction company, making consideration at $2704.14. The lowest bidder was awarded the
